HOUSE TO REPORT ON NEARBY RETREAT FOR PRESIDENT

Congressman, Acting on Coolidge's Suggestion, Offers Resolution for Selection of Virginia Site.

COMMITTEE ACTION LIKELY TOMORROW

Favorable Response Continues to Greet Proposal for Country Home for Chief Executive.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Congressman Clifton A. Woodrum (Dem., Virginia, a member of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, introduced in the House late yesterday a resolution directing the Public Buildings Commission to make an investigation and report to Congress on President Coolidge's suggestion that a summer retreat be acquired for the President within easy reach of the capital.

Woodrum's resolution called upon the Public Buildings Commission, which is headed by Senator Reed Smoot (Rep., Utah), to select a suitable site in Virginia for the home and report on the approximate acreage, the nature of the building proposed and the approximate cost. Woodrum said today that he had no personal opinion in mind, but was sure that any number of acceptable places could be found within easy motoring distance of Washington.

Hopes for Early Action.

As a member of the Public Buildings Committee, Woodrum will ask for consideration of his resolution when the committee meets tomorrow. He said that, in view of the widespread favorable sentiment which had appeared in newspapers throughout the country regarding President Coolidge's suggestion, he felt certain the committee would take early action on his resolution.

The Public Buildings Commission, named in the resolution, is composed of Senator Smoot, chairman; Senator Claude A. Swanson (Dem., Virginia; Representative Richard N. Elliott (Rep., Indiana, chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds; Representative Fritz G. Latham (Dem., Texas, ranking Democratic member of the committee; David E. Johnston, architect of the Capitol, and James A. Wetmore, supervising architect of the Treasury Department.

The suggestion of the President, conveyed through the Post-Dispatch in its fifteenth anniversary number, continued today to evoke favorable response in Washington.

Government Urged to Act.

There was a general feeling among those interviewed that the Government should provide such a retreat rather than accept it as a benefaction from a private source. The Government, it was pointed out, could well afford the comparatively small expense involved and should not place itself under obligation to any individual.

What President Coolidge has proposed, as his letter makes quite plain, is not an elaborate establishment at a modest place to which future Presidents may go with the necessary members of the White House staff for a few days' escape from the summer heat of the Capital. He thought that a $200,000 legacy, which was offered to the Government sometime ago, would have been ample for the purpose. The President did not, however, suggest that any legacy be accepted, but left entirely open the question of how his idea might be realized.

The Lenkin Legacy.

The circumstances of the legacy mentioned by the President were recalled. By the will of J. Wilson Lenkin, a Baltimore attorney, who died in 1923, $200,000 was set aside for the purchase of land and the building of a Summer White House within "automobile" distance of Washington. The only stipulations of the will were that the offer should be accepted within 18 months.

Notice of the legacy was communicated to President Harding and both houses of Congress by the late President's secretary, which was named an executor.

Warner Representative John Langstaff of Kentucky, then chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, informed Harding that his committee would not act on the proposal unless the President formally

PRESIDENT THINKS PLACE IN VIRGINIA MIGHT BE SUITABLE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—RESIDENT COOLIDGE believes that a mistaken idea has arisen from some of the editorial comment on his letter to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in which he proposed a retreat for the President within automobile driving distance of Washington.

Mr. Coolidge wished to suggest a place where the Chief Executive might go for a week-end rather than for an entire summer vacation.

He believes that the President would always desire to go into a section of the country with which he was not familiar for his regular summer vacation, rather than to a specified place each year.

STABS YOUNG WIFE AT HOSPITAL WITH 9-DAY-OLD BABY

T. F. Phelan Attacks 18-Year-Old Mate in Presence of Her Mother and Sister.

SHE HAD REFUSED TO LIVE WITH HIM

He Runs to Police Station and Surrenders—Was Hit on Head With Ball Bat in Row Some Time Ago.

As she lay in bed with her 9-day-old daughter at St. Ann's Maternity Hospital last night, Mrs. Mary Phelan, 18 years old, was stabbed in the breast and seriously wounded by her husband, Thomas P. Phelan, 28 years old, 6125 Gambelton place, University City.

Phelan then ran from the hospital at 5351 Page boulevard to the Page Boulevard Police Station, half a block away, and surrendered. He was locked up, accused of assault to kill.

The stabbing occurred at 8:15 o'clock after an angry discussion of the young mother's threat to leave her unemployed husband and return to the home of her mother, Mrs. Bertha Sharkey, 6511 Plymouth avenue, University City.

"I went to the hospital to see my wife and child at 6 o'clock," Phelan related at the police station. "Mary and I discussed family matters. She said when she got out of the hospital she would no longer live with me, but would return to her mother. I pleaded and pleaded with her, but in vain. 'Temper Got Best of Me.'

"Her mother and her sister, Margaret Sharkey, came in and joined the discussion. When Mary finally refused to listen to me, my temper got the best of me. I drew a pocket knife and stabbed her. 'I'd rather see her dead than be separated from her.'

Mrs. Phelan's mother and sister, who witnessed the attack, called for help. Physicians said that although the knife had missed Mrs. Phelan's heart, the wound was serious because of her weakened condition. Police were not permitted to question her.

The Phelans had been married 14 months. She planned to leave the hospital ward Friday.

During the bedside discussion, Phelan had talked about radio and other subjects until he suddenly drew the knife and stabbed his wife, her mother said.

The Phelan formerly occupied an apartment on Hamilton terrace, but later went to live with his mother at the Gambelton place address. Phelan had been employed as a roofer and chauffeur.

Three months ago he went to Chicago and worked there for three weeks.

Hit on Head With Ball Bat.

Phelan engaged in an altercation with a saloonkeeper on the St. Charles road eight months ago and the man struck him on the head with a baseball bat, leaving a two-inch scar.

"Since then I've had headaches," said Phelan. "I can't think anymore. Two months ago I had a fall and that made my condition worse."

Phelan admitted he and his wife had quarreled during their brief married life, but he declared he had done nothing to provoke a separation.

John T. Sharkey, father of Mrs. Phelan, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that after she eloped with Phelan, her relatives seldom saw her, but they recently learned she had entered the hospital. The parents called at the hospital, forgave her and granted her request that she be allowed to return to their home. Until she entered the hospital, she had been employed at the Wagner Electric Co.

Police records show Phelan has been arrested 17 times for investigation, with no convictions. He was once arrested in company with a man who had pistol, and police reported both men very roulet wheel operators at one of Tony Foley's gambling establishments.

MRS. DWIGHT DAVIS RETURNS

Carried Off Beregnaria in Chair; Met by Husband.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Secretary of War Dwight Davis went down the bay in a coast guard cutter today to meet the liner Beregnaria, on which his wife was returning from Europe. Mrs. Davis, suffering from rheumatism, had to be carried from the ship in an armchair.

The Beregnaria brought 12,225 sacks of Christmas mail and 1314 passengers.

MISHAP PUTS LAMPS OUT FOR SHORT TIME

Mayor Miller and Others Speak at Celebration Marking First Use of $2,000,000 Installation.

A touch of pageantry and romance was given the ordinarily prosaic action of turning on the downtown street lights last night. Not the garish, swaying old arc lamps, but white, dazzling, modern bulbs on tall, concrete standards.

It was their first use after dark, now that the major portion of a $2,000,000 bond issue contract is completed, and the city celebrated.

It might have been a Veiled Prophet's parade or election night, judging from the thousands that filled almost three blocks of broad Twelfth boulevard and considerable spaces on the cross streets and lots.

People streamed to the focus of the new Civil Court house, Twelfth boulevard and Market street, as bombs burst in air and a brass band played. Office buildings and stores had all their incandescent bulbs turned on to give the picture background. A raw breeze, with a temperature below 50, drove away the day's thick smoke, but not its acrid bite.

From the Telephone Building a powerful searchlight sent a finger of light around the sky, resting now and then on the classic superstructure of the Courthouse.

Airplane Approaches.

At 7:55 o'clock the throng espied the red and green flashing lights of a big tri-motored airplane from Lambert-St. Louis. Field hundreds of feet over their heads, approaching from the northwest. The wings glided in reflection of the searchlight. A radio announcer went on the air at the microphone. The band played "America" and the crowd, mistaking this for the anthem calling for such tribute, uncovered, while the scores of policemen scattered about snapped to salute.

Sidney R. Baer, general chairman, representing merchants who provided $20,000 for the celebration, declared the event was a "milestone in the progress and development of our glorious city." When he mentioned "our good Mayor" there was applause.

Mayor Miller told how the bond issue of 1923 had made possible the lights in outlying districts possible. The underground cable for the new section could be stretched from here to Kansas City, he said.

At 8:15 o'clock the arc lights were extinguished for the last time, leaving the packed streets in half darkness. A red beacon was pointed high on the white wall of the Courthouse. A signal. The circling airplane, an hour ahead of its motor for a few seconds, flashed a white signal of its own and sounded an eerie siren. The red beacon shone again and the next siren screech, actualizing an "electrical ear" atop the Courthouse turned on a vertical searchlight upon the roof, which outlined the flying craft. Still another shriek and the seemingly magic device caused the substitution switches to operate, at 8:21 o'clock.

Presto! The new lights were gleaming.

Circuit Breakers Blow Out.

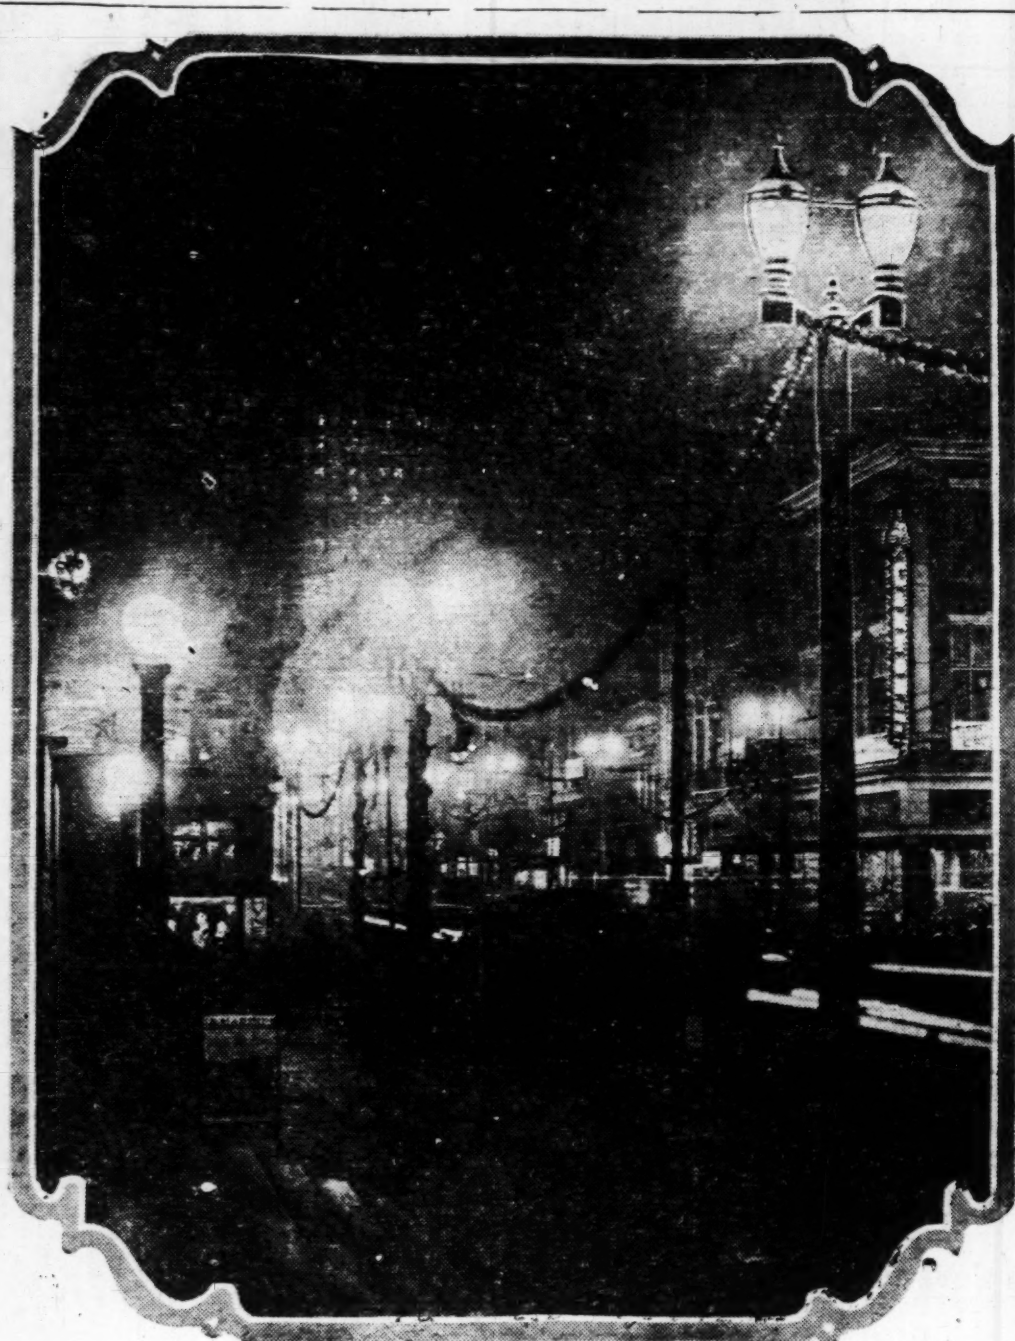

"Now," said Mayor Miller into the microphone, "you can make this possible."

But just then came the hitch that marks many a first night show—the delicate substitution apparatus in the Municipal Building, which had been set too "fine," blew the circuit breakers and the lights were out. However, attendants speedily returned them to service and a speech-making program continued.

"This is another evidence of the new spirit of St. Louis," said Carl F. G. Meyer of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee. Director of Public Utilities Pritchard declared the city was making history in the art of street lighting and asserted that St. Louis now had the best-lighted business district of any city in the United States. If not the world. City Lighting Superintendent Heath expressed thanks for the co-operation.

want to arrest those men now." Instead of accepting the offer, Barry said he appealed to the Federal authorities. In an opening statement, that the sugar stolen from the barge was used subsequently for the manufacture of whisky.

Sheriff Roche actually paid part of the fines and costs assessed against Bryant when they were convicted. Hugo Chambliss, a Negro professional bondsman, testified.

Chambliss testified that when he signed the Bryant-Moore appeal bond, Dewey Bryant, were convicted of the theft of 219 sacks of sugar from a Federal barge in Cairo in September, 1925, Moore got five years, Bryant got two years, but since he had been paroled.

Price of Protection. Moore's former bootlegging partner, Dewey Bryant, who preceded him on the witness stand, testified that before the sugar theft he and Moore paid Sheriff Roche $1 for every gallon of whisky they delivered in return for protection, but that when they complained that the fee was too high it was reduced to 50 cents.

Bryant testified he met Moore in 1923 at Paducah, Ky., where they were in the liquor business. He said that he and Moore were indicted in the Alexander County conspiracy case. Of these 16 have pleaded guilty and are on the Government's list of witnesses. Two failed to answer on their bonds and two more are subpoenaed as witnesses, presumably on the understanding that they are to plead guilty. Five have not been apprehended.

WOMAN'S BODY IN TRUNK
IN HUSBAND'S BARBERSHOP

Charles S. Taylor's Place in Buntyn, Tenn., Closed, and Search for Him Is Begun.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 11.—The body of Mrs. Charles S. Taylor, 47, was discovered today stuffed in a trunk in her husband's barber shop in Buntyn, a suburb. The skull had been crushed, the body stripped of clothing and the trunk locked.

Neighbors said that neither Taylor nor his wife had been seen in more than a week and that the shop had been closed. Police started a search for Taylor.

ARMY OFFICER SHOT, DIES; ACCIDENT, FAMILY ASSERTS

Inquiry Ordered at Ft. Bliss, Tex., Following Report He Ended His Life.

By the Associated Press.
EL PASO, TEX., Dec. 11.—Lieut. H. H. Speck, son of Philip Speck of Evansville, Ind., died in the army hospital at Ft. Bliss today from a bullet wound in his head.

A soldier reported he saw the officer place a pistol against his head and pull the trigger. Army officials said Lieut. Speck had been in ill health for some time. Members of the family of Lieut. Speck's widow said the shooting was an accident and that the officer was shaving and accidentally knocked a loaded pistol from a shelf with his elbow. A board of officers was appointed to investigate the death.

work, the city was aglow in geometric patterns. "The arc lights twinkled faintly at the sky, outlining furiously streets more easily traced by the headlights of automobiles. Hotel Statler appeared as a huge electric sign on a shadowy pile, and reflected glory from Washington avenue shop windows marked vaguely the outlines of that thoroughfare.

"A moment's pause, and like magic a new city sprang up. A haze that had partially obscured the streets, seemed to melt away, the intensity of the new light. Buildings stretched upwards in cameo clearness and it became easy to count their stories from the plane. The street stood out boldly, the people clearly visible, skipping through the motor traffic.

Even the street car rails caught the glitter. The city to the west and south seemed dimly, almost shabby, and to the north a cavernous blot of darkness represented a district yet to be improved. A last look showed the new brilliance flung toward the sky like a halo above the city.

Seen from the tops of tall buildings, the spectacle was magnificent. Abaze with electric glory, the city was its own Christmas tree. It appeared as if every visible window in the Telephone Exchange, Missouri Pacific, Railway Exchange, Union Electric, New Police Headquarters, Hotel Statler, Pierce and various other buildings was electrified.

Between these structures, the street canyons, which had been dull, assumed brilliance. The new lights were burning in the area bounded by Fourth, Fourteenth and Market streets and Franklin avenue, also all around City Hall Square and on widened Olive street and Jefferson avenue. A Post-Dispatch reporter, who climbed to the high platform surmounting the Telephone Building, could see the geometrical precision with which the modern lights shone through the old-fashioned lanterns.

On the streets, the crowd appeared as a mass of white dots—the upturned faces. The siren, plain to those below, could scarcely be heard by the flyers.

"Except for the reflection of the store windows and the flicking advertising signs," said A. B. Murphy of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., one of the passengers, "downtown at first was clothed in a turgid, somber blackness in which familiar landmarks loomed for a moment, then slipped into dark uncertainty. Away toward the south, where another portion of the new street lighting system was already at work, a faint glow was visible.

PAID $1500 FOR U. S. MARSHALSHIP,
WITNESS ASSERTS

A. H. Russell, Magee, Miss., Testifies He Gave Cash to P. W. Howard, Negro G. O. P. Leader.

By the Associated Press.
JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 11.—Two trips to Washington and an exchange of letters and telegrams in code in 1927 resulted in the payment of $1500 cash to Howard, Federal Marshal for the Southern District of Mississippi by A. H. Russell, former Postmaster at Magee, Miss., Russell testified here at the opening of the trial of five Republican defendants.

The indictments containing 25 counts returned by the Federal grand jury at Biloxi last summer and Jackson charged violation of the law against the sale of public office.

Those involved are Perry W. Howard, a former Assistant Attorney-General and Negro Republican leader of Mississippi; Ed L. Patton, S. D. Redmond and A. M. Redmond, Jackson, Negroes, and J. Scott Hubbard, white, suspended Marshal for the Southern District. All entered pleas of not guilty.

Russell testified that the $1500 was delivered in cash to Howard in the Negro National Committee man's office on his second trip to Washington, about March 14, 1927. Russell stated he was accompanied by the Redmonds and Patton.

On a previous occasion, Russell said he had given the Redmonds and Patton $400 in Jackson. A. X. Redmond told him, Russell testified, that he "could not" over F. S. Swaim, another applicant, for $2500 and expenses of a trip to Washington, and that the Redmonds and Patton could "bring Howard around." Russell declared he considered that amount excessive.

In Washington the Magee Postmaster said he saw Howard, who informed him that Swaim had been eliminated from the race for Marshalship and asked Russell if he could "help" him. Howard agreed to accept the $1500 in cash which Russell had with him. Russell stated.

Efforts to impeach the testimony of Russell were started by the defense today.

James W. Cassidy, chief defense counsel, inquired whether during the grand jury inquiry Russell had not asked Geo. Woodcock, a ballist to help "frame these Negroes," and had not told Woodcock that he had "plenty of money and was backed by a crowd." He was asked if Russell had not sought the aid of Scott Hubbard to "help frame the Negroes." Russell denied all the charges but Cassidy told the Court he would produce two witnesses to prove them.

APPEALS TO HOOVER TO AVOID MILITARY SHOW AT INAUGURAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Describing the inauguration of President Coolidge as "nothing but a display of uniforms, machine guns and all the accessories of war," Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, made an appeal to House today to President-elect Hoover to make his inaugural ceremonies typify peace.

FIRE IN APARTMENT

Police Investigating Blaze in New Building, Thought to Have Been Incendiary.

Police are investigating the circumstances of a fire, thought to have been incendiary in origin, which caused $3000 damage to a three-story apartment house under construction at 5621 Enright avenue.

The fire was discovered at 5:30 p. m. by Mrs. Nellie Tyrrell, 5621 Enright avenue. Flames had started in three separate sections of the building, according to firemen, who reported the circumstances to police. The flames spread to the apartment building at 5629 Enright avenue, causing $500 damage there.

Samuel Brown, 5755 Parkdale avenue, Clayton, owner of the building, said he has employed both union and nonunion men in the construction work, but there has been no trouble that he knows of.

Fire starting in a room where waste paper is stored caused $400 damage at the St. Louis Provident Association, 2225 Locust street, last night. The fire was discovered at 10:20 p. m. by an employee of the association.

NEW ROYAL ACADEMY HEAD

Sir William Llewellyn to Succeed Sir Francis Dicksee.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 11.—Sir William Llewellyn last night was elected president of the Royal Academy to succeed the late Sir Francis Dicksee.

Sir William Llewellyn was born in 1862 and studied at South Kensington and Paris. He has painted many portraits, including the state portrait of Queen Mary, the United Services Club portrait and others of the Queen.

SECOND POTOSKEY
AUTOPSY PERFORMED

Bullet and Not Skull Fracture Caused Death, Doctor Indicates.

No new facts were ascertained in a second autopsy performed last night on the body of Pearl Potoskey, St. Louis beauty shop owner, found slain Dec. 2 in the bachelor apartment of her wealthy admirer, Sol Hohenhalt, at De Soto, Mo.

The first post-mortem, performed at De Soto, disclosed that Miss Potoskey had been shot through the brain and had also suffered skull fractures not caused by the bullet. Her family requested the second autopsy to check on a possibility that she had been beaten to death before the bullet had been fired into her head.

Three St. Louis physicians, Dr. Edwin Vitt, Dr. Georges Ives and Dr. William M. Winn, made the examination last night at an undertaking establishment at 412 DuChouquette street, and will report their finds to Jerome Duggan, attorney for Miss Potoskey's family. The physicians declined to discuss the matter, but one indicated the primary cause of death was the bullet fired through the brain, rather than the skull fractures.

Prosecuting Attorney McCormack of Jefferson County had expressed a theory that Miss Potoskey had been beaten to death somewhere else and carried into the Hohenhalt apartment, where a bullet was fired into her brain and a pistol put beside her body to give the appearance of suicide. The girl's hands were free from blood, but the bloody outline of what appeared to be a hand was on one of her stockings, as if she had been carried by someone. Whether she had been carried from outside the apartment or merely from one room to another was not determined.

Hohenhalt, at liberty under $10,000 bond, charged in a warrant with second-degree murder, asserts Miss Potoskey shot herself. However, police experts have announced the rusty pistol found beside her body could not be fired, and, therefore, she must have been shot with another pistol. Relatives of Miss Potoskey testified at the inquest that Hohenhalt had threatened to kill her.

MRS. ARTHUR W. LAMBERT DIES AT ARCADIA, MO., HOME
Funeral of Wife of Retired Manager of Whicome Company to Be Held in St. Louis.

Mrs. Arthur W. Lambert, wife of the retired manager of the Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., died at her home in Arcadia, Mo., early today. She was about 60 years old. An infection which followed an operation for removal of her tonsils a year ago was thought to have caused her death.

Funeral services will be held in St. Louis, but arrangements have not yet been completed. Besides her husband, Mrs. Lambert is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ralph E. Fairchild, and three sons, William H., Samuel B. and Arthur W. Lambert Jr.

BOOTLEGGER SAYS

Gaither Moore Shows Books at Trial of 35 Indicted for Illinois Liquor Conspiracy.

RECORD OF BRIBES
FOR PROTECTION

Displays Letter He Got in Prison From Leslie Roche, Accused Officer, in East Side Federal Court.

A bootlegger's expense account—the penciled story of large receipts from whisky sales and purported payments to law officers for protection—was laid before a jury in Federal Judge Lindley's court in East St. Louis today in the trial of 35 men on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in Alexander County, the southern-most section of Illinois.

Sheriff Leslie B. Roche of Cairo, one of the defendants, was particularly involved in the tale of protection payments told by the witness, Gaither Moore, one-time bootlegger, saloon keeper and sugar thief, and now a Federal convict who narrated his sordid story in matter-of-fact fashion, like an outlining legitimate business deal.

Moore's testimony also involved 11 of the smaller fry among the defendants, saloon keepers and errand boys who, the Government charges, have been still tenderers and liquor runners in the Alexander County whisky plot.

Admits Perjury at Own Trial. Moore said his bootlegging partner, Dewey Bryant, were convicted of the theft of 219 sacks of sugar from a Federal barge in Cairo in September, 1925, Moore got five years, Bryant got two years, but since he had been paroled.

Harrison had a place which was given him at Cape May, N. J. He neapance of it aroused a great deal of adverse comment.

PROOF

"Coke is as cheap to burn as soft coal, and it's clean." That's the song coke users sing in praise of this efficient fuel. Coming from people who have found out for themselves it's the strongest proof anyone could ask for.

There are lots of people who would find in Coke everything they want from a fuel—clean, easily regulated heat, minimum furnace tending, comfortable warmth in all kinds of weather and last, but not least, economy.

All you need is a trial to convince yourself that Coke is the best fuel for your use. Why not make that trial now and enjoy the rest of the Winter in clean comfort entirely free from fuel worries? Order a load of Coke from your fuel dealer. $9.50, $10.25 and $11.25 per ton in full loads.

U. S. HEALTH CHIEF SAYS DON'T CLOSE SCHOOLS FOR FLU

Contact in Congested Districts Cannot Be Avoided by That Method, Surgeon General Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Surgeon-General Cummings of the Public Health Service, today advised against closing city schools to prevent spread of influenza, as 21,238 new cases were reported by health officers in 26 states. Estimating that not more than one-fifth of the cases are being reported, he said there are probably 200,000 cases of the disease in the country.

"Although the weight of scientific opinion seems to be in favor of closing schools and other public places, Surgeon-General Cummings said, 'and although this has proved efficacious in rural districts, there is little evidence that it is of value in cities. Close contacts in the cities are unavoidable whether the individual is in school or not, and we believe it is better for the children to be in school under supervision.'

Reports From 26 States.

Following are the number of cases reported in 26 states for the week ending Dec. 8: Kansas, 13,588; Montana, 4,580; Colorado, 1,366; North Dakota, 194; Wisconsin, 107; New Mexico, 170; Arizona, 100; Maine, 12; Connecticut, 4; New York City, 36; New Jersey, 22; Illinois, 27; Michigan, 6; Maryland, 10; West Virginia, 57; Florida, 17; Arkansas, 93; Louisiana, 26; Texas, 38; Idaho, 7; Utah, 26, and Washington, 22.

The Surgeon-General declared the surest single means of preventing cases of influenza is to "go to bed the moment colds and fever develop." He recommended this both for protection of the individual against pneumonia and other complications and as protection of communities against spread of the epidemic.

List of Closed Colleges.

The University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.; Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.; the University of Missouri, at Columbia, Mo.; the Seminary of St. Therese near Montreal, Quebec, and Levis College, Levis, Quebec, have suspended classes because of outbreaks of the disease.

Three other schools also reported that influenza had made its appearance on the campus. It was characterized as an epidemic at the University of Iowa, but classes have not been suspended. Classes are also meeting at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va., but students may leave for home after procuring the permission of health authorities. At the University of Georgia, at Athens, 27 were in the infirmary with 67 cases reported but classes are going on.

Six Missouri U. Influenza Patients Develop Pneumonia.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 11.—Six influenza sufferers at the University of Missouri hospital have developed pneumonia within the last 24 hours, it was announced this morning. The university was closed yesterday because of the epidemic of influenza and the date for reopening was set for Jan. 5. Seventeen new influenza patients were admitted to the hospital since the closing and 16 were discharged. There were 93 patients in the hospital today, but 23 were suffering from diseases other than influenza.

Christian College, a girls' school here, will close tomorrow for its Christmas vacation, instead of Friday, it was announced. Two influenza cases were reported there among the 275 students.

1000 Cases of Influenza Reported in Iowa City.

By the Associated Press.
IOWA CITY, Ia., Dec. 11.—An epidemic of influenza at the University of Iowa, although widespread, has not reached a stage necessary to suspend classes. Walter A. Jessup, president, said last night. Dr. Frank L. Love, city health physician, estimated the number of cases here at 1000.

MARRIAGE OF 15-YEAR-OLD GIRL

WHO WAS KIDNAPED ANNULLED

Miss Lillian Rohrbacher Tells Judge Taylor She Was Forced Into Ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Rohrbacher, 15 years old, to Joseph King was annulled yesterday by Circuit Judge Taylor in the Court of Domestic Relations. King entered a general denial to the charges, but did not contest.

STATUE OF KING WILLIAM III IS DECAPITATED IN DUBLIN

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 11.—The statue of King William III, which has been the object of many hostile attacks by anti-British elements, lost its head today. Several armed men forced their way into a warehouse, intimidated a watchman, decapitated the stone figure and carried the head away with them.

The statue was damaged by an explosion on Armistice day and had been moved from College Green to the warehouse for repairs.

GOLDSTEIN REALTY MOVES TO WAINWRIGHT BUILDING

The Goldstein Realty Co., of which I. E. Goldstein is president, has moved to new quarters on the third floor of the Wainwright Building at Chestnut and Seventh streets. Max Goldstein is in charge of the rental and advertising departments. The company reports having placed loans aggregating $150,000 within the last 30 days and renewed interest in real estate on the part of investors. WabashORVILLE WRIGHT
HONORED AS FIRST
CITIZEN OF DAYTONThousands Attend All-Day Celebration in Commemoration of Brothers' Flight
Made in 1903.FOREIGN GROUPS
JOIN IN TRIBUTESurviving Inventor of Plane to Be Guest of Honor at Washington Conference
Tomorrow.By the Associated Press.
DAYTON, O., Dec. 11.—Orville Wright last night received the highest honors of a grateful city, proud of the achievements of its first citizen.

Winding up a full day's celebration in which thousands participated, officials of the city presented to the world's first airplane pilot a glowing testimonial of its affection and recognition of his work.

"With justifiable pride the citizenship of Dayton, young and old, joins in this celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first airplane flight, made by Orville and Wilbur Wright," George W. Lane read from the illuminated parchment, which was presented to Wright on behalf of the city.

"This city gave to the world of science these two aeronautical pioneers. Here their experimentalations were carried on. Here their first crude laboratory was equipped. Here was born the inspiration from which flying in heavier than air craft has become possible."

Proud of Wright Brothers.
"They were a happy laborer, however discouraging at times the task. They saw the future as no one else before them had seen it. With perseverance and matchless skill, they bent to the untiring and, having set their hand to the blow, they did not turn back. Dayton is proud of the Wright brothers and of their unparalleled achievement."

Today this community pays tribute to their genius and upon the altar of time sets a new beacon for science. Their names are exalted to the ends of the earth. Their deeds have become imperishable. They belong to the immortals of all history."

The city's testimonial had been preceded by addresses of praise from foreign and American governmental officials, but it was the home town folks who carried a hoarse ovation to the modest Wright. Earlier in the day the children from the Wilbur Wright public school lined the streets as distinguished visitors from all parts of the world, accompanied by Wright, visited the army aeronautical laboratories at Wright field.

They marvelled at this great engineering plant devoted to furthering the interests of American aeronautics, and recalled the incidents of the Wrights' early work in contrast.

Development of Aviation.
Twenty-five years have seen aeronautics rise from the work of two brothers, experimenting in an old barn-like hangar in "Huffman prairie" to a worldwide industry employing tens of thousands of men in more than 100 separate fields of endeavor.

Today aeronautical experts are employed to study many different parts on each airplane and aid in its complete design. Many of these men never fly. The Wright Brothers not only worked out all of these engineering details, now assigned to perhaps 100 men, but also perfected the art of aviation itself after the plane was built.

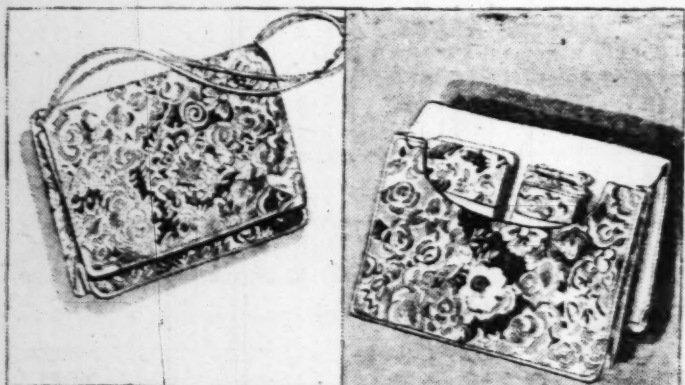

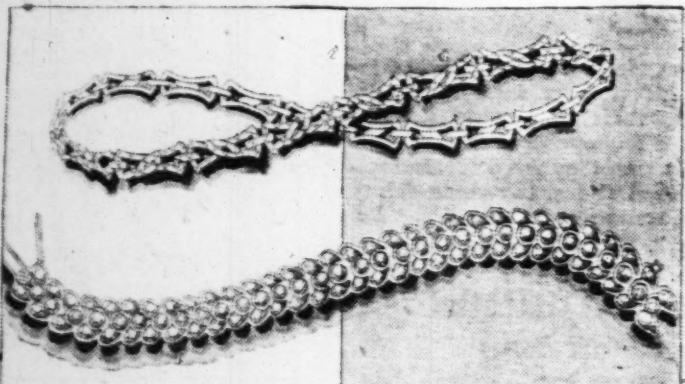

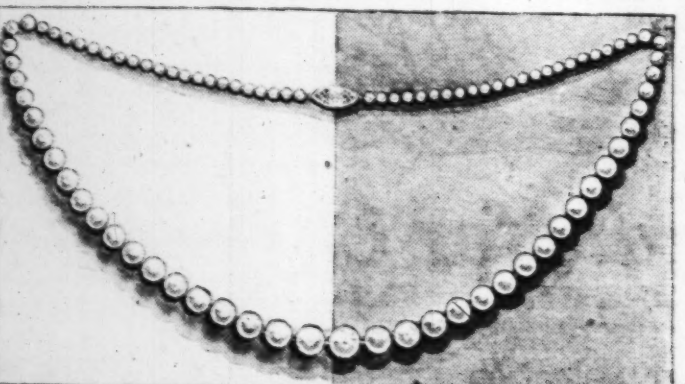

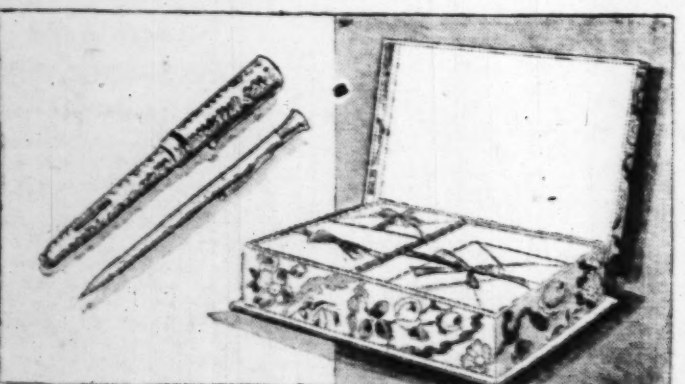

It was this unusual combination of ability in both aviation and aeronautics, two sciences unheard of 25 years ago, that impressed the visiting world aeronautical experts with the Wrights' powers of genius.

The foreign delegates, representing most of the world's civilized nations, visited the grave of Wilbur Wright in Woodland Cemetery late in the afternoon. Brigadier-General Lord Thomson, former British Minister of air, laid a wreath on the air pioneer's tomb on behalf of all the foreign delegations.

Received Visitors.
Orville Wright received the visitors at his home in Oakwood, an exclusive residential section of the city, before the delegates went to a banquet in honor of the surviving airplane inventor. The civic celebration at which the city's testimonial was presented, was open to the public. Thousands waited outside the doors of the hall long before it was time for them to open.

The foreign delegations left on a special train shortly before midnight to attend the International Civil Aeronautics conference called by President Coolidge for tomorrow. Wright planned to leave today for the Washington conference at which he will be the guest of honor.

The week-long celebration in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first airplane flight will end Monday at Kitty Hawk, N. C., the scene of the first flight. The cornerstone of a Government memorial to the Wright Brothers and a tablet marking this scene will be unveiled there.

Gets $1 Wage After 48 Years.
By the Associated Press.
PIERCE, Neb., Dec. 11.—Forty-eight years ago, in the days of "another day, another dollar," John Pocholt, now janitor at the Pierce County courthouse, got a job with a Chicago implement firm. He quit after working one day and did not bother to get his dollar. Recently, as an experiment, he wrote the company for his wages. Receiving an affidavit reciting the facts, the company paid the dollar with compound interest at 5 per cent—$19 in all.

BETROTHED PAIR FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—A man and a woman who were to have been married today were found shot dead in a room at the Davis Hotel, on the "Gold Coast," late last night. Police said it was murder and suicide.

Mrs. Florence F. Williams, 21 years old, a divorcee, had been shot five times. Her body, fully clothed, lay across the bed. The body of Frank W. Zimmerman, 30, formerly manager of the Hotel McCormick, was found on the floor. A pistol from which every shot had been fired, was clutched in his right hand, and there was a bullet hole in his head.

Mrs. Williams once was a switchboard operator at the Hotel McCormick.

There was nothing to indicate the motive for the double slaying. A letter and telegram, both filled with terms of endearment, were found. Relatives of the young woman said they had heard nothing of any interruption to plans for the pair's marriage, arranged for today.

Mrs. Williams and Zimmerman had been dead several hours when their bodies were found. They registered at the hotel Saturday night. Police learned from the girl's brother-in-law, Earl Iminger, that Zimmerman had posed as a scion of wealth, had alluded often to extensive properties and a large income he was to place at Miss Williams' disposal. He had climaxed his courtship with a profligate party in a $10 room which he kept four days. Then, with only $3 in his pockets and a showdown at hand, he took the avenue of escape by death.

ACRES OF GLASS IN BUILDING

Staff of Window Cleaners to Be Hired for Chicago Structure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO.—More than six acres of windows will give light to the 25 floors of the Chicago Apparel Mart, according to Napoleon Pivard, president of the corporation building this new skyscraper, which will be the tallest and largest in the world.

There will be approximately 12,000 windows in the building, requiring a permanent staff of 20 men giving their entire time to window cleaning.

URGES SENATE TO INQUIRE INTO TOLL BRIDGES

Oddie Seeks to Learn Whether Private or Public Ownership of Them Is the More Desirable.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A comprehensive investigation of the toll bridge situation is proposed in a concurrent resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator Tasker Oddie (Rep.), Nevada, a member of the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

The resolution provides for appointment of a select joint committee of three Senators and three Representatives to hold hearings during the present session and the subsequent recess and to report to the first session of the next Congress. It was referred to the Committee on Audit and Control.

The primary purpose of the proposed investigation is to ascertain whether private or public ownership of toll bridges is more advantageous to the public. The resolution points out that since all such bridges will ultimately become the property of the public, it is desirable to determine whether it is in the public interest for the public to have control over the initial construction.

The resolution states that the committee should learn "whether, as currently reported, franchises granted by Congress for the building of toll bridges have been sold, offered for sale, or made the subject of trafficking," and "whether there has been excessive and extravagant capitalization of toll bridge structures which is reflected in the tolls paid by the public and in the value of the securities purchased by it."

The resolution further sets forth that since Congress under existing highway legislation has required to States to agree that the roads benefited shall be free from tolls, facts should be obtained to determine whether it is "just and reasonable to grant franchises permitting a revival of a system of toll gates in the form of toll bridges."

Under the terms of the resolution, the joint committee would be empowered to investigate existing toll bridges with regard to their promotion, financing and operation. The resolution states that this phase of the investigation should include inquiry into "original investment, present value, outstanding securities, rate of tolls, dividends, salaries, traffic carried and other related and pertinent matters" and that the committee further should inquire into the status of franchises granted, including the activities of agents in procuring them.

The bill would limit the cost of the investigation to $25,000.

STATE LOSES SHELTON APPEAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 11.—The Supreme Court today denied an application of the State for reconsideration of the appeal of the Shelton brothers of East St. Louis from a conviction for the Kincaid Bank robbery, and affirmed its decision ordering a new trial of the case.

The brothers—Carl, Earl and Bernie—were sentenced to 10 years to life following conviction at Taylorville, Christian County, and won an appeal for a new trial on the ground of error.

Christmas Seal Sale in Schools.
More than 500 women, acting for the Tuberculosis and Health Society, are selling Christmas health seals and buttons today in the public schools. Mrs. Arthur Lieber, a member of the board of directors of the Tuberculosis Society, is general chairman of the special sale, which is conducted annually as part of the society's Christmas health campaign to raise funds for fighting disease. The sale of stamps in the schools is endorsed by the Board of Education.

Boric Acid Good—But Not Enough

We recommend Iris, America's Eye Bath, because we know it is such a vast improvement over the time honored eyewash of plain boric acid.

Iris contains camphor, menthol, witch-hazel, boric acid, and pure distilled spring water, all sterilized and put into sealed sterile flasks.

Iris does three definite things for you. It makes your eyes sparkle and look alive and vivacious. It cleanses the corners, the tear ducts and under the upper and lower eyelids. It relieves soreness and inflammation.

If you will try one bottle of Iris we know you will realize its virtues. All of our stores are instructed to refund your money if you are not thoroughly pleased. Send the old one-size eye drops to us with your Iris today.

TO THE OWNERS OF AMERICA'S HOMES
FROM THE DESIGNERS OF AMERICA'S SKYLINE

Harvey Wiley Corbett, distinguished American architect and member of the firm of Hainle, Corbett and Harrison, The Bush Terminal Sales Building in New York, shown here, was designed by this firm.

"When one considers how very little more Copper and Brass now cost, it seems extremely foolish economy to gamble with the rust troubles that so often occur when corrodible materials are used."

MR. Corbett, one of the finest architects in the country, does not lightly endorse any product. Nor do the many other famous architects who unhesitatingly recommend Copper, Brass and Bronze materials for use in home construction.

Only by specifying Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts; Brass pipe and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures when you build, buy or remodel can you avoid rust troubles. As Mr. Corbett says:

"Certainly the owner of the moderately priced home... can ill afford to gamble on the expensive repairs that invariably follow when corrodible materials are used."

The same reason that leads to the use of Copper, Brass and Bronze in office buildings makes them the logical choice for even small homes. These metals cannot rust. Write our Building Service Department for any additional information.

Considering their lifelong service and their absolute protection against rust, Copper, Brass and Bronze are not expensive even in the construction of small homes.

HOUSE HEARS PRAISE OF POST-DISPATCH

Congressman Cochran, Former Office Boy on Paper, Commends Anniversary Edition.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A former office boy for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch rose in his place in Congress yesterday to tell his colleagues of the fiftieth anniversary number of that newspaper.

This is the statement of Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis, who was recently re-elected from the Eleventh Missouri District, as it appears in today's official report of the proceedings of the House.

"Mr. Speaker and Ladies and Gentlemen of the House, I rise to call your attention to a special edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, one of the great newspapers of the world, which has just arrived and can be found in the reading room. This edition celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch by the elder Joseph Pulitzer. It probably represents the most ambitious effort ever made by a newspaper in producing a single edition. It contains articles by more celebrated contributors than have ever before been assembled in one place, and, in addition, it contains also cartoons by the most celebrated of American and European artists.

"Among the outstanding contributors to the edition are President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, H. G. Wells, Dean Inge, Bertrand Russell, Count Keyserling, Prof. Albert Einstein, J. B. S. Haldane, Commander Byrd, Henry Ford, Owen D. Young, Maxim Gorky, Senators Borah, Thomas J. Walsh and Norris, and numerous others. The illustrations include such famous artists as Max Beerbohm, Louis Raemaekers, Frank Brangwyn, Boris Ephimov and Daniel R. Fitzpatrick.

"An interesting feature of the edition is a facsimile of the first number of the Post-Dispatch. This four-page paper was issued Dec. 12, 1875, and its brevity and crude typographical appearance forms an extraordinary contrast with the anniversary edition of which it is a part; the latter consisting of 332 pages, including seven sections printed in rotogravure style on smooth white paper.

"Among the interesting features contributed to the edition by the members of the paper's own staff are an intimate history of the elder Joseph Pulitzer by his former companion, a history of St. Louis in the last 50 years and a history of the Post-Dispatch since its founding.

"As an illustration of the elaborate pains and expense which attended the production of this remarkable edition it may be observed that it was sold on the streets of St. Louis at the regular price of 10 cents, whereas the white paper on which it was printed cost more than twice that amount and the cost of mailing copies as first-class postage from St. Louis to Washington was $1.16 each.

"The handsome character and extraordinary content of this edition thoroughly illustrates the character which the paper has consistently maintained in the past."

Congressman Cochran then read to the House the Post-Dispatch platform, and added: "In conclusion, I might say that 54 years ago, at the age of 14 years, I secured my first job, that of office boy, in the editorial department of this newspaper."

ENROLLMENT INCREASE OF 250 AT NORMANDY HIGH SCHOOL

$342,000 Building Was Made Possible by Bond Issue and Tax Advance.

The new Normandy High School, made possible by a $24,000 bond issue and maintained by a higher school tax imposed on themselves by citizens of the Normandy district, has an enrollment of 500, an increase of 250 over the enrollment in 1927, according to Fred R. Miller, superintendent of the district.

The increase, Miller said, is due to the vocational instruction afforded at the school.

The new building is on a 24-acre tract at Lucas and Hunt roads and Easton avenue, in St. Louis County. The building has 24 rooms, including classrooms for automobile repair, home economics, wood-working, sewing, cooking, millinery, typewriting, mechanical drawing, music, architecture and book-keeping. In addition there are classrooms for the usual academic subjects.

The Normandy School District, three years ago, was forced to hold half-day sessions because of lack of funds.

$1,250,000 PAID IN ST. LOUIS
FOR CHRISTMAS CLUB FUNDS

About 22,000 St. Louisans in the past year, through weekly deposits, accumulated $1,250,000 in Christmas savings clubs, according to the estimate of Jerome Cook of the National Advertising Corporation, which sponsors the clubs.

The average account, Cook says, was $40, small savings of children holding the average down. Deposits of 25 cents to $40 a week were accepted. Although a downtown bank with 5500 members depositing $220,000 in savings accounts had the largest club, the greatest number was in outlying banks and were patronized largely by women and children, Cook said. Payment of Christmas club savings began Dec. 1.

CANTON HALTS IN TRIBUTE TO DEAD IN RIOTS YEAR AGO

CANTON, China, Dec. 11.—The Canton Government today observed the first anniversary of the red reign of terror which began in Canton a year ago and during which thousands of persons were killed. At noon, activities throughout the city were stopped and five minutes of silence in reverence to the dead and in thanksgiving for the re-establishment of order prevailed.

Despite the rigorous measures adopted by the authorities during the past year, there have been marked communicative activities throughout Kwangtung Province.

$540 PAYROLL ROBBERY NEAR POLICE STATION

David Hogan Knocked Unconscious in New Apartment House.

David Hogan, 3014 Longfellow boulevard, was slugged, knocked unconscious and robbed of $540 by a man who lay in wait for him last night at an apartment building being erected on South Grand boulevard, a half block from the Magnolia Avenue Police Station, between Alhambra Grotto and Mission Inn.

Hogan, a brother of Circuit Judge Granville Hogan, was employed by the Boaz-Kiel Construction Co. as timekeeper at the building. The money was to be used to pay day laborers. The robber, coming through an alley before help could be summoned from the police station by witnesses to the robbery. Robbers Best Clerk and Boy: Get $2000 in Jewelry.

Two men took possession of the jewelry store at 1212 Franklin avenue yesterday afternoon, locked the front door, rifled the show-cases, cash register and safe and slugged the men in charge. Albert Krupin and Isidore Stasser, when they were slow to obey orders. Several customers appeared at the door and one of the robbers informed them the store was closed for the day. In departing the men took $100 cash and an assortment of jewelry which Krupin valued at approximately $2000. Krupin said one of the robbers had visited the store twice before, as a prospective customer.

Nathan Tashman and his wife, Lena, were held up and robbed of $150 in their grocery at 2700 Mills street, and one of the robbers struck Tashman with a revolver.

Other holdups reported last night were: Grocery of Leon Gelsner, 2236 Morgan street, $50; filling station at 2642 Lawton boulevard, $5; fish market of Charles Gold, 3222 Laclede avenue, $125; grocery of Henry F. Bonner, 2074 Hartford street, $44.55.

Circuit Attorney-elect Franklin Miller reported his garage in the rear of his home at 1117 McCausland avenue was ransacked after a padlock had been removed from a door.

OVERSUBSCRIPTION OF $15,429 TO JEWISH FEDERATION FUND

Three Hundred Workers Raised More Than $500,000 Sought for Philanthropy and Social Service. Subscriptions totaling $15,429 were obtained by the 300 volunteer workers engaged during the last 10 days in the solicitation of a $500,000 fund for the Jewish Federation of St. Louis. The money will be used to pay a deficit and to maintain various philanthropic, social service and cultural enterprises dependent on the Federation.

Announcement by Mark C. Steinberg, chairman of the campaign had exceeded its goal by more than $15,000, was made last night at a final report dinner at the Columbian Club. Congratulatory addresses were delivered by Julius Glaser, president of the Federation, and by Aaron Waldheim.

PIECE OF LOST PLANE FOUND

Tire Identified as One From Hinchliffe and Elsie Mackay's Craft. AKRON, O., Dec. 10.—Officers of the E. F. Goodrich Co. announced they are reasonably certain that the Silverton tire found on an airplane landing gear washed ashore near Donegal, Ireland, Friday, belonged to the ill-fated plane of Capt. Walter Hinchliffe, Hinchliffe and the Hon. Elsie Mackay, daughter of Lord Inchcape of England, were never seen again after taking off on an attempted East-to-West Atlantic flight in March.

Through a serial number on the tire found on the Irish coast, officers of the company ascertained that the tire found had been sent to the Stinson-Detroit Co. of Detroit. The Stinson company in a telephone communication with Goodrich said the tire had been used in equipping a Stinson-Detroit monoplane which was sent to England last January. Goodrich records also show that Hinchliffe's plane was the only trans-Atlantic plane lost which was equipped with tires 22 by 6 inches of Goodrich make. As this size was given for the tire found, there is little doubt it came from the plane of the Englishman, officers said.

RUSH OF APPEALS FOR PAROLE POURS IN ON GOV. BAKER

Under Self-Imposed Limit He Says He Will Grant Only 21 More Before His Term Ends.

PLEAS MADE FOR GRANT AND CARR

Former Figured in Realty Fraud, Latter Wrecked Chippewa Bank—Hearings in Progress.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 11.—The quadrennial rush of applications for parole of convicts from the Missouri penitentiary is nearing its peak, with the close of the Baker administration only five weeks away. Hundreds of requests have been received for action on paroles before Gov. Baker goes out of office Jan. 14. The Governor said today, however, he would not exceed his self-assigned quota which will permit 21 more paroles.

Many friends of convicts are calling for personal interviews with the Governor. Baker said all of the requests were being referred to the state penal board.

Early in his administration Baker adopted a policy of granting paroles at the rate of one a week, or 52 a year. He has granted the paroles in groups, usually at holiday seasons.

The parole application rush in the closing weeks of the administration was promoted by the policy of some former governors, who released large groups of convicts just before going out of office, sometimes including convicts whose release would be criticised. The end of the administration of course, nullified the effect of the protest.

In addition to the hundreds of requests received, the State Penal Board has in its files the cases of more than 400 convicts who have had parole hearings since 1925, upon whose application no final action has been taken.

The monthly parole hearings for December began yesterday and continued today, with 32 cases docketed. This is the last parole hearing of the present administration except for a special hearing on Dec. 15, when four cases added to the December docket will be presented.

Pressing for Grant's Parole.

One of the St. Louis cases already heard, in which action by the board has been urged, is that of Edward W. Grant, former secretary and treasurer of the defunct Wagner-Grant-Bell Realty Co. of St. Louis, who is serving a 10-year sentence for real estate frauds. The Rev. John W. Melvior, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, is one of the principal advocates of the release of Grant.

A reason for the activity in Grant's behalf while Baker is still in office is that Governor-elect Caulfield was attorney for the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, which protested against clemency for Grant. Caulfield appeared at the parole hearing last April to oppose Grant's parole, and it is felt he is not likely to grant a parole to Grant when he becomes Governor.

A recommendation by the board for parole of Joseph S. Carr, former cashier of the defunct Chippewa Bank of St. Louis, who is serving an eight-year sentence for embezzlement, has been in the hands of the Governor for a year, without action. Carr's pecuniary, totaling $710,000, wrecked the bank.

Gangster's Release Sought.

Another recommendation made by the board more than a year ago, upon which Baker has not acted, is for the release of Humbert Costello, reputed "best bet" of the "Jelly Roll" Hogan gang of St. Louis. He has served seven years of a 25-year sentence for robbery. Four other men sent to prison in connection with the same robbery received shorter sentences and have been released.

Among other St. Louis convicts whose cases have been heard and are awaiting final action are Roy Joe Lewis, serving a life sentence for complicity in the murder of two St. Louis policemen; J. H. Seward, serving a life sentence for murder of a prohibition informer at Herculaneum for a fee of $25, and W. A. Schollmeyer, former Republican politician and employe of the St. Louis Board of Education, serving a 15-year sentence for burglary.

Forest Fires Cost U. S. $26,685.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Forest fires in national parks cost the Government $26,685 in 1928, and with the current fiscal year scarcely half over, almost that sum already had been used in combatting the menace. About $19,000 of the money spent in 1928 went for emergency reconstruction of property because of flood damage in fighting the fires, the House Interior Department Appropriations Subcommittee was told, and the remaining $8,685 was spent in fighting the flames.

WIFE WHO KILLED MAN FREED ON $25,000 BOND

Mrs. Ethel Hender, East St. Louis, Gets Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Mrs. Ethel Hender, real estate dealer who fatally wounded her husband, Percel Hender, a hog buyer, in a row at their home at 1507 State street, East St. Louis, Saturday morning, was ordered held under $25,000 bond yesterday after a coroner's jury had found that Hender died of bullet wounds inflicted by his wife "with murderous intent."

Mrs. Hender, who is 40 years old, did not take the stand. She had previously told policemen and a Post-Dispatch reporter, however, that Hender drew a revolver during a quarrel and that she snatched it from him and began firing when he threatened to kill her.

James Metcalf, a roomer at the Hender home, testified he heard Hender shout: "I'll put your lights out." just before he heard a series of reports. He was downstairs at the time, however, and did not hear the shooting.

Hender was shot four times. He died Sunday night. Mrs. Hender declared the quarrel followed three months of discord because of Hender's attention to another woman. Mrs. Hender was four years her husband's senior. She is president of the Pythian Sisters, an auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias, and a member of the East St. Louis Business and Professional Woman's Club.

After the inquest yesterday she was released on $25,000 bond set by City Judge Cook on a writ of habeas corpus.

2,500,000 Visit U. S. Parks.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—To semite in California again was recorded as the most popular national park in 1935, with almost double the number of visitors that went to Platt in Oklahoma, its closest contender. The tabulated total of visitors to national parks just submitted to the House Interior Department Appropriations Subcommittee, declared that there were almost 2,500,000 more visitors to national parks in 1935 than in the preceding year. More than 2,500,000 went through their gates in the past season. There were 469,613 visitors to Yosemite, 250,633 to Platt, 235,957 to Rocky Mountain, 230,954 to Yellowstone, and 199,699 to Hot Springs, the five most popular.

SCHOOL BOARD PICKED BY JUDGES SUGGESTED

J. C. Tobin Favors Bipartisan Basis and Responsible Appointive Power.

A suggestion that members of the Board of Education be appointed on a bipartisan basis by the Circuit Judges of St. Louis, acting in general session, was made today by John C. Tobin, a member of the board and a lawyer. He disagreed with the recent proposal of William F. Fahey, an Election Commissioner, that the board be appointed by the Mayor.

Fahey is not pressing his idea. State Senator Kinney, who was asked to introduce Fahey's bill in the Legislature, has declined, suggesting instead that Fahey call a conference to consider the idea of having board candidates nominated by the two major parties, with all names placed on both election tickets. The League of Women Voters has disapproved of Fahey's idea, and has asked the Mayor to call a conference of all organizations interested in measures to improve the schools.

GIRLS' CHANCES OF MARRIAGE BEST IN WARM CLIMATE

Tampa, Fla., Has Nearly 17 Per Cent Fewer Single Women Than Madison, Wis.
MADISON, Wis., Dec. 10.—The single girl living in sunny Florida is more likely to marry than her sister in chilly Wisconsin. It is indicated by a survey announced today by the school of commerce at the University of Wisconsin.

Girls between 15 and 24 years of age were included in the correlation of temperatures and wedding bells, which disclosed that warm climate, especially in non-industrial centers, goes hand in hand with a high percentage of marriages.

Only 27 per cent of the native white women were found single in 12 southern cities of 100,000 or more, while in a dozen northern cities, where the thermometer averages 15 or 20 degrees lower, 33 per cent were found unmarried.

In Tampa, Fla., with a mean average temperature of 72 degrees, single girls included only 20.4 per cent of the native white women. Superior, Wis., having 28 degrees for its average, listed 37.3 per cent of its native girls as unmarried. Industrial cities, such as Milwaukee, were found to have a larger proportion of single women than non-industrial communities.

TWO-HEADED KING SNAKE, IN ZOO THREE MONTHS, THRIVES

Voluntarily Takes Water but Is Fed Forcefully Through Either Mouth.

The two-headed king snake, the strangest creature in the reptile house at the Zoo, is still alive after three months in captivity. It voluntarily takes water, but must be fed forcibly. R. Marlin Perkins, reptile house superintendent, said he is much encouraged over the unexpected longevity of the reptile. The snake, which is about 5 1/2 inches long, has two heads, each perfectly developed, uses both pairs of eyes and drinks and breathes through both mouths.

"Each head seems to have a will of its own," Perkins said, "for when one wants to travel, the other feels like napping. Therefore, the snake can't crawl very fast. We force-feed him two or three times a week with small minnows, opening his jaws with a piece of paper or the fingernail. Either head will do. The left is the best eater, yet the right seems to be more assertive."

The snake was found in September near Roma, Ill., by Tommy O'Hara, a 3-year-old schoolboy, and is the property of W. P. Emerson, 4045 Russell boulevard.

F. E. WILLIAMSON, FORMER CLERK, MADE HEAD OF C.B.&Q.

Began Rail Career 20 Years Ago With New York Central. After Graduation From Yale.
NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Frederic E. Williamson, who started in the railroad business 20 years ago as a clerk with the New York Central Railroad, was elected president and chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad yesterday. He succeeds Hale Holden, who resigned to become chairman of the Southern Pacific Railroad's executive committee. Williamson was vice president of the Burlington.

He was graduated from Yale in 1918 and entered the New York Central's employ. After serving as agent at Rome, Utica and Troy, N. Y., he rose to general superintendent of the New York terminal district and later of the first district at Albany.

In July, 1935, he went to the Northern Pacific as vice president in charge of operation and maintenance. He became executive vice president of the Burlington upon the death of Claude G. Burnham. As president of the Burlington he is also president and chairman of the executive committee of the Burlington's subsidiary, the Colorado & Southern.

Marshall Field Pioneer Dies.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—John Devlin, who tutored H. F. Selfridge, department store owner, through the primary grades of merchandising, is dead at the age of 82 years. Devlin had been with Marshall Field & Co. 40 years. He helped Levi Z. Lottor carry goods from the store in the Chicago fire.

GREENVILLE, Ill., Dec. 11.—The trial of Freddie Wooten, former Burger gangster, on charges of robbing the Bond County State Bank at Pocahtontas in November, 1934, was continued to Jan. 14, yesterday by Circuit Judge Jesse R. Brown. The defense was granted the continuance on its allegation that material witnesses had not been located.

Art Newman, former Burger henchman, a fellow defendant of Wooten in the murder of Mrs. Lory

Price, was brought to Greenville as the principal witness against Wooten. The trial of Wooten, Newman and Leslie Simpson, another Burger gangster, for the killing of Mrs. Price, wife of a State highway patrolman who was also killed by Burger gangsters, has been set for Dec. 17 at Marion, Ill. As a result of yesterday's action, Wooten will first be tried. If he is convicted, it is unlikely the bank robbery charge will be pressed.

ABOARD THE BARK CITY OF NEW YORK, Somewhere Near South Island, Dec. 11 (By Wire-News).—We know that we are in the Antarctic now. All of yesterday long stately flat topped icebergs, gleaming white and blue in the sun, have been marching by broad table lands of snow ice that have broken off from the continent to the south and are moving north.

Huge waves dash against the massive cliffs and shoot spray 10 feet in the air, slowly wearing away the masses that seem impregnable.

"The ceaseless warfare of nature," said Commander Byrd as he watched through his glasses the magnificent play of color.

At one time there were seven of these gigantic icebergs within a few miles, all in line, like companies on parade. The tops were big enough to hold two or three football fields and hundreds of thousands of persons.

Large Enough for Landing Fields. They were large enough for landing fields and the flyers aboard were as much interested in the apparently smooth surfaces as the dog drivers were in the crevasses which occasionally showed on the sides.

When a flurry of snow hid the sea for minutes at a time, however, it is not so pleasant to realize that these big fellows are all about, not to speak of the hundreds of smaller cakes each large enough to wreck a ship. The ice pack must be very near.

All day and night Sunday one of the most interesting programs in navigation, our attempted has been worked out.

In the small radio room, a little group of men has been sitting and standing in the midst of banks of instruments and glowing tubes, tapping wires, waiting over charts with head phones over their ears, attempting with their brains and the aid of modern science to pierce the shroud of uncertainty which clouded their position.

Trying to Plot an Accurate Course. For a long time they had not been able to see the sun and were approaching the point, where it was necessary to plot an accurate course if they were to reach a certain position in the ice.

The compasses were way off, due partly to local attraction from the many metallic cans and crates piled on deck and partly to the large variations in this part of the world on account of the proximity of the magnetic pole and the weakness of the earth's magnetic field in a horizontal plane.

It seemed almost impossible to be accurate and yet they had to be. The room was like the conning tower of a battle ship going into action and attempting to outmaneuver the enemy, the enemy in this case being the fog, ice, snow and wind.

The men in the little group were unshaven, dirty, clad in disheveled garments and weary from lack of sleep. Pipes were clamped in their teeth as they talked and swung instruments, one or two smoking cigarettes which they forgot till their fingers were burned.

They were Malcolm P. Hanson, chief radio engineer of the expedition; Lloyd V. Berkner, also a radio engineer and operator; Carl Peterson, another radio man, tall and thin; and the ruddy Captain, Frederick G. A. Cook, of the City of New York.

Trying to Wreck Whalers. They were attempting to reach whalers to the south whose position was known and by radio compass get bearings—which would show their true position.

"Get Mason on the Eleanor Bolling and tell him to use his compass," said Hanson. "It's working better than ours just now."

Peterson made a few rapid shifts of plugs, turned his dial and then, having his antennas switch, the sharper connections of which he had made into place overhead. A few

TOWER OF LONDON RITE 700 YEARS OLD BROADCAST

Millions for First Time by Radio Hear "Ceremony of the Keys."

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 11.—Millions of persons last night heard by radio a ceremony which has been performed nightly for at least 700 years. From the grim Tower of London was broadcast "the ceremony of the keys," connected with the formal locking up of the great fortress for the night.

This ceremony had been heard from their dungeons by persons of royal birth, centuries ago, who were condemned to die. It was heard by captured spies in the late war awaiting the firing squad.

A yeoman warder was escorted by the Sergeant and men of the guard to the main entrance where they closed the gates and turned the massive locks. With the aid of a lantern the little company proceeded to other parts of the fortress to lock other doors. No one, unless in possession of the password, can enter the tower after the locking up until daybreak. The password is sent each night to the King, either at Buckingham Palace or Windsor, and also to the Lord Mayor of London.

The locking up ceremony, the yeomen with the guard appeared before the guardhouse.

"Who goes there?" cries the sentry.

"The keys," answers the yeoman warder.

"Whose keys?" demands the sentry.

"King George's keys," replies the warder, and adds:

"God save King George."

"Amen," replies the sentry, and with the rest of the guard, still with his escort, the warder moves off amid a roll of drums to deposit the keys at the Lieutenant's lodgings.

U. S. IS NOW DECIDING WORLD POWER, MACDONALD SAYS

No Agreement by Group of Nations Is Worth Anything Without America, He Declares.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Publishing Co., New York.)
PARIS, Dec. 11.—The overwhelming importance of the United States in world affairs, notably in disarmament, was stressed by former Premier MacDonald of England in an interview here yesterday.

"No agreement by any group of powers is worth anything without the support and co-operation of the United States," he said. "America must have security against the outbreak of time of war in which it is not a belligerent. Settle all questions of maritime law and you take away most of the arguments in favor of armaments."

Questioned about the Kellogg treaty he wistfully, though not ironically, compared it to castles in the air.

"Air is the proper place for treaties," he said, "upon which foundations must be built with such solid material as arbitration, conciliation and mutual security."

MacDonald said he refused to consider the Kellogg treaty as America's last word.

"The United States will speak again with an increasing amount of confidence," he added.

POINCARÉ WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE BY ONLY 52 MAJORITY

Opposition Delivers Surprise Attack on Government Bill to Increase Tax.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Dec. 11.—The opposition delivered a surprise attack on the Government in Parliament last night. They demanded an increase of 10,000 or less be demanded and that a substantial increase be levied on incomes of $8,000 or more.

The Communists, Socialists and radicals for once united to oppose the Government. Premier Poincaré was absent and Minister of Finance Chéron was hard pressed as Government leader. He finally made the question one of confidence and the Cabinet weathered the storm, 215 against 262. The majority of only 52 was the smallest that Poincaré's Government has ever received.

HOOVER LIKENS CHILE'S HISTORY TO THAT OF U. S.

Both Built New Form of Government in New World, He Says in Speech at Santiago.

TO DEPART FOR LOS ANDES TONIGHT

Crowded Program of Festivities Marks Final Day of Americans' Stay in Chilean Capital.

By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 11.—Replying to a formal welcome by President Ibáñez today at a luncheon in the National Palace, President-elect Hoover declared that there was abundant reason why friendship and understanding between the United States and Chile should be deepened.

He said that on both sides there was the common history of the labor of building in a new world. He said that the new form of government founded upon a new conception of human rights; subjugation of the wilderness; development of economic life through the application of the great discoveries of science and an effort to lift the moral and cultural levels of the two countries.

The President-elect said that the United States was fortunate in its relations with Chile in that there were no basic, racial, political or economic for rivalry.

"Our economic interests are reciprocal and our progress in prosperity and comfort can only be mutual," he said.

Practical Loan Policy. The Chilean policy of external loans only for reproductive projects only well might be adopted by the entire world including the United States, Hoover continued adding confidence that the cycle in the United States development through capital borrowed from other nations would repeat itself in South America.

He emphasized the admiration which the American people hold for the economic and cultural advancement which Chile had contributed to the western hemisphere.

Expressing the sympathy of the people of the United States for the recent earthquake sufferers, Hoover said that the cities of Chile had risen from the ashes brought through the indomitable will of their people and that they again had proved "that valor which is greater than may be won on any battlefield."

President Ibáñez in welcoming Hoover to Chile said that the national spirit of the United States had given to the world incalculable benefits and even greater hope for future spiritual and material advancement between the peoples of both countries.

"Whatever our past political differences may have been, we desire to emulate the example of the United States in establishing a great democracy representative politically of all the people," he said. "This example has actuated Chile in its relations with its neighboring countries."

While Hoover was being entertained and conferring with Chilean officials, United States business men in this country today expressed the view that the visit of Hoover, while devoted entirely to the promotion of good will, would prove to be of infinite benefit to the commercial relations between the two countries.

One said that more than $600,000,000 of capital from the United States already was invested in Chile, and that Chileans realizing the extent to which Hoover had promoted the relations between the two countries, would welcome a further influx of money from the United States for the development of natural resources. Regret was expressed that it was necessary for Hoover to limit his visit to two days and that the official and other mapped out a crowded program for the final day of his stay.

To Go to Los Andes Tonight. Members of the Chilean Cabinet were invited to call at the United States Embassy for a reception to Hoover. More than 600 Chileans and Americans already have been received there.

Before leaving late today for Los Andes to spend the night before enroute tomorrow for his trip across the Andes, Hoover was to receive an honorary membership in the School of Engineers of the University of Chile.

Hoover was unusually honored on his arrival when President Ibáñez met him at the railroad station to meet him. This was understood to be only the second instance in which a President of Chile has so acted, the previous occasion having been that of President of Bolivia, dated July 28, 1925, and addressed to Capt. Falconer, was sold for $4200.

Comment on the Fiftieth Anniversary Number of the Post-Dispatch

"Most Important Sunday Newspaper Ever Published"

(Quoted in the Cleveland Press.)
This anniversary issue I believe to be the most important Sunday newspaper ever published in America.

There are those who will say that the catalog of contents is the index of a magazine, not a newspaper, that what such men write is not "news."

But the fact is that any opinion that any one of these men holds is "news." It only because he holds it. Not a news editor in the country but would print the gist of any one of these articles if it were made by his author in a speech in that editor's newspaper city; in many cases such "stories" would come as a surprise to the readers of America to be printed wherever you live; in some it would be cabled across the sea.

The more important fact is that what these men think is news no matter what the names of those who think it. The stream of thought is the most important thing, in any age, in the world. These men are great names, but because they are the vocalizers of the modern stream of thought. What men do is "news," anyone will agree; but what men do is only the overt, physical expression of what they think.

But particularly these "stories" cataloged above, are "news," because they are written by experts. They are news because they are authoritatively presented in understandable style.

But they are not authoritatively written only because they are written by persons whose names you know in the way that you know these persons' names.

That is another of the facts which this anniversary edition of the Post-Dispatch spectacularly proves.

Included in these three sections are some stories by members of the Post-Dispatch staff. Included in the other sections (mostly written by members of the newspaper's staff) are contributions by other outside experts.

By and large, the comparison proves only that an expert is an expert, whether he became an expert in his specialty while working for newspapers or while working in universities or laboratories.

But where the balance leans to one side's favor, it leans toward that of the newspaper experts, and not to that of those who, because they are known popularly to be experts, are drafted as newspapermen for a day.

What this great edition proves is that another successful newspaper knows that "news" is more than what happens physically; it demonstrates the depth and breadth of its convinced acquaintance with the news of the world, and its interest; and it declares its conviction that these readers should be served by experts.

"Impresses Its Views on the National Government"

The following Scripps-Howard News Associates editorial was carried Dec. 10 to all Scripps-Howard newspapers:

Newspapers in all parts of the country just now are giving up their own editorial space to extol the merits of the Fiftieth Anniversary Edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. And truly it is a remarkable edition. In its 200 pages there appear contributions by leaders of thought in all parts of the world, of science, of art and of international import. In bound form it would make a compendium of world opinion worth more in the best of libraries. A long cry it is from the little sheet founded by the late Joseph Pulitzer in the Mississippi River metropolis half a century ago.

But to us this unusual and splendid special edition of the Post-Dispatch is somehow much less impressive than the day by day issue of that same newspaper. Given the money and the ambition to do so any publisher should be able to state occasions produce a big and notable special edition. It takes more, however, to furnish each day of the week a newspaper of the character and calibre of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Not only does it contain the news of the day, but it contains the best thought and most disinterested purpose in its own wide Middle-Western territory, but it does the same for the country at large and for the world.

Not many newspapers so far removed from the national political capital succeed as does the Post-Dispatch in impressing their views on the national government; not many so far from the sea coasts, make their voices heard in foreign lands.

A real tribute it is to the men who have made and still are making this St. Louis newspaper to say that the Post-Dispatch receives daily recognition for an identity all its own. It is a great newspaper in the full meaning of the much mis-used term.

The Post-Dispatch has visualized

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Permit me to offer to you and your associates my congratulations upon the magnificent edition of your anniversary issue. It demonstrates the wonderful progress that has been made by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in the 50 years of its existence.

He Has Thought Well of the Paper for 47 Years

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: I wish to congratulate you on the fiftieth anniversary.

The Post-Dispatch, I think, stands ahead of many newspapers for its direct and fearless attitude, unafraid to announce its convictions, and this must have influenced me to read your newspaper for 47 years regularly.

Wishing you abundant success, I beg to remain,

E. W. DETERMANN.

Superb Issue—Noteworthy Achievement in Journalism

"TAT" in the St. Louis Times.
Horace Greeley, to say nothing of Johann Gutenberg, would hardly comprehend the fiftieth anniversary number of the Post-Dispatch. This great issue is something more than 222 pages of white paper covered with printing. It represents not only 50 years of progress in journalism, but, as well, 50 years in the progress of the written word and graphic art.

Analysis of the methods employed in producing this superb issue would at once plunge the lay reader into vast depths of technique. The making of a newspaper issue as that which celebrates 50 years of journalistic endeavor by the Post-Dispatch involves, after the planning and writing and illustrating, elaborate processes that demand machinery of precision, robot-like servants of human will. Chemistry in some of its most secret moods, played a large part in the preparation of this great issue. Electric rays developed the latent beauty of the paper, and there were in time to appear on the printed sheet in multi-colored loveliness; and it was this mysterious agent that resolved power into speed, which, which element the hero-fated prize fight parade before us. With these 64 magnificent pages is a little four-page insert, as interesting as anything in the anniversary edition—the first issue of the Post-Dispatch, of Thursday, Dec. 12, 1878, reproduced.

Here is a record of growth. Here is a contribution to American history. Here is an idea, as behind the Post-Dispatch has always been an idea. That idea, it tells in the words of Joseph Pulitzer, its founder, spoken more than 20 years ago: "I know that my retirement will be a sacrifice to the public, but I know that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty."

A standard flames in those words not easy to maintain. Far more to the glory of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch than its splendid number is the fact that it could today take to its founder the record it has made since he left it, without boasting but unashamed.

"Spokesman for Leaders From Many Lands"

Harry Hansen in The World, New York.
Stand with me for the moment in the window of a newspaper and watch a world of men go by. For 50 years the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has lived up to the ideals of a progressive newspaper defined by Joseph Pulitzer, its founder, and nourished by the New York World. So that when its anniversary comes on Dec. 9 it logically becomes the spokesman for leaders from many lands who voice their hopes for America and for civilization in its columns.

This number will be treasured not only in libraries of schools of journalism, but among literary records.

Those who have thought of H. G. Wells as embittered by the turn of human affairs will find his most optimistic articles in this anniversary number an expression of confidence that America will overcome her difficulties and get a competent intellectual grasp on her esthetic and moral needs. He praises the American journalist for helping to open native eyes to our shortcomings; he finds our "literature of self-criticism" a most penetrating and ruthless analysis of our failures; he finds the possibilities of a "community of free men" he places his hope in the march of ideas, which will profoundly affect America in the next 50 years.

Called a Monument to a Master Journalist

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: As a reader of the Post-Dispatch I congratulate you on the Fiftieth Anniversary of "The Voice of the People," the Post-Dispatch, a newspaper that will always be a lasting monument to that master journalist and humanitarian, the late Joseph Pulitzer, who was honest and fearless with many human and endearing qualities.

Replete With the History of St. Louis—Michener

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Permit me to offer to you and your associates my congratulations upon the magnificent edition of your anniversary issue. It demonstrates the wonderful progress that has been made by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in the 50 years of its existence.

This issue is replete with the history of St. Louis commercially and socially for the past 50 years, and it is quite sure it will be treasured by your readers.

Most Noteworthy Edition Ever Published Locally

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: May I extend my compliments and appreciation to the Post-Dispatch on the splendid issue of Dec. 9. It is the most noteworthy edition ever published by a local newspaper.

Much of the material is far too valuable to be available only in newspaper form, and it occurs to me that the special articles should be collected and reprinted in a book. Historical matter relating to our city is not abundant, and such a book should prove of great value to every St. Louisan.

ARTHUR J. FREUND,
Police Commissioner.

Greetings on Fifty Years of Sound Journalism

From the Illinois State Register.
Sunday the St. Louis Post-Dispatch celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its foundation with a magnificent special edition which contains a wealth of information. It is beautifully adorned with illustrations which reflect the present day near miracles in newspaper publication.

Sponsored by Joseph Pulitzer from the beginning, this great newspaper has at all times found its inspiration in the ideas and ideals which have made his name synonymous with probity and honor in the profession.

St. Louis has been fortunate in the character and ability of its newspapers, and among them the Post-Dispatch is the outstanding one. For many years it has been recognized as a distinguished newspaper, with an extraordinary influence upon the development and progress of the Mississippi Valley territory, and known and respected nationally and internationally for its broad, constructive program.

Its great fiftieth anniversary number exemplifies the high quality of this newspaper to the unusual degree. Great figures in statesmanship, jurisprudence, science, medicine, philosophy, history, religion, exploration, industry, literature and art appear among its contributors in an impressive symposium in consummation of the editorial purpose to present, "in so far as it can be foretold, the drift of civilization, whence it has come and where it is heading on."

The State Register, one of the oldest newspapers in this territory—having celebrated the nineteenth anniversary of its founding three years ago, extends felicitations to the Post-Dispatch upon the rounding out of a half century of distinguished service to its community and the nation, and sincere good wishes for many more years in the good cause.

"Finest Anniversary Number of Newspaper the Country Has Seen"

Editorial in the New York Evening World:
The St. Louis Post-Dispatch celebrates its fiftieth birthday by issuing the finest anniversary number of a newspaper the country has yet seen.

The declared purpose of this number is "to present, in so far as it can be foretold, the drift of civilization, whence it has come and where it is heading on." That purpose is carried out on so vast a scale, with such wealth of contribution from the greatest of living writers, thinkers and men of action, with such splendor of illustration, in a form so attractive and durable, as to make this issue something to preserve in libraries, public and private. In fact, so interesting and excellent are the pictures that many persons will feel the need of a book to keep and another to cut up for framing purposes. Moreover, the scope is international. Besides articles by President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, Henry Ford, Owen D. Young, Richard E. Byrd and other distinguished Americans, are others by H. G. Wells, Maxim Gorky, Dean Inge, Prof. Albert Einstein, Hans Driesch, Rudolph M. Holzapfel, Benedetto Croce—the full list sounds like a Who's Who of the world.

James Harvey Robinson, historian and philosopher, writes: "The Post-Dispatch is celebrating not only its fiftieth anniversary but the Age of Surprises." One wishes that Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the Post-Dispatch, might have lived to enjoy some of those surprises—including the contrast of that brave

LEAGUE URGES PEACE ON BOLIVIA AND PARAGUAY

Council, Meeting at Lugano, Asks Both Governments to Settle Trouble by Conciliation.

LA PAZ REJECTS ONE MEDIATION MOVE

Refuses to Send Delegates to Commission in Montevideo—Quits Pan-American Conference.

By the Associated Press.
LUGANO, Switzerland, Dec. 11.—The Council of the League of Nations today sent a cablegram to the Governments of Paraguay and Bolivia, urging settlement of their border dispute by conciliation.

The text of the council's cablegram was as follows:

"In my capacity as acting president of the council, I have the honor to transmit to you the following which was unanimously adopted by the Council of the League of Nations at today's meeting:

"The Council of the League of Nations, meeting at Lugano for its fifty-third session, expresses its full conviction that the incidents which have occurred between two members of the League of Nations will not become serious.

"It does not doubt that the two states, while by signing the covenant have solemnly pledged themselves to seek by pacific means the solution of disputes arising between them, will have recourse to such methods as would be in conformity with their international obligations and would appear in the actual circumstances to be the most likely to insure, together with the maintenance of peace, settlement of their dispute."

"ARISTIDE BRIAND."

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 11.—Bolivia has rejected an offer of mediation made by the permanent arbitration committee set up by the Buenos Aires conference, which provides for a permanent commission of inquiry to prevent armed conflict between American nations.

Dr. Fortuna Vega, president of the commission, which is meeting here, in announcing the Bolivian refusal, said that that country had both refused to name delegates to the commission and had declined intervention by the commission.

Paraguay announced that Eusebio Ayala, who headed its commission to the conference at Buenos Aires which failed to settle the boundary dispute with Bolivia, and Manuel Monte de Oca, Argentine statesman, would represent her on the commission.

Dr. Vega expressed optimism, however, that the dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia would be settled peacefully. This opinion was shared by Juan Pedro Pas-Jordan, Peruvian member of the commission.

Bolivia's reply to the commission was not made public, but Dr. Vega announced that he would lay it before that body for discussion.

Both Bolivia and Paraguay signed the Gondra pact drawn up at the fifth Pan-American Congress. The signatory nations agreed to wait for a year for its international commission to report on any dispute before preparing for war.

Chile Offers to Mediate; Also Would Remain Neutral.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 11.—A dispatch from La Paz, Bolivia, to La Nacion today said that Chile had offered to mediate in the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute.

The dispatch, which quoted a communication from the Bolivian minister in Santiago to the Bolivian Foreign Office, said Chile had also promised to remain neutral in case of war.

The Bolivian Senate and Chamber of Deputies have both voted confidence in the Government, the vote in each case being unanimous. The Senate resolution of confidence reads:

"The Senate of the nation protests against the Paraguayan aggression which has produced deep indignation and stirring patriotism and expresses confidence that the Government will comply with its sacred duties which are imposed upon it by the serious incidents and offers its closest co-operation."

The Chamber resolution was worded similarly.

The Chamber also took advantage of the Government's decree of amnesty to all political exiles and prisoners and decided to call upon all deputies absent from the country because of political opposition to return immediately.

The executive committee of the Argentine Socialist party communicated with similar bodies in Paraguay and Bolivia, pleading with them to use their influence to

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Conventional Fables?

It seems to be characteristic of the thought of any modern period—that is to say, one that is keenly conscious of having broken sharply, in important respects, with its past—to look upon its newly evolved theories as so new and startling that they are almost revolutionary. It is as though the final truth, the final truth of the final truth, is to be found in the "modern mood" wherever or whenever it has developed.

Several weeks ago this column contained some random remarks on "Swapping Illusions," and it was suggested in the form of questions, as a mark of appropriate humility, that our more advanced scientific theories might possibly be no more than expressions of a "modern mood" that conditions the thinking and the attitudes of all of us—the learned and intellectual as well as the undistinguished generality of us. Certain suspicious resemblances between outstanding theories and the general mood of the time were noted briefly, and many more of the sort could have been mentioned.

It is interesting to note what Oswald Spengler has to say on this question in "Perspectives of World History," which is volume two of his famous work, "The Decline of the West." All these "pictures" (world views or theoretical patterns) developed in the same man have the same structure. Even the history of plants and animals, even that of the earth's crust or that of the stars, is a false consensus and a tendency of the ego's being. The student of the animal world or of stratification is a man, living in a period and having a nationality and a social status, and it is no more possible to eliminate his subjective standpoint from his treatment of these things than it would be to obtain a perfectly abstract account of the French Revolution or the World War. The celebrated theories of Kant, Laplace, Cuvier, Darwin, have also a politico-economic tinting, and their very power and impressiveness for the lay public show that the mode of outlook upon all these historical phases proceeds from a single source.

"The picture that we possess of the history of the Earth's crust and of life is at present still dominated by the ideas which civilized English thought has developed, since the Age of Enlightenment, out of the English habit of life."

"This English type of causality is not only shallow, but also far too narrow. It limits possible causal connections in the first place, to those which work out their entire course on the earth's surface; but this immediately excludes all great cosmic relations between earthly life phenomena and the events of the solar system and the stellar universe, and assumes that the exterior face of the earth-ball is a completely insulated region of natural phenomena. And, secondly, it assumes that connections which are not comprehensible by the means at present available to the human consciousness—namely, sensation refined by instruments and thought—do not even exist. It will be the characteristic task of the twentieth century, as compared with the nineteenth, to get rid of this system of superficial causality."

What Spengler has to say about Darwinism may, when read out of its context, delight the fundamentalist; but it is to be feared that such delight will be short-lived, once such a reader has come to understand the special meaning of Spengler's statement: "I feel only in the form of actuality."

"There is no more conclusive refutation of Darwinism," writes Spengler, "than that furnished by paleontology. Simple probability indicates that the fossil remains to be test samples. Each sample, then, should represent a different stage of evolution, and there ought to be merely 'transitional' types, no definition and no species. Instead of this, however, we find a stable and unaltered forms persevering through long ages, forms that have not developed themselves on the fitness principle, but appear suddenly and at once in their definitive shape; that do not thereafter evolve towards better adaptation, but become rarer and finally disappear, while quite different forms crop up again. What unfolds itself in ever-increasing richness of form, is the great classes and kinds of living beings which exist aboriginally and exist still without transition types, in the grouping of today."

All we see about us impels us to the conviction that again and again profound and very sudden changes take place in the being of plants and animals, changes which are of a cosmic kind and nowise restricted to the earth's surface, which are beyond the ken of human sense and understanding in respect of causes, if not indeed in all respects. So, too, we observe that swift and deep changes assert themselves in the history of the great cultures, without assignable causes, influences, or purposes of any kind. . . . It is exactly the same with the events in the individual life of every person who counts at all, and he who is ignorant of this knows little of men and still less of children. Every being, active or contemplative, strides on to its fulfillment by epochs (that is, in turning points) and we have to assume just such epochs in the history of solar systems and the world of the fixed stars. The origins of the earth, of life, of the free-moving animal ARE such epochs, and, therefore, mysteries that we can do no more than accept."

AERONAUTICAL EXPOSITION

INVITED TO ST. LOUIS

Effort to Bring National Spring Exhibit to This City Made by Chamber of Commerce.

An invitation to hold the spring show of the National Aeronautical Exposition at St. Louis has been extended by the Chamber of Commerce.

An exhibition of aircraft and aviation equipment, which closed at Chicago yesterday, drew more than 100,000 persons during 10 days. The invitation to the Exposition Association states that the arena under construction on Oakland avenue, adjacent to Forest Park Highlands, by the National Exposition Co., will be completed in time for the show. It is also pointed out that the air mail field in Forest Park, across the street from the arena, is available for landing aircraft flown to the exposition.

Mr. William B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., will go to New York next week as the representative of the Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce to confer with officials of the Exposition Association and urge that St. Louis be selected as the scene of the spring show.

COMMENT ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY NUMBER OF THE POST-DISPATCH

Little poverty-pinched four-page first issue of the Post and Dispatch he printed on a rickety press Dec. 12, 1878, at it now nestles, in fact, between the pages of this sumptuous anniversary number.

Fifty years ago, five years before he bought the New York World, he found the St. Louis paper on his desk that the people would rally to a newspaper that offered them not only news but leadership, that watched their interests and fought their battles, even while it entertained them. His faith was justified. The Post-Dispatch prospered greatly during his lifetime. It has gone on prospering under the guidance of his son and namesake, who has never forgotten its platform. Until its fiftieth birthday finds it receiving congratulations not only from its own city and State, but from the whole nation and from the other nations of the earth.

The Evening World heartily joins in the salute to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and to its anniversary issue. The latter is worthy of the occasion and sets a new mark. It is a superb milestone in the march of a great newspaper.

Weighted 3 1/2 Pounds.

Says International News

From the International News Service report.

There was considerable comment today among newspaper men and newspaper readers of this section on the special 50th anniversary edition of 232 pages printed yesterday by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The edition printed by the Post-Dispatch, founded by Joseph Pulitzer, December 12, 1878, and celebrating the fiftieth year of the paper's existence, included seven color rotogravure sections, and articles by some of the world's most noted writers and scientists. The list of special contributors included President Coolidge, William H. Taft, Henry Ford, Lieutenant Commander E. A. Tamm, H. G. Wells, President Coolidge's article, "A Suggestion for the Presidency," was in advocacy of the establishment of a country lodge or retreat for the President, at some point near Washington.

The edition weighed three and a half pounds.

"De Luxe Edition—Two Years in the Making"

The United Press News Association Service.

A 232-page de luxe edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, commemorating the golden anniversary of its establishment Dec. 12, 1878, by the late Joseph Pulitzer, was published Sunday.

Contributors to the fiftieth anniversary number, led by President Calvin Coolidge, included former President William Howard Taft; Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister of Germany; H. G. Wells, Henry Ford, Owen L. Young, Richard E. Byrd, Dean William R. Inge of St. Paul's, London; Maxim Gorky, Count Keyserling, Prof. Albert Einstein, Michael Pupin and other distinguished leaders of thought.

The edition comprised seven special rotogravure sections, a reproduction of the first "Post and Dispatch" of 50 years ago and "articles analyzing the spiritual advance of mankind and the drift of civilization," as well as accounts on the "material progress and future prospects of the human family."

The regular staff of the Post-Dispatch put out the memorial edition, which required two years of preparation.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.

JUST as Josephine Baker, dancer, singer of chanceries, became a Parisian sensation, so has Paul Robeson, the colored actor and singer, triumphed in London this season. News comes to Broadway he scored the most brilliant success of any player over there.

In England, Robeson finds no racial prejudice. He is piloted to the best tables in cafes, invited to select Mayfair drawing rooms and becomes the guest of honor in the night clubs. Already America wants him back and Equity is deciding a dispute over his contract. He has suspended for a month and there were whispers he might be barred from the American stage. Up in Harlem his own people are anxious for his return, not particularly to prove conscientious scruples, but because he is the outstanding and best beloved figure of his race.

Along Lenox avenue he is king. Crows tag his heels in the manner of a prize fight champion parading Broadway. While his fame as an actor grows, he is best known to the Black Belt as a singer. He sings instinctively, having had but a few lessons. His concert tour Europe by storm some years ago. Robeson is the bronze of copper, with the figure of an Apollo and is 31 years old. He was graduated in law at Columbia but he seemed born for the footlights and turned his back on Blackstone early. He is married to a Spanish colored woman, also a graduate of Columbia.

His first conspicuous stage success was in O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Ways." Negroes say he is the only public singer correctly to sing their moving spirituals. He leaves them wet-eyed and moaning. His salary in England is reputed to be $1200 a week. While this is more money than he has ever made, it does not top the salary list of colored entertainers. Florence Mills at the peak of her earning power shortly before she died received $1750. And Bill Robinson, a feather-footed tap dancer, draws $1500 this season on Broadway.

PERHAPS no ball player was so heckled last season as young Andy Cohen. Yet he came through with colors flying and proved the closed. The place was known for a long time for the richness of its furnishings and excellence of cuisine.

WESTMORELAND HOTEL SALE

OF FURNISHINGS TOMORROW

Fittings of Hotelery Well Known for 28 Years to Be Auctioned.

Following Closing of Place.

The furnishings of the Westmoreland Hotel, Taylor and Maryland avenue, which for 28 years was one of the family hotels of St. Louis, will be auctioned off tomorrow, following the closing of the hotel with the termination of a lease to Joseph Gerardi, who died last March.

The building is owned by Mrs. Ida Longonetti and has been leased to J. T. McBride, who plans to remodel and refurnish it as a modern hotel by Jan. 1.

When Gerardi, a former manager of the old Planter's Hotel, took charge of the Westmoreland it was the home of many well known St. Louisians who maintained residence there until it first Jewish diamond star with a distinct box office following. His amiable good humor was a remarkable and clinching asset, and he met the bleacher taunts with an expansive grin. At the Polo Grounds one day a forlorn umpire screamed: "Cohen batting for Malone." And a bleacher boomed: "Casey leaving the park." And Cohen doubled up with laughter.

OVERHEARD in a theater lobby: "My dear, don't tell me you are still married, you did-fashoned thing."

A CORRESPONDENT writes me the innumerable Apple Marys who peddle fruit and candy from office to office in downtown skyscrapers and who are mentioned in this space recently were brought into activity by the late Russell Sage. His daily luncheon was an apple brought to him by a woman conducting a corner fruitstand. She began to sell to others. And thus the business grew.

THE venerable sellers who hawk pretzels from spiked sticks have only one profitable market, and that is around Brooklyn Bridge. No one knows why there are few sales elsewhere. Every once in a while the peddlers journey northward with their twisted, salted and shellacked wares but eventually they come back to the Bridge.

AFTER the same fashion the old-time candy lollipop on a stick has only one market. This is among the apartment houses on upper Broadway.

FROM a London paper: "A fine pair of moose horns have been sent to his brother and will be appropriately tipped. The horns, over six feet wide, were brought over as personal luggage being too big otherwise."

After reading it three times I am convinced there is something wrong. I've been having giddy spells and ringing in the ears lately, anyway.

AND a correspondent from Portland, Ore., began a letter arriving today with: "Haw anyone ever told you what is the matter with you?"

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

PREWEDDING parties are being arranged in honor of Miss Marcelline Reuburn, daughter of Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks, 6230 Wydown boulevard, and her fiancé, Henry J. Kaltenbach Jr., of New York, whose wedding will be an event of Saturday afternoon.

Tomorrow afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cushman of 4333 Ellinwood avenue will entertain with an informal mixed tea, and Thursday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Turner Clarkson will give a similar affair at their home, 6226 Northwood avenue. Thursday noon Miss Mary Sloan, who is to be a bridesmaid, will give a luncheon for the young women of the bridal party at the Coronado Hotel and that evening Mr. and Mrs. Francis Linton Gross will entertain the wedding party at dinner.

There will be three parties Friday. At noon, Miss Janet Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace of the Price road and another bridesmaid, will give a luncheon, and that evening Mr. and Mrs. Lindell Gordon Jr. of 14 North Kingshighway will give a mixed informal party preceding the dinner to be given by Miss Reuburn's brother, Tom Reuburn, at the Stack Club. In the afternoon there will be a rehearsal of the ceremony.

The wedding will take place 5:30 o'clock at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Edward Schofield Travers officiating, and a reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sparks.

The out-of-town members of the wedding party will arrive tomorrow and Thursday. The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Reuburn, are motoring to St. Louis from their home in Los Angeles and are expected Thursday, to be guests at the Sparks home. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gorman Lambert, of Chevy Chase, Md., who will be in the wedding party, will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maider of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly, 48 Portland place, have sent out cards for a dinner at the St. Louis Country Club next Sunday evening. The party was planned in honor of Miss Louise, Macy of Pasadena, Cal., who was to have visited their daughter, Miss Morinda Kennerly. A message from Miss Macy yesterday said her visit would be postponed.

Mrs. George K. Hobbittselle, 6430 Ellinwood avenue, in a hospital, is recuperating from a recent operation. Mrs. Henry L. Boeckeler of Asheville, N. C., formerly of St. Louis, is a guest at the Hobbittselle home. Her son, Henry Boeckeler, will come to St. Louis to spend the holidays with his mother, and later they will go to Colorado for the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Craig Frampton, 7214 Westmoreland drive, with their daughters, Miss Helen and Miss Clara Frampton, will depart Dec. 22 for Atlanta, Ga., to spend the holiday season with a third daughter, Mrs. Samuel Chandler Dobbs Jr., and her family. They will be accompanied home by Mrs. Dobbs, who will be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Olivia Moffitt, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt, 48 Kingsbury place, and Joseph Willett Holli-

ACCUSES HER SON OF MURDER

Mother of Pittsburgh Man Says He Killed Dr. H. R. Dapper.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11.—Andy Kotlar, 42 years old, a rigger in a steel plant, was accused by his 60-year-old mother yesterday of being the slayer of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, young physician, who was shot to death Aug. 26.

Kotlar denied implication in the killing and said he was at work the night it occurred. He was taken to the bedside of a sick woman who was in the office, the night of the murder. She said Kotlar was two or three inches shorter than the stranger who went away with the doctor after saying his wife was seriously ill.

The mother told County Detective Murren she wanted her son to "do the right thing."

BOLIVIA QUILTS

PEACE PARLEY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Bolivia withdrew today from the Pan-American Conference of Arbitration and Conciliation following efforts of the conference to settle the Paraguayan-Bolivian dispute.

Meeting here to draw up a treaty designed to lessen chances for war, the conference, through a special international committee, is now trying to patch up the Bolivian-Paraguayan quarrel before it results in serious consequences.

Even before the delegates heard President Coolidge's opening address yesterday, a move was under way to organize the machinery necessary to take up the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute. This produced results shortly afterward in the selection of the special international committee. Its members are Dr. Victor Maurtua, Peruvian delegate; Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador; Dr. Manuel Foster of Chile; Ambassador Gurgel do Amorim of Brazil; and Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State. Dr. Maurtua was named chairman and the Bolivian and Paraguayan ministers to the United States will serve in the event that they are designated to do so by their governments.

As the special committee was holding its first session last night there came a note from Bolivia to the State Department bearing on the differences with Paraguay.

It said in substance that Bolivia considered itself entitled to a moral reparation from Paraguay before conciliation proceedings should be instituted. The boundary dispute with Paraguay was reviewed at some length and it was intimated that Bolivia considered it had been settled peacefully. While the trouble had its origin in the long-standing boundary dispute, a clash at Fort Vanguardia on the frontier last week between Paraguayan and Bolivian troops brought about the immediate crisis.

The Government of Paraguay has authorized its delegates to the arbitration conference to meet with the special committee whenever called upon, but the Bolivian minister said he had received no instructions as yet from his Government.

President Coolidge in his message when the Pan-American Conference opened, called attention to the large number of boundary disputes among American republics that had been settled peacefully. Among those who heard the President were Mrs. Coolidge and Dwight Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico. Secretary Kellogg was named permanent chairman when the business of the conference began.

Patriotic Demonstrations in Bolivia Diminish.

By the Associated Press.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 11.—The patriotic demonstrations by citizens in most of the large cities of Bolivia during the past few days diminished yesterday. Business houses reopened and people returned to their work although intense expectancy prevails for the final outcome of the border dispute with Paraguay. The sales of newspapers have doubled since the frontier clash occurred.

The Government made public a second communique on the situation, the text of which has been communicated to all countries friendly with Bolivia and to the League of Nations. The note indicates that Bolivia will not send a representative to the commission under the Gondra pact organized at Montevideo to which Paraguay has appealed.

Joints Creaked and Snapped—Gives Credit to Weldon Tablets for Recovery

"For eighteen years I suffered with arthritis or chronic rheumatism of the joints," said Mr. Carson H. Hestley, who resides at 2602 Locust street, St. Louis 3. Mr. Hestley continued: "I seemed to have rheumatism in every part of my body, but the worst trouble seemed to be vere as anyone could have it. "I read about the good work Weldon tablets were doing for people right here in St. Louis and decided to give it a trial, despite the fact that I had all kinds of treatments without relief. I am glad to say that in a short time the pain and stiffness left my shoulders so that I could get my hands to my head, can now shave and dress myself. The creaking and snapping has left my joints and I feel like a new man.

"I cannot say enough in praise for Weldon tablets and would be glad to have anyone interested to call, or write me in reference to my recovery."

$1000 reward to anyone proving that testimonials are not genuine. Weldon tablets are not a mere "tonic" or, so-called, "general system builder," and unlike some remedies which claim to get you rid of everything that ails you, Weldon tablets are intended and recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only, and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ. Weldon is absolutely harmless and contains no dope.

The Weldon representative who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy, and gives out the 24-page fully illustrated and interesting book, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

tape on the key to make connections and then Berkner spoke on the radio telephone to Mason on the ship ahead, talking as easily as over New York telephone connections.

In a few minutes Mason sent back the information: "Radio compass bearings, 5 degrees; magnetic compass, 84; error, 50 degrees."

"Let's check our compass now," said Commander Byrd.

Whalers Give Positions.

He climbed to the top of the radio cabin where the compass was stowed, while a man stood in the door of the radio room to relay the message from Hanson, who, with the phones on his head, stood in front of the tall instrument against the wall, twisting it by means of a wheel. Back and forth he swung it until the signal from distant ships came in sharply and he cried out: "Mark."

"Nine hundred and twenty-five," called back Commander Byrd.

"Now we know that error. See if you can get one bearing from the Eleanor Bolling now and ask Capt. Brown what he makes as his true course. I think we can swing more to the south."

Peterson had been listening and held up his hand for silence.

"I have her now," he said.

The faint tick of the signal could be heard coming from a ship far below us.

"They say to keep on our course and that the line should be open fives which we can easily get through for some distance. If we get the pack and it seems thick, we should keep to the east, as it should be open there until we reach their position."

"Good," said Byrd. "There's the sun."

He leaped to his feet and made a dive for the chart room to get his sextant. It was only for a moment, for thick clouds were scudding overhead; but he caught it, standing at the swinging rail with waves lapping up white and curling and then dropping away under the stern till one looked down in a hollow, 20 feet deep.

Capt. Melville was only a moment behind him and got a "sight" also, and back in the chart room they worked out position lines which checked within a short distance.

When these were crossed with the radio compass bearings, they had a fairly accurate idea of their position and were glad to find that despite all the handicaps they were on their right course.

Back in the radio room, where instruments were whining, Hanson and Berkner were testing, swinging their compass again, checking it in every possible way, and between times calling the Eleanor Bolling to make sure the same results were obtained on both ships.

Having finished his "sight," Commander Byrd saw another opportunity when the sun peeped through a cloud, and took his sun compass up to the ship's compass to check the error. He found that the sun compass checked with the radio compass indication and was satisfied that the course was accurate.

Barometer's Behavior Erratic.

In the meantime, some lively meteorological discussions had been going on deck, where William (Cyclone) Haines, the meteorologist, had been trying to decipher the erratic behavior of the barometer.

The reading had been going down rapidly, and the whalers also reported a low barometer, as low as 28.95, which would have meant all sorts of trouble in more northern latitudes. But down here a low barometer seems to be normal, although it is the cause of alarms until the eccentricities are understood.

"I don't know what to make of the darned thing," said "Cyclone," "the other day when it was rising it blew like the deuce and now it's going down. But all the indications are that it does not mean a storm. The wind is in the west still, which indicates the storm center is to the south and arising ahead of us. When we were not sure of our course, we thought the wind was from the north, which would have meant trouble."

"I never saw a barometer act this way before; its curve is up and down like a snake, and that seems to be normal. But I guess we are all right."

Why Men Go Exploring.

Everybody hoped so and listened to Haines' discourse with interest, because to come up to the ice pack in a heavy storm, having ice under the lee might easily be dangerous. Amundsen, in a similar position in the Fram, was forced to turn head on to the ice and drive his ship up on the floes to escape being battered to pieces.

Altogether, there are many exciting moments in navigating these comparatively unknown seas, with a mysterious and vast extent of sea ice to the east and park ice to the south and wind from the west and north. But probably that is why men go exploring.

A wireless message yesterday to the New York Times gave the position of the ships of the Byrd expedition at noon as: longitude 179.27 west, latitude 69.00 south. This would put the ships 90 miles south of Scott Island.

Wife Sues Booker Washington II.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 11.—Booker T. Washington II was sued for divorce here yesterday by Nettie Hancock Washington, who charged cruelty. The son of the Negro educator who died a few years ago is a Los Angeles real estate dealer. Mrs. Washington alleged that her husband was sulky and brooding and that he failed to provide properly for her and their two children. A property settlement was made out of court. She asked for custody of their two children.

pressed by the country as they traveled from the sea coast to the capital. The special train bringing them from Valparaiso passed through fertile irrigated valleys where orchards and wheat fields intermingled with vast cattle ranches and dairy farms. They were informed that Chile was encouraging the development of her agricultural resources as well as the mineral wealth found in the mountain ranges, which extend from the northern boundary, nearly 2000 miles to the Straits of Magellan.

Hide in Gold-Decorated Carriage.

Hoover and the President of Chile rode through five miles of splendid avenues in the capital in a gold-decorated carriage of state. Lines of Chilean infantry, cavalry and police guarded the route. The carriage of state was escorted by a troop of presidential lanceros, carrying pennants of alternately United States and Chilean flags. The national anthems of both countries were played by bands in the procession. Airplanes droned overhead. People throwing flowers and smiling, crowded the sidewalks, balconies and roofs.

Hoover made a formal call at the presidential palace. Shortly after he returned to the United States embassy, President Ibanez appeared to return the call. Later the American colony gave a reception in honor of the President-elect at the Union Club.

The Chileans, who have been called "the Yankees of South America," turned out by thousands in Valparaiso and Santiago. Government officials said that the reception surpassed any that ever had been given here to a foreigner.

At Valparaiso, despite the early hour at which Hoover landed from the battleship Maryland, the quays were lined with spectators. He walked through lines of soldiers, sailors, naval cadets and police to a special train while national salutes were exchanged by guns ashore and afloat.

The salute from the Maryland also was in the nature of a farewell to Hoover for he and his party quit the vessel here. They will journey overland to the east coast and use the battleship Utah for the return northward.

Special Train Leaves Buenos Aires to Take Hoover Aboard.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 11.—A special train, including the presidential coach, which will bring President-elect Hoover to the capital, has reached Mendoza in Western Argentina. United States Ambassador Robert W. Bliss accompanied the welcoming commission on the train.

OUSTED BANKER'S LOANS CRITICISED IN REPLY TO SUIT

W. C. Anderson of Grand National, Answering Injunction Action, Tells of Mays' Alleged Methods.

FORCED PAYMENT OF $285,000 IS CHARGED

20-Story Building Project Abandoned—Plan to Enter Vandeventer Trust Co. Admitted.

A detailed answer to the injunction suit of Ed Mays, former president of the Grand National Bank, 507 North Grand boulevard, alleging that Warren C. Anderson, chairman of the board, and other officers and employees were promoting the interests of the Vandeventer Trust Co. a half block away, at 555 Olive street, to the detriment of the Grand Bank, was filed in Circuit Court today by Anderson.

The petition, prepared by the law firm of Anderson, Gilbert and Wolfert, gives Warren Anderson's version of the disagreement which involved Mays' requested resignation last June and the subsequent removal of the former president's desk from the bank room by order of the board of directors.

It denies Mays' charges that Anderson and others were soliciting customers and copying records for the Vandeventer Trust Co., with which they expect to become actively connected after Jan. 1, and asks that a temporary restraining order, returned on Mays' petition, be set aside.

The petition disclosed that the plans for a 20-story office building on Olive street west of Grand, to house the bank and the Continental Life Insurance Co., of which Mays is president, has been abandoned since Mays was indicted in June, 1928, charged with violating the United States banking laws.

Allegations by Anderson.
Anderson's allegations include: That Mays resigned as president because he had been indicted on charges of violating the banking laws.

That Anderson was elected chairman and William C. Johnson, president, "in order to protect said bank from the damage which the directors thought would result to said bank when the indictment of Mays became known."

That, previously, on the representation of Mays and his attorney, the bank invested its entire capital and surplus in an office building, purchased a tract of ground for $250,000 and spent $250,000 for architectural surveys for a building to cost $750,000, when the bank's capital and surplus was $1,000,000, and that, since Anderson and Johnson became chairman and president, the real estate has been sold and the bank has received all sums laid out in connection with the building plan.

"Obligations Were Defaulted."

That, since Mays resigned, there has been collected from Mays and from companies in which he is an officer, the sum of $285,000, in payment of obligations to the bank, all of which obligations were contracted while Mays was president and all of which were defaulted, requiring the employment of counsel to force payment.

That the new officers had collected $125,125 in payment of and reduction of other loans which had been criticised by the National Bank Examiner, and that all other criticised loans had been paid in full or placed in a satisfactory condition.

That, "through the efforts of Mays, said undesirable loans had come into the bank; that Mays was interested in other companies and other banks and used interlocking paper the value of which could not be determined; that Mays in this reason involved the bank in difficulties, and caused to be extended to himself and concerns which he owned and controlled, loans for hundreds of thousands of dollars, through various forms and guises, and through sundry devices, stratagems and schemes, such as loans to himself and to his interests, loans to persons acting as accommodation makers for him, loans secured by stocks of concerns owned or controlled by him, overdrafts to himself or to his enterprises, sales to his banks or trust companies of stocks in his concerns, and thereby used his official position in the bank to promote his personal interests."

"After the First of the Year."
That Mays repeatedly told various customers and employees that "after the first of the year Anderson would be out of a job and would have no further connection with the bank."
That, subsequently, Anderson made arrangements to purchase an interest in the Vandeventer Trust Co., at the solicitation of the principal stockholders of that company.

U. S. to Kill 2000 Surplus Deer.
OGDEN, Utah, Dec. 11.—Two thousand deer in the western part of the Kaibab National Forest of Northern Arizona will be killed by Government employees this winter and shipped to Indian boarding schools and western veterans' hospital for food, R. H. Rulledge, district forester, said here today.

The forest service and the State of Arizona have reached an agreement on the surplus deer situation in the forest, he said, to this effect. Over population of deer has been a problem in the Kaibab Forest for some years and resulted in a suit to test whether the State or the Federal Government has control, Arizona lost the suit.

AUSTRIAN DEBT BILL PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Burton Measure Providing for Settlement Now Goes to Senate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Burton bill providing for settlement of the Austrian debt of $34,600,000 to the United States was passed today by the House by a vote of 140 to 26. The measure now goes to the Senate.

The bill would authorize the United States Government to accept Austria's offer to pay either in 25 equal annuities beginning Jan. 1, 1933, or in 40 yearly payments beginning next Jan. 1. It also would permit the United States to co-operate with nine European creditors of Austria in making it possible for Austria to float a $100,000,000 reconstruction loan.

The bill drew the fire from Representative Garner (Dem., Texas), who contended it would bring the United States only 30 cents on the dollar. He asserted Austria could sell her bonds at 6 per cent while the United States was charging only 5 per cent and that it was "bad custom to begin to waive American people's first mortgage to a few international bankers who want to make a loan."

The House yesterday by a vote of 170 to 155 approved the agreement negotiated with the Greek Government.

The proposal drew stiff opposition from Democratic members who lined up almost as a unit against the settlement bill which now goes to the Senate for action. The settlement was approved after the House had declined by a vote of 119 to 127 an amendment proposed by Representative Garner (Dem.) of Texas to strike out the provisions for a loan of $12,167,000 to Greece.

The amendment was opposed by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the majority leader, who argued that the elimination of any section of the agreement would tear down the structure of the entire measure.

The plan of settlement involves the advance to Greece by the United States of $12,167,000 which that country would repay over a period of 20 years with interest at 4 per cent. It also would provide that the existing indebtedness of Greece to the United States, totaling $19,659,826 including interest, be funded over a period of 62 years.

The proposal was opposed almost solidly by the Democrats and with the exception of a few of the Middle Western co-called Progressive Republicans, supported by the majority party.

GANG BURNED TO DEATH MAN FOUND ON ROAD, POLICE THINK

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Dec. 11.—In charred clothing, some of which still smoldered, the body of an unidentified man was found today on a highway near Utica, Mich. Although there was a bullet hole in his head, Macomb County authorities expressed the belief that the man had been burned alive.

His drawn features and the presence nearby of a gallon can containing gasoline caused Coroner Howard V. Groesbeck and Sheriff Percy L. Moore to hold a theory that the man had been taken to the spot while still alive, his clothing saturated with gasoline and set ablaze. Their theory was that he had been tortured to death by gangsters. The only clue to identification was a laundry mark, "M. S." on the shirt band. The man apparently was about 40 years old.

LOANS CRITICISED IN REPLY TO SUIT

and that he intended to promote the welfare and profit of the Grand National Bank so long as he remained connected with it.

Anderson denies the statement of Mays in his suit that his stock holdings in the Grand National Bank are worth $100,000. He states that Mays' investment does not exceed $100,000 and alleges on information and belief "that whatever stock may stand in his name is hypothecated."

The petition admits that the board of directors, on Dec. 7, last, adopted a resolution requiring the removal of Mays' desk from the banking room, alleging in explanation that "on the preceding day Mays shoved aside desks of employees which were used in the ordinary course of business to make room for his desk; that because of the indictment against him, his presence in the bank is a liability and creates distrust among the customers who see him there continuously; that Mays continually tries to exercise the authority which he formerly had as president, and endeavors to coerce and dictate to the employees, and takes records from the employees and in other ways attempts to disorganize the business of the bank."

Anderson and Johnson, as has been told, are among the persons who have purchased stock in the Vandeventer Trust Co., which has applied for a charter as a national bank and a membership in the Federal Reserve System. New money has been obtained, increasing the capital from $50,000 to $125,000 and the surplus from $25,000 to $50,000. It is understood that Anderson, Johnson and other new stockholders will be made directors of the bank when the charter is granted. Anderson is a stockholder in the St. Louis National League baseball club and was formerly the Ford automobile district manager here.

THE NEW FORD HAS A REMARKABLE ENGINE

Value of simplicity of design shown daily in outstanding smoothness, acceleration, speed, power, reliability and economy. Low-priced car should not be complicated.

THE engine of the new Ford represents a new development in modern automobile engineering. It is unique in design and performance, giving unusual smoothness, acceleration, speed and power without sacrifice of reliability and economy.

Ford engineering has found the way to include every essential feature of good performance without the necessity of a high speed, complicated motor.

The design of the cylinder head is just one factor in this performance. Others are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, the carefully planned large valve diameter, the chrome silicon alloy valves, the aluminum pistons, the statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, and the simplicity of the electrical, ignition, cooling, lubrication and fuel systems.

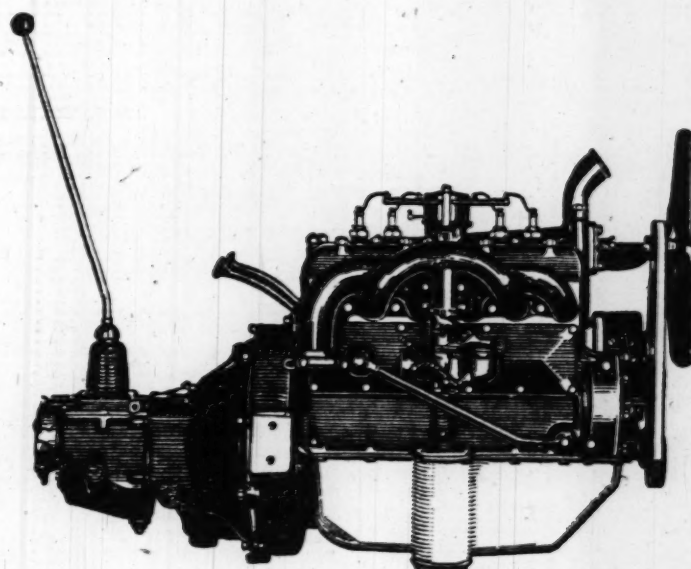

Engine mounting reduces vibration

Of special importance is the manner in which engine vibration is absorbed before it reaches the chassis of the car, thereby preventing unpleasant vibration periods.

This is done in the new Ford through the introduction of a flexible front end support that is both simple and practical—a truly remarkable improvement in engine mounting developed after many months of testing and experimenting.

Quality of materials and careful workmanship also have a great deal to do with the continuously good performance of the new Ford.

In the new Ford, for instance, the diameter of the piston pin is held within three ten-thousandths (.0003) of an inch. An equally close limit is followed in the hole into which the piston pin is fitted.

The weight of the aluminum alloy pistons is set at 17 1/2 ounces. No piston is permitted to come under this weight nor exceed it by more than 2 grams.

In the piston assemblies, consisting of piston, connecting rod, pin and spring retainer, the four assemblies in each motor must match in weight within a limit of 3 1/2 grams. Every piston assembly must meet the weight of the other assemblies in the set within approximately 1/8 of an ounce. Main and connecting rod bearings on crankshaft are held true to within three ten-thousandths (.0003) of an inch.

Unusual accuracy of manufacturing methods

It is of course almost impossible to conceive of measurements as close as these. They are achieved only through the finest precision gages in the hands of expert workmen. The master blocks by which these gages are set are accurate to the almost incredible limit of a millionth of an inch.

All of this care and accuracy is an indication of the fundamental thoroughness of Ford manufacturing methods. If a part should be made accurate to a limit of .0003 of an inch, it is made to .0003 of an inch. Margin of profit is made secondary to service.

The new Ford is distinguished by the trim, graceful simplicity of its lines and the beauty of its colors. Without being extreme, it has struck a new note in automobile designing. Shown here is the new Sport Coupe—one of the most popular of the new Ford cars. Wide, comfortable rumble seat is included as standard equipment.

Deep-seated therefore is the quality of the new Ford. You can see but a part of it with your eyes. Beneath the hood are countless invisible values. Summed up, they count for more than any one spectacular feature.

Because of the value that is in it, the new Ford is more than just a new automobile. It is a part of the life, the progress and the prosperity of the country. Our policy has always been to see that you get the very best materials—the most careful workmanship—the soundest design that can be built into a low-priced automobile.

Today, more than ever, the new Ford is the fulfillment of that ideal.

Rainstorm in California.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—The Central California coast was pelted by a drenching rain which was swept in from the Pacific yesterday by a wind that uprooted trees, snapped telephone wires and did other property damage. A man was killed in the storm and eight persons injured. Alexander Dewey attempted to jump from a cable car here when the gripman lost control and the car started on a runaway course. Dewey fell on his head and fractured his skull.

BACK BROKEN IN DIVE, DIES AFTER 4 MONTHS

Alvin Knopp, 14, Suffered Spinal Fracture Causing Paralysis, July 31.

After more than four months' helplessness, Alvin Knopp, 14 years old, died in Christian Hospital yesterday of spinal fracture caused by a dive into shallow water last summer.
His lower limbs were paralyzed, but he was able to talk to visitors, and to enjoy the use of a radio set, provided by several North St. Louis men who were interested in his case. Among these were Sheriff Stroudman and Elmer Sale. It was not expected that he would live long, and any improvement in his condition was pronounced impossible.

Alvin went with other boys July 21 to a pool near Tracy road and the Washburn tracks. He dived from a boat into water which had not the depth he had supposed, and struck a rock, fracturing the fifth cervical vertebra. The other boys dragged him out, his injury having resulted instantly in paralysis.

His injury, at the time it occurred, was made the basis of warning to swimmers against diving into water without certainty of sufficient depth.

Alvin is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knopp of 5617 Lillian avenue, two brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, from an undertaking establishment at 2223 St. Louis avenue, to Memorial Park Cemetery.

ST. LOUIS ARCHITECTS WANT TO DESIGN FEDERAL BUILDING

Representative Going to Washington to Urge That They Be Admitted to Competition Here.
A representative of the St. Louis Chapter, American Institute of Architects, will go to Washington to discuss with Treasury Department officials the manner in which architects shall be selected for the new Federal building here. They will urge that St. Louis architects be admitted to the competition for the design.

As it is considered likely that a site adjoining Memorial Plaza will be selected, it is felt that harmony of design is more likely to be attained by the work of local architects. Whatever is the location, the local architects feel that they should not be ignored. In Chicago, a competition was held recently for the design of the new Federal building there, and was won by a Chicago firm.

About 50 members of the St. Louis Chapter met at luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association yesterday and decided on the action to be taken.

For a Higher Tariff on Sugar.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 11.—The Domestic Sugar Producers Association, representing cane, beet and corn sugar interests in the United States, Hawaii and Porto Rico, adopted a resolution at a meeting here yesterday favoring a higher tariff for the protection of sugar. E. A. Burges, New Orleans, president of the Association, said the present tariff was 29 per cent below that of Cuba.

In the Past 9 Years

We Have Sold 9 Subdivisions, Consisting of 7115 Building Lots

These properties have been sold, practically 100%. From time to time, however, we were compelled to take some of these lots back for various reasons—some of our clients were unable to make their payments, some moved out of the city, and others traded their lots in for some of our other properties. So, in each of our Nine Subdivisions, we now have a small number of lots to sell.

These lots were previously sold at prices ranging from $350 to $800 each, but as we have only a limited number left to sell, we are going to sacrifice them for apiece and no more!

These lots are located in different parts of our various subdivisions and the best lots will, naturally, be the first ones sold. So, if you are interested in buying any at $67.50 each, and thereby save from $282.50 to $732.50 on every lot you buy, we suggest that you send in the attached coupon at once. The people who send in their names first, will have the first choice to select the best lots.

No Red Tape, and no strings attached to this offer. Any lot now unsold will be sacrificed at this low price of $67.50 each. And, remember, if you can prove that we will not sell these lots just as here represented, the $1,000.00 Cash award is yours!

UNABLE TO WORK; NOW WELL AGAIN; PRAISES KONJOLA

Three Years of Kidney Trouble Ended by New Medicine After All Else Had Failed.

"The very medicine I needed, the first place!" "This was the first and only medicine that gave me any relief!" How often these expressions occur in the homes of Konjola, the new medicine, that pour in, day after day, leading the achievements of the super-compound now to be had.

Mrs. G. Lefevre

"How does Konjola all these wonderful things I read about?" is a question often asked by those who know the remarkable record of successful super-medicine has achieved. Cases that have baffled every treatment and medicine tried. This question, and many others, are being answered daily by the Konjola Man who is at the Walgreen drug store at 515 Olive street, St. Louis. Konjola Man's mission is not merely to sell Konjola. Rather, it is to St. Louis to point out exactly what this modern medicine of 20 years ago means to all who suffer from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, or from nervousness. The Konjola Man, meeting through of suffering, does not deal in promises. He does not need to, for Konjola stands a bedrock foundation of triumph over disease; victories over that had been regarded as beyond relief. Those who would be cured, must want health, not pain. Those who ask for bread do not want a stone. Konjola is a medicine with a record unparalleled in the annals of health. What is this encouragement in the face of the happy experience of Mrs. G. Lefevre, 4004 Palm street, St. Louis, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"I feel it my duty, not only to the producers of Konjola but to you, sufferer, to tell what this remarkable medicine did for me. For three years I endured agonies of kidney trouble. An attempt to cure me, after sitting on a sofa for months, caused me to cry out in pain across the back. Sometimes required three or four minutes before I could stand erect. I had terrible headaches, my feet and knees were so swollen that I could get about only with difficulty. For more than two years I was such a weak and crippled creature that I could not even attempt the lightest of housework. The pain was not ejected by the weak kidneys lodged in my system. It was miserable all over. I had no appetite and had little sleep. Worst of all, nothing I tried seemed to help. I could not remember the medicines, treating and prescriptions I tried in vain."

"My son, who is working in Wayne, Ind., wrote me to get Konjola, and told me that he knew would help me, that he knew many, afflicted as I was, who found quick and lasting relief from this genuine medicine. You can see for yourself what Konjola did for me. I am better and stronger in years; free from every ache, pain, and my kidneys and stomach are strong as anyone's. This wonderful compound went directly to work. Within two days I was marked improvement, and day by day I could feel disease slip from me and health returning. I was absolutely well again in one month. Oh, that I had had Konjola three years ago; what suffer I could have escaped. I make statement in the hope that it will be the means of others giving up the chance to do what I did. So other medicine in the world."

The records of Konjola overflow with glad experiences. This, Konjola, strange as it seems, is at the very summit of amazing powers in restoring health. The Konjola Man today, will not be obligated, but will do your best to get the greatest benefit from Konjola.

The Konjola Man is at the Walgreen drug store, 515 Olive street, St. Louis, where he is meeting daily, explaining the working merits and powers of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at the Walgreen drug store in East St. Louis.

MORE THAN 3000 SEEK CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL BASKETS

Post-Dispatch Committee Is Checking All Requests Against Applications to Other Organizations.

More than 3000 applications for Christmas baskets have been received by the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Committee. The requests are coming in by every mail delivery, by messenger and personally. Each one is tabulated and then cleared for duplicates against requests received by other organizations and individuals. A file for this purpose has been set up by the welfare organizations and other agencies, under the direction of Miss Eleanor Hickey. The need for this clearing, members of the committee say, is that many persons are so eager for a good Christmas dinner or are so greatly in need of some kind of help, that they make application to every agency they know of, and thus send in two and sometimes even three and four requests.

All applications received up to Saturday night already are being investigated, and every worthy case will receive not only a Christmas basket but if found to need other things will be referred to the proper agency for additional help.

Investigators are making their rounds in volunteer cars. Among those who responded to the call for cars were LeRoy Kaufman, George Campbell, H. B. Farrell,
O. R. Garrison, and Mrs. G. E.
Millard.

Callers at Headquarters.
Headquarters at 1406 Pine street presents a busy appearance during the daytime. It is interesting to those in charge to note the different types of applicants who visit the place at different hours. During the early morning the visitors are chiefly working men who come to leave the names of friends whom they know to be in need, or to ask for their own family because the wage they earn each week is barely enough to provide necessities for their families and leaves nothing for any sort of a Christmas. Along towards noon the old people begin to arrive to ask for baskets.
These are the lone men and women who have no other means of bringing Christmas cheer, or who have dependent grandchildren, or invalid adult dependents, and who have just enough to keep out a precarious existence, and sometimes nothing at all.

The working women make their visits about noon, that being the only time they can spare from their daily tasks, and in the afternoon, from about 2 to 5 o'clock, of the visitors are the mothers of families. Sometimes they bring their smallest children with them.
Sometimes they come alone. But invariably they ask, not for something to bring just a touch of the joy that belongs to every child, but their own children's lives.

A Mother's Plea.
"I haven't a thing for my little girl for Christmas," one mother said, "and she's bound and determined that Santa Claus is coming to see her and bring her a doll.
Of course she won't have the doll, but I would like to give her something good to eat for Christmas and I can't even do that if I don't let it from somebody. After I pay the rent and buy the little we have to eat there is just about enough left for a little coal to keep us warm. This is a hard winter, and I would be so thankful for a Christmas basket, just a small one, big enough for us two, me and my little girl, 7 years old."

Here is a request that came by mail yesterday:
"Please be so kind as to send my children your Christmas basket.
They are John, who is going to be 6 in July, then Sam, who won't be 5 till next September, and Jerome, who will be 2 on New Year's day."
A long letter written by a girl 11 years old tells that her father is out of work and her mother sick in bed with a new baby, and there are three other small children in the family.

Subscription Lists go Out.
Knowing about all this sadness, the women who have undertaken the task of distributing the subscription lists through the city are all concerned to get the lists out and again so that other lists may follow them. These women, working under the leadership of Mrs. Marguerite Hopkins, Mrs. Eugene H.

Booth, Mrs. Louis Hambuchen,
Mrs. C. B. Kenamore and Mrs.
Everett Taylor, started out yesterday morning, and expect to have all their lists placed before this evening.

"If they will only bring us in them. "We just must have that

When and Where to Apply for Post-Dispatch Christmas Basket

All applications must be made at Basket Headquarters, 1406
Pine street.

Applications must be in writing, with full name and address clearly given. Also number of persons in family, and ages of children.

Applications must be in BEFORE 5:30 p. m. Saturday, Dec.
15. Those sent in after that time will not be considered. This time limit is necessary to enable the committee to pack the baskets in time for distribution the day before Christmas.

Negro applicants for baskets should go to the Pine Street Y. M. C. A., 2838 Pine street, observing the same procedure as that given above.

CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT IN PROPERTY DEAL DROPPED

Indictment Against Samuel Lowenstein, Real Estate Dealer, Dismissed in Court.

An indictment charging embezzlement by bailer against Samuel Lowenstein, a real estate dealer, was dismissed by Assistant Circuit
Attorney Lemon in Circuit Judge Hartmann's Court today. Lemon and J. Sidney Salter, attorney for the prosecuting witness, Theodore S. Florito of Chicago, explained that Florito had decided to withdraw prosecution.

The indictment was returned in 1928 when Florito, then a jazz band leader in a St. Louis dance hall, complained that Lowenstein had failed to deliver deeds for property valued at $7000 which he had purchased in 1925.

RCA RADIOLA 60

SUPER-HETERODYNE

RCA RADIOLA 60—Table model of the incomparable
RCA Super-Heterodyne. Finest receiver of its type ever designed.
Super-selective. Super-sensitive. A.C. house-current operation. $147 (less Radiotrons)

The broadcast receiver used by radio engineers in their own homes

THE Radiola Super-Heterodyne—finest achievement of the radio art—is the broadcast receiver that the engineers in RCA, General Electric and Westinghouse Research Laboratories use in their own homes.

Because of its super-selectivity and super-sensitivity, the Super-Heterodyne is used wherever the best possible reception of radio programs and messages is required.

It is used on ocean steamships in that wonderful instrument, the radio compass. It is used in marine coastal stations. It is used in high-power broadcasting stations, where reception must take place directly under the transmitting aerials.

The Super-Heterodyne meets two exacting requirements of radio reception—the sharp separation of programs in congested broadcasting areas, and the clear reproduction of programs from distant stations.

Developed exclusively by RCA and its associated companies, the Radiola Super-Heterodyne is in a class by itself. It not only embodies all the world's knowledge of radio design, but it has been made an amazingly simple instrument to operate.

When used with one of the new RCA Loudspeak-

CINCINNATI REPORTED BROACHING TRADE FOR RHEM OF CARDINALS

NO BIG DEALS ANTICIPATED AT NEW YORK MEETING TODAY

By George W. Daley
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Club owners of the National League today re-elected President John Arnold Heydler for another term of four years.

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Upon the word of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, and Charles J. McDermid, president of the Cincinnati Reds, 279,552 words were spilled by eight owners of big league clubs yesterday at the "preliminary" session of the National League's annual meeting. The spilling of more than four hours' words at the annual meeting to be held this afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria, will add to the conventional or controversial total is a matter of conjecture. But according to the best informed of the league presidents, the National Leaguers talked of nothing.

"We have seen Vic Aldridge and Russell Wrightstone to the Newark club on an outright sale," said McGraw.

"We will not let League of Duquesne go to any National League club until we get what we think they are worth," said McDermid.

Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, professed to be well satisfied with his third base prospects, Charlie Dresen, Joe Stripp and Rube Lutzke, formerly of Cleveland Indians. Hendricks also said the report that "Bubbles" Hargrave would manage the St. Paul club. He would pay a considerable sum to get Flint Rhem from the St. Louis Cardinals, but apparently Billy Southworth means to give Rhem the kindness treatment and get some work out of the erratic South Carolinian.

No protest on Bill Klem. There will come the regular meeting of the National League today when President Heydler will be re-elected for a long term of years and probably at an advance in salary. This probably will bring little out of the routine in the way of news. Yesterday, at least, there was no indication that the New York club have always thought cost them the 1928 pennant. The reported resignation of Klem may have stopped that. The report that the Brooklyn chapter stand pat on Wilbert Robinson as president also smoothed out a possibility of discord and debate. But the magnates found plenty to talk over, indicating the rising cost of baseball and the advisability of continuing the appropriation of $50,000 annually for the boys' baseball championship.

All of which did not interest the throng of baseball men who filled the lobby of the Waldorf. They were interested in the transfer of Aldridge to Newark. He goes there permanently this time. He was "loaned" to the Bears last summer after McGraw had tried of the futile efforts of the former Pittsburgh star to win games.

Wrightstone was taken from the Phillies and used through the year as a utility man. He rarely appeared on the field, but occasionally was used as a pinch hitter. When McGraw asked waivers on him in order to complete the Newark deal, the Cincinnati club held him up. The Reds also held up a request for waivers on one of McGraw's pitchers.

The waiver on Wrightstone was allowed but there is still a chance of a deal between the Giants and the Reds, in spite of the declaration that Lucas or Donahue will not be allowed to come this way.

The Pittsburgh Pirates hear that Lee Meadows has almost entirely recovered from the neuritis which ruined him last season. They feel that Carson Hill and Ray Kremer will be back for better times again, and they are debating whether to take Steve Swanson, the Indianapolis right-handed, who won the "little world's series" of no. It appears that the Pirates have the first call on the Indianapolis club and they must give up their claim before the Cleveland Indians or the New York Giants, who are almost sure to be after that pitcher, can buy him.

LYMAN NAMED TO LEAD JAYHAWK ELEVEN

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 11.—Steward Lyman, Columbia University junior, last night was elected captain of the 1929 University of Kansas football team. His election, which was unanimous, was announced at the annual Rotary Club football banquet. Lyman was an outstanding Jayhawk halfback last season.

Four senior members of the team, Harold Hunter, Marion Kan, Don Cooper, Winfield, Andy Olson, Stanton, and John Shannon, Holton, received invitations to join the all-star Big Six squad, which is being mustered to meet the St. Louis western team at Dallas, Tex., New Year's day, for the benefit of crippled children in the Scottish Rite Hospital there.

State and City Boxing Commissioners

Members of the State and city boxing commissions met here in a joint meeting yesterday to consider problems of the local boxing game. Part of the business of the day was the refusal to sanction the match between Young Stribling and Tom Tippet. Left to right: Jules Field, Herman C. Kralemann, Rev. Earl Blackman, C. L. Cunningham, A. H. Niederluecke, Harry Castlen, Ben Harrison, Field, Kralemann, Cunningham and Niederluecke are members of the city commission.

JOHN PESEK TO MEET STASIAK ON MAT TONIGHT

Paul Harper of Houston, Tex., and Roy Steele of Seattle, Wash., meet in the heavyweight final of four wrestling bouts to be presented by Promoter Tom Parks at the New Coliseum tonight. The Harper-Steele engagement is a return match, billed to decide a controversy which developed after Harper was awarded a decision over the Seattle grappler two weeks ago. Tonight's encounter will be wrestled to a one-fall finish, with Harry S. Sharpe officiating as referee.

Dick Daviscourt, Los Angeles headlock specialist and scummy petrels of the grappling sport, swings into action with young Nick Lutz of Chicago, in a one-fall tussle billed as the semi-windup and limited to one hour.

John Pesek of Ravenna, Neb., famed in mat circles as the "Tiger Man" and former "policeman" for Ed "Strangler" Lewis, makes his first appearance at the local arena in several months as the opponent of Stanley Stasiak, 240-pound Polish title claimant. The bout is limited to 45 minutes.

Cyclone Bobby Robinson, Oklahoma middleweight, meets young Billy Scharbert of this city in a one-fall event to be contested as the curtain-raiser and limited to 30 minutes. The middleweight event will start at 8:30 p. m.

Harry Willis, Wood River, is billed to referee the curtain-raiser, while Fred Vogel will officiate in the Pesek-Stasiak bout and Joe Sanderson in the semi-final.

CAMBRIDGE DEFEATS OXFORD 14 TO 10 IN ANNUAL RUGBY MATCH

By the Associated Press.

TWICKENHAM, England, Dec. 11.—Cambridge won the annual university rugby match from Oxford today by 14 points to 10. Matches between teams of the two institutions began in 1871 and have been decided as follows: Oxford won 22, Cambridge won 20, tied 3.

The university rugby match attracted a crowd of 40,000. There was an impressive silence when the teams lined up. The crowd rose and stood with uncovered heads while the band played "God Save the King."

WRESTLING PROGRAM AT THE COLISEUM

Peewee Terry to Meet Pudlowski

A flyweight match between Gilbert "Peewee" Terry of the Florio Olympic A. C. and Victor Pudlowski of the South Broadway A. C. was announced today by Matchmaker Willie Miller as an added attraction on the special program featuring Thursday night's amateur boxing tournament at the South Broadway arena.

Both Terry and Pudlowski are regarded as contenders for the Western District flyweight title now won by Cliff Doetzel. They both have earned point decisions over Elvin Regan, flashy Valley Park midget, in recent tourney engagements. Terry has not dropped a decision since he launched his ring career a year ago.

Champion Doetzel will trade punches with Jack Emerich of the East St. Louis Knights of Columbus. In another flyweight special on Thursday night's card, Emerich scored his seventh pugilistic conquest last Friday night when he defeated Woodrow Williams of the Tower A. C. in an East Side tourney.

Who Is Joe London?

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 11.—John Pesek, heavyweight wrestler of Ravenna, Neb., tumbled Count Zaryavoff, Memphis, Tenn., in 25 minutes with a toe hold, in their bout here last night, and won the match by default when Zaryavoff was unable to appear because of a broken ankle.

In a semifinal match, Joe London of St. Louis took the first and third falls from Joe Koper of Clay County, Kan., Tommie Miller and Harold Seeger wrestled to a draw. Ernie Nevers of Mulvane, Neb., refereed.

31 New W. U. Stadium Boxes, at $500 Each, Already Subscribed

By Jerry Bernoudy

While the schedule makers are busy drawing up Washington University's 1929 football program, members of the Stadium Committee are carrying forward the plans and work on the new gridiron arena which is to grace the hilltop campus by the time the next season rolls around. Outside of some preliminary surveys that have been made recently, no actual work has been done as yet on the structure, but according to Fred Armstrong Jr., who heads the general stadium body, the more intricate details are being worked out now by the architects, and the grading contract will likely be opened for bids within a very short time.

When interviewed yesterday afternoon, Armstrong stated that the financial drive was progressing most favorably in view of the fact that no personal solicitation had been resorted to yet. The first piece of mail in the form of an attractive booklet giving the general idea of the project was sent out slightly over two weeks ago, and has already brought in subscriptions for practically all of the 150 boxes that the stadium will contain. Thirty-eight members of the general committee, which is composed of prominent Washington graduates and St. Louisans, have signified their intention of purchasing the boxes.

A committee is now being organized to follow up the mail advertising by personal solicitation, and this campaign will probably be launched the last part of the week. The list of box subscribers at the present time includes the following: St. Louis ring indomitable, Charles M. Rice, Federal Reserve Bank Building; George B. Logan, 404 Olive street; W. W. Smith, 1214 Pierce Building; A. E. Black, 2308 Castleman avenue; Ernest C. F. Koken, 4540 Shaw avenue; F. W. Frazier, Arcade Building; F. W. Lehman, Sears Lehigh; J. S. Lehman, 408 Merchants Laclede Building; Otto F. Harms, 3015 Sherman; Alvin Goldman, 1700 Olive street.

VON PORAT TOO ILL TO BOX; MORE DELAY IN DE VOS-HUDKINS BOUT

By the Associated Press.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Dec. 11.—Due to the illness of Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight who was scheduled to appear here Thursday night, C. J. Henaghan's boxing show has been postponed until Monday night, when Caddy de Marco of Pittsburgh and Jack McCarthy of Chicago, welterweights, will meet in the 10-round windup.

A carbuncle on his neck will keep Rene de Vos, Belgian middleweight, out of the ring indefinitely, the State Athletic Commission announced today, in authorizing postponement of his scheduled bout with Ace Hudkins at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 25.

Originally Hudkins and De Vos were to have fought last night, but the Belgian reported he was suffering from a boil on his neck and a new date was set. Now it has been diagnosed as a carbuncle and Rene is out of action for an indefinite period.

Professing that he is not too ill to fight, Johnny Dundee, veteran former featherweight champion, asked the commission to reschedule his ban upon a bout with Al Singler, sensational young New York feather. But the sellers told Johnny he would have to fight someone else to demonstrate whether he had

TIPPETT WOULD MATCH FREAS WITH STRIBLING

By Damon Kirby

William Lawrence "Young" Stribling will be seen Dec. 13 in a boxing bout at the Coliseum, unless the Boxing Commission or its representatives undergo a change of heart. Promoter Jack Tippet announced late today.

After turning down Tom Pivac, local heavyweight and Johnny Mack, of Pittsburgh, an opponent for Stribling, the Boxing Commission today agreed that Young Stribling would be permitted to go on with Marty Burke of New Orleans, Jimmy Byrnes of Louisville, or Billy Freas of Chicago. Tippet stated.

Freas was to come here. "I have wired for Freas to be here Thursday for inspection as to his condition," Tippet said, "and if he measures up all right, he will probably be the man chosen. The records show that Freas twice fought Tommy Loughran, who is now being boosted as a heavyweight championship hope, and lost one of the two fights, each of which went to 10-round limit. The other bout was a no-decision affair.

Freas also fought Stribling back in 1925 and fought seven rounds before he was stopped.

"I passed up Marty Burke because Stribling has knocked him out in his time two or more occasions. Byrnes I could not get in touch with, but Stribling probably would not accept him as an opponent."

Harmonious Meeting. Chairman Herman C. Kralemann of the city boxing commission notified Matchmaker Jack Tippet earlier today that having the second possible opponent for Stribling would not be sanctioned by that body as an opponent for Stribling.

The meeting in which Pivac was banned, a joint gathering between the State and city commissions, yesterday, was marked by complete harmony, according to Kralemann, and Chester L. Brewer of Columbia, chairman of the State board.

In the future, the State and city commissions will co-operate fully, it was said. Next week the city commission will hold a meeting, and the State commission, secretary of the State commission, will attend.

Negroes May Appear. Mixed bouts between Negro and white boxers will not be allowed in Missouri, the State commission ruled. However, Negroes may appear against members of their own race on cards with white fighters.

The ruling was made at the request of Kansas City promoters. Due to the fact that the three State commissions live in different sections of the State, it has been rather difficult for all to gather in their meetings. Chairman Brewer was asked just how many times all members of the State commission were present at the called meetings.

"We have met together with all commissioners present or represented, about six times," he said. "Much of our business has been conducted by correspondence and through the secretary, Mr. Harshman. The Rev. Burrus Jenkins of Kansas City, who has been unable to attend meetings since an operation last summer, in which a leg was amputated, has been represented at the meetings by the Rev. Earl Blackman, his assistant."

Two Members Absent. Blackman is a licensed referee and is familiar with boxing conditions. During the war he was known as "The Fighting Parson." He attended the meeting here. The other State commissioners present were Brewer and Harry Castlen of St. Louis.

Members of the city Boxing Commission, besides Chairman Kralemann, who attended, were Charles L. Cunningham, A. H. Niederluecke and Jules Field. Judge E. E. Butler and Howard Stephens were the only absent members of the city commission.

Detroit Gets Uhle In Trade for Tavenner And Pitcher Holloway

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—George Uhle, righthand pitcher of the Cleveland Indians' staff, was traded to the Detroit Americans today for Johnny Tavenner, infielder and Kenneth Holloway, pitcher.

The trade was negotiated at the meeting here of the American League baseball magnates.

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—American League magnates opened their annual meeting here today and while nothing of importance to the fan is expected to transpire during the executive sessions, it is hoped that the lobby huddles may produce a trade or two that will raise the hopes of St. Louis baseball followers.

Daniel Phillip Howley, manager of the Browns, needs pitchers, an outfielder or two and a couple of infielders. The team finished third in the 1928 campaign, but was displaced badly by the Yankees and Athletics, and will have to make important additions to the playing personnel, if the Browns are to make a serious pennant threat next season.

Unfortunately, the Browns have not a great deal of trading material and that fact may be the big obstacle in the way of trades. Big league clubs are not interested in cash. They want players in exchange for players. Last season the Browns had several veterans who were used in trading. This year it may be more difficult for Howley to find listeners to his pleas. However, last year he proved there was a Santa Claus.

Check Book Is Ready. Phil Ball, owner of the club, is ready to use his check book if he sees prospects of strengthening the team. Bill Friel, business manager, and L. C. McAvoy, general manager, also are here for the meeting and will strive to land the players Howley needs so badly.

It has been announced that Harry Hedman will be placed on the trading block by the Detroit Tigers, and Howley, formerly a coach at Detroit, is likely to make a spirited bid for the services of the hard-hitting outfielder. Heine Mann, obtained from the Tigers last year, had a great year with the Browns, and Howley probably would be glad to take a chance on Hedman's ability to come back as a slugger.

Red Wingo, utility outfielder of the Tigers, also is said to be on the market, and Howley would like to land him. Wingo is a slugger and Dan believes that he would develop into a good defensive man as well, if he had a chance to play regularly.

ST. LOUIS ONLY SCORE OF GAME COMES ON FACE-OFF FROM CENTER POSITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 11.—The Duluth Hornets evaded their first series of the American Hockey Association with the St. Louis Professionals here last night by the same score the Missourians won on Saturday night, 1 to 0.

Duluth's victory was decisive. They outplayed the visitors by a wide margin in the first two periods, but were forced to play a strong defensive game in the final period to withstand a concentrated attack by St. Louis. St. Louis, in making, dropped the American Association hockey lead, as Kansas City won.

Like a Hole in One. The lone score of the game was made on one of the most rare plays of hockey—a play similar to a hole in one in golf. Ade Johnson, Duluth center, hit the marker late in the second period. It came on a face-off. With Johnson and Geyer facing, the Duluth center took a vicious swipe at the robber. Goalsman Anderson was taken unawares by the long, fast shot, and the pellet sailed through an opening into the net.

The score followed a furious assault by the Hornets against Anderson. Mitchell, Johnson and Goodman rushed pell-mell through the St. Louis defense. Goodman, hanging a shot off Anderson's pads, and Mitchell, clamping it back at him, sent two St. Louis players piling in with him. Captain Goodman protested to Referee Sills that a penalty should be inflicted on St. Louis for having more than one man in the cage, but the official waved the complaint aside. His action drew the ire of the packed arena and bedlam broke loose in a similar manner to that of Saturday night.

The arena ice was showered with debris, but Sills continued play. Immediately after Duluth scored from the face-off, Referee Sills made mention of the Hornets' play in the cage, but the official waved the complaint aside. His action drew the ire of the packed arena and bedlam broke loose in a similar manner to that of Saturday night.

Anderson Stars for St. Louis. The Hornets completely dominated the play during the first period, but only the sensational performance of goalie Anderson in the nets preventing Duluth from scoring several. Anderson played one of the best goal tending games ever witnessed in Duluth and tried his utmost to help defeat his old teammates.

Captain Goodman made his first appearance in a Duluth uniform since being injured in the first St. Paul series.

St. Louis Loses Taylor. It was announced after the game that Ralph Taylor, St. Louis defenseman, was receiving a 60-day suspension from St. Louis probably will get Valhelfinger in exchange.

Davis, Bergi, Merrill and Thorstensen were the best on the ice for the Hornets, while Geyer, Cameron and Hill carried the brunt of St. Louis' offensive with Headley and Taylor strong on the defense.

Lineup and summary:
DULUTH. Position.
Turner G. Anderson
Johnson D. Headley
Jensen D. Taylor
Johnson W. Cameron
Thorstensen W. Cameron
Merrill W. Hill
Spence-Duluth, Bergi, Mitchell, Thorstensen, Koski, Goodman, St. Louis. Schickels, Bohlsen, Lapointe and Acaster.
Referee—Joe Sills, Rochester, Minn.

First period: Scoring, none; penalties, none. Second period: Scoring, Johnson, from face-off, 14:12; penalties, Geyer, tripping, 15:00; Bergi, tripping, 15:00; Johnson, tripping, 15:00; Hill and Bergi fighting, all two minutes.

KANSAS CITY DEFEATS ST. PAUL TO TAKE LEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 11.—Kansas City was back in first place today, as a result of defeating St. Paul, 4 to 1, while St. Louis was losing to the Duluth Hornets.

Kansas City gave a finished performance in stopping St. Paul. They kept on top of their opponents and would never let St. Paul get started throughout the contest. The fans were brought to their feet frequently by exciting rallies.

NEW YORK POINTER WINS FIELD EVENT

UNION SPRING, Ala., Dec. 11.—Swagfield, a signal writer and former colored pointer, owned by A. G. Sage of New York City, won the Derby of the Southern Bird Race Trials which was run here today. Second place went to the pointer, Bad News, owned by J. H. Johnson of Evansville, Ind., and third to the pointer, Air Pilot, owned by Henry D. Whitaker of Hammond, O.

Billikens Leave
For Iowa Games

A St. Louis University basketball team of 10 players will leave tonight at 7 o'clock for a two-game series in Iowa. The Billikens play Grinnell at Grinnell tomorrow night and Drake at Des Moines on Thursday.

The same lineup that opened the first game of the season is likely to start against Grinnell. Capt. Ham Strong and Barney Oldfield will again be at the forwards. Drury will play center, and Joyce will play guard.

Letting a shot off Anderson's pad and Mitchell slamming it back at him. Anderson fumbled in his attempt to stop the shot. Captain Goodman protested to Referee Sills that a penalty should be inflicted on St. Louis for having more than one man in the key, but the official waved the complaint aside. His action drew the ire of the packed arena and bedlam broke loose in a similar manner to that of Saturday night.

The arena ice was showered with debris but Sills continued play. Immediately after Duluth scored from the face-off, Referee Sills made members of the Hornets pick up all the paper and other refuse in the ice.

Anderson Stars for St. Louis. The Hornets completely dominated the play during the first two periods, only the sensational performance of Goalsie Anderson in the third preventing Duluth from scoring several. Anderson played one of the best goal tending games ever witnessed in Duluth and tried his utmost to help defeat his old teammates.

Captain Goodman made his first appearance in a Duluth uniform since being injured in the first St. Paul series.

St. Louis Loses Taylor. It was announced after the game that Ralph Taylor, St. Louis defenseman, was recalled by Chicago Black Hawks. St. Louis probably will get Valhofinger in exchange.

David Bergl, Merrill and Thorstensen were the best on the ice for the Hornets, while Goyer, Cameron and Hill carried the brunt of St. Louis' offensive with Headley and Taylor strong on the defense.

DAHMAN ILL IN
SEEK NEW COACH

Ray "Bucky" Dahman, freshman football coach and basketball coach at St. Louis University, is in a local hospital under treatment as a result of a nervous breakdown. It became known today. Dahman's health has not been good for the past six weeks, according to Coach Hearnly Anderson, and a climax was reached yesterday when he collapsed at the gymnasium.

"Bucky has been trying to fight off his illness for more than a month past," said Anderson today. "But he became worse during the last few days so that he could neither eat nor sleep. He lost 15 pounds in the last month. I told him that he must go to a hospital for treatment and he has been granted an indefinite leave of absence."

Anderson last night wired Mike Nyikos of South Bend, Ind., former assistant coach of basketball at Notre Dame University, asking him to join the Billikens squad at Grinnell, Ia., tomorrow evening, with a view to taking over the duties of coach. Nyikos, said Anderson, has had two years of competition at Indiana U. and one year at Notre Dame. During the absence of Coach Keegan last season, Nyikos was in charge of the Notre Dame squad for three weeks. Anderson believes he will prove entirely satisfactory.

For Solder. Gelber and Helmlach played great games on the offense, while Joyce showed well on the defense. Drier and Duvie looked best for C. B. C.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—K. O. Christner, aged Akronite, who knocked the heavyweight title belt out of Knute Hansen's title belt, will make his metropolitan debut in Madison Square Garden against Jack Sharkey, Boston brawler, Jan. 25. The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds.

Christner sprang one of the fight season's earliest surprises in knocking out the highly favored Hansen in eight rounds recently in Cleveland. Christner is 36 years old and a terrific right-hand puncher.

To Boston with Walter Maranville will go Our hard hitting outfielder.

Compared to Jack Smith he's a little bit slow.

But his hitting is quite a bit sharper.

Maranville and Evers will furnish the brains and power to the team.

While Fuchs has elected to handle the reins.

On Sunday next summer in Boston they'll play.

And therefore the league will endeavor.

To make the attraction financially pay.

By sending them players more clever.

And with surplus material the magnates reply.

To the Beaneaters' and Macedonian cry.

U. CITY TAKES
SCHOOL HOCKEY

The opening of the Intercollegiate Hockey League last night at the Winter Garden was the scene of some wild scrambles on the ice, although the play in the second game was better than might have been expected from amateur players in their first start.

University City took the league lead as a result of its 2 to 1 victory over Chamaine in the opener. The nightcap ended in an 8-0 tie between McBride and C. B. C.

The participants in the first game showed lack of practice and while there were flashes of brilliance on both sides their newness to the game was evident. Chamaine scored first when Johnson, who was the outstanding skater of the game, dribbled through the University City defense to clip an easy shot past Toby. University City goalie, Six minutes later Atholston cracked a hard shot past Buz for the first University City score.

The game in its last period after nine minutes played when Barnes counted from the side. Four penalties were charged to University City, while a Chamaine skater missed but once.

JACK SHARKEY SHOWS NEED OF HARD WORK IN DEKUH BOUT

FLOORS HIS FOE BUT IS GUILTY OF FREQUENT WILD PUNCHES

By Leased Wire to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—Jack Sharkey, one time Boston heavyweight title contender, resumed his quest for the golden gloves and looking tame by pounding out a 10-round decision over Arthur De Kuhl, Italian heavyweight from New York, at the Boston arena last night. It was Sharkey's first time appearance in his home city in two years and a capacity crowd of 12,000 turned out to see him win a clean-cut decision.

The brittle hands that last winter converted the Boston ex-gambler to a boxer to a boxer were conspicuous by their absence to night, and although he seldom used his right for a hard blow he was leaving his feet as he drove home the lightning left, with which he piled up a big margin of points.

Eight rounds were clearly Sharkey's and the best that could be said of De Kuhl was that he held his opponent even in two. For the rest he was in a state of collapse, and while the ninth and tenth rounds saw Sharkey striving desperately for a knockout, De Kuhl, with his 264 pounds, was too stolid, however, even though Sharkey would 1934, a near record for him.

Sharkey showed the effects of the long lay-off at first, being guilty of frequent misadventure in the opening rounds, slow efforts and had timing but his left foot going in the third and a crackling shot to the chin sent the big New Yorker down for the count of nine in the sixth round, the only knock-down of the fight.

Another "Long Count." De Kuhl tried to box, but Sharkey danced rings around him, throwing lefts and rights at his head, and then telling him with a sharp left flash to the chin. The big Italian rolled over at the count of four and Sharkey closed in, thereby penalizing himself five full seconds until the referee sent him back to a corner. De Kuhl sat up as the count began again, rested on his knee until nine and clinched his way through the rest of the round.

De Kuhl lumbered up in the eighth, took the aggressive near the close of the round and pumped a stream of lefts and rights at Sharkey's mid section that earned him an even round. The flurry died in the ninth, however, and Sharkey went after him savagely, playing to the head for a knockout, but more often meeting elbows and shoulders.

Coach Miller stated that the most promising of the newcomers are the two Church brothers, Leon and Virgil, Charles Saunders, William Saunders, Isley and Frohardt. Others, of course, may be just as good or better, inasmuch as all did not have a good chance to perform.

PROMOTER JACK TIPPETT this morning is trying to think up an answer to the boxing commission's refusal to let him match Tom Pivac with Young Stribling. That young Apollo of the ring is willing to show here and, naturally, is not averse to picking on a tight like Pivac for an opulent guarantee.

But in order to give St. Louis a look at Stribling's pugilistic prowess it is necessary for Tippet to either pick an opponent from a list submitted by Stribling himself or to offer one of his own selection, at a cost which St. Louis "gates" do not permit.

If Tippet elects to choose one of the boxers named by Stribling he can only pick a low-priced, low-caliber opponent from out-of-town, one who has no interest in the match whatever except that of collecting his guarantee with the least pain and anguish possible.

If Tippet, on the other hand, should decide to name a resident opponent at a high cost to his already emaciated purse, he runs the double risk of having Stribling decline with thanks, or of going into his jeans pockets for his front, fob and thigh—so find the whereabouts to settle.

As a matter of fact, Tippet feels very much as though he would like to put it up to the commission to find an opponent for Stribling who will fit the public's choice and his own ability to pay.

It's an old, old problem and one that has not been and probably never will be solved. How to show Class A fighters to the public on a Class D income.

Commission Is Right One Way

THE city and State commissions were absolutely right in contending that Pivac does not figure to be a match for Stribling. The records attest it. Pivac is one of those earnest but misguided boys who seek the well known "chance." We all know that this, in the present case, is akin to asking a seventeen truck to run over him.

But since Pivac has expressed the wish to box Stribling and since the fight may not be fatal, the question has arisen whether the public would not like to see the event if only to view Stribling in action, with no expectation of an equal boxing contest.

Many more hopeless mat than this has been presented to the public in this and other cities without comment. We doubt if Mr. Heepsey enjoyed any more hope of victory over Tunney than Pivac would over Stribling. And there is not the slightest doubt that Pivac would carry into the ring more determination and fight than probably any of the opponents that Stribling might agree to name.

If the commission will provide the public with balanced fights, they will give their best at all times. It is surely conferring a favor on the public.

At the same time, it is undertaking to become the virtual matchmaker for every club in the State of Missouri, and it should also take responsibility for the success or failure of the shows it arranges—or disarranges.

Another Chance

IT is quite likely that the commission will have to pass upon a match here in which a champion is to figure—Sammy Mandell.

Promoter Gene Straus has been very eager to put Mandell on. But it is the old story of how to pay the champion and still take enough money in the gate to pay off a capable opponent.

St. Louis is not a $10 ring-side town. Such prices can not be obtained, at least without proper building up. And yet the public would like to see Mandell or any other champion against any opponent who would at least show resolution and battle.

In order for Mandell to appear here it is likely that he would have to be matched with a welterweight. He professes willingness to meet even Joe Dundee, the welterweight king. Musky Calahan, the junior welterweight champion, might therefore be a real opponent for him.

But the money consideration probably bars both. Thus, under present conditions, we are limited to dull mediocrity and worn-out veterans for our boxing cards.

The problem to be solved is whether it is not better, now and then, to have a one-sided view of a great fighter than no view at all.

Shoulder Pass Best for Long Basketball Toss

This is the eighth of a series of instructive articles on basketball, written for the Post-Dispatch by C. O. Benson, assistant coach at Washington University. Others will follow daily.

By C. O. BENSON
Of the Washington U. Coaching Staff.
No. 8—THE SHOULDER PASS.

THE shoulder pass should be a part of every team's system. It should be thrown when the distance is too great for the team pass to be used. It is essentially good for guards in passing out from underneath the basket to a forward at the center of the floor. For players who must throw some distance to a man free under the basket, this pass is excellent.

This pass is similar to a catcher's throw in baseball. The pass can be thrown farther if one foot is ahead of the other. The upper arm should be parallel to the floor and the lower arm should be perpendicular to the upper arm. The ball is held by one hand with the fingers spread. It should be delivered straight forward with English on the under half of the ball. Added momentum is given if the body and legs follow through into the next step. After the ball has left the hands the arm should point in the direction the ball is traveling. The pass is made parallel to the floor. Be sure that the arm is carried straight forward so that the ball will not curve. The shoulder pass is ideal for a distance of 40 to 50 feet.

This pass can be practiced by having the players form to parallel lines 40 feet apart. The ball is thrown across to a corresponding player. Particular attention should be paid to the form.

This is the last article on passing. There are many other passes used by various teams. Furthermore, each player will use his own original pass under certain circumstances. Any of these may be satisfactory. The passes described heretofore are essential to any team. They are the fundamental passes.

Next—Goal Throwing.

St. Charles Five Meets Ferguson

By the Associated Press.

FORTIFIED by the presence of three lettermen of last year's squad, the St. Charles High School basketball team will oppose Ferguson High in the first County League game at St. Charles tonight. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Burke, a center who stands 6 feet 2 inches, is one of the three veterans. Bacon, a forward, and Johnson, a guard, are the others. Bloebaum and Schell will fill the other positions at the start of the game.

St. Charles, which finished second in the league race last season, has scheduled eight games at home and eight away. Among the latter are games at Mexico, Mo. and Troy, Mo.

BIG 10 BASKET GAMES MARKED BY FOULS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Big Ten basketball teams appear to be bigger and rougher than ever.

Nine of the teams have played so far this season and in almost every game a near record for roughness was established. Wisconsin and Illinois started their campaigns with triumphs last night, but their eagerness tallied many personal fouls. The Badgers defeated Franklin College of Indiana, 27 to 19, committing 18 personal fouls, while the Illini trounced Bradley Tech, 46 to 29, fouling 19 times.

Dr. Wilce Says Good Bye to His Last Ohio Team

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 11.—WITH a flourish of rhetoric and a hearty smile to mark his true feelings, Dr. John W. Wilce last night said good-by to his last Ohio State football team.

Dr. Wilce's valedictory was spoken at the annual banquet for the team in the presence of 300 players, coaches, students, alumni and business men of Columbus. He did not say what his future plans were. No mention was made of his successor.

He praised the 1935 team as his "idea of an ideal team," and, Wesley Foster as the best all-around end he had ever coached. He characterized the year as the most pleasant he had ever spent at Ohio State.

The crowd gave him a two-minute ovation when he arose to speak and again when he sat down.

BEARS' QUINT IN LIGHT WORKOUT FOR PURDUE GAME

By Jerry Bernoudy.

Starting practice for their second Big Ten basketball game, when Purdue at St. Louis this Saturday, Coach Don White allowed his regulars to take only a light workout yesterday afternoon, while the second and third fives went through a long scrimmage. The Bears displayed plenty of pep following their victory over the Indiana quintet at Bloomington, and the Boilermakers are going to have quite a task on their hands if they are to stop the fast-stepping local toasters.

Incidentally, Purdue tied Indiana for the Big Ten title last season, and although the purple athletes cannot boast an all-veteran five like the Hoosiers, there are three of last year's regulars on the squad and a wealth of promising sophomore and reserve material. Chummins, a forward, and high point man of the Western Conference two seasons ago, Murphy, center, who made the all-conference pivot berth last year, and Hammons, a veteran guard, form the basis of this season's team, which is expected to be in the championship running again.

The Bears emerged from the Hoosier encounter without any injuries, but Ralph Kurz, captain and back guard, who was kept out of the battle on account of his injured knee is still in a such condition that White stated last night that he would not use him against the Boilermakers unless he should be forced to do so. Kurz has reported for practice every day since football season, but he has been kept out of the heavy scrimmage work.

Artie Eilers, business manager at the Hilltop institution, who returned yesterday from the Missouri Valley Conference meeting at Drake, announced that at the basketball interpretation session held

ILLINI QUINT WINS FROM BRADLEY, 46-29

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 11.—Playing a strong defensive and offensive game, Coach Ruby's University of Illinois basketball team easily defeated Bradley Polytechnic of Peoria here last night, 46 to 29, after leading at the end of the half 29 to 15.

Illinois played a close guarding game, which made it necessary for Bradley to resort to many long shots.

Capt. Ernie Dorn featured the scoring for Illinois, annexing six field goals and making good on two out of four free throws. Captain Mason led the Bradley scoring with five field goals and made two out of three free throws.

Illinois reserves had little trouble in downing Bradley Reserves yesterday afternoon, 40 to 18.

on Sunday only a few minor changes in the rules interpretation had been effected.

Tiger Quintet Practices Despite Flu Epidemic

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 11.—Twelve Tiger basketball squadmen six of them lettered veterans, will remain here for practice despite the closing of the University of Missouri because of an influenza epidemic among students.

Daily workouts in preparation for their opener, an exhibition with the University of Kansas in Kansas City on Dec. 23, has been ordered by Coach George Edwards. The Tiger squad, out yesterday to the number it will include all season, is composed of Justin Roach, John Waldorf, Marshall Craig, Herbert Ruble, Marshall Craig, Wendell Baker, lettermen, and Charles Huhn, Mac Gladden, Dick Morgan, Oliver Lindemeyer, H. Campbell and Gottfried Thielke.

Rockefeller Gift Used By France in Restoring Glories of Versailles

When Finished It Will Be as Marie Antoinette
Saw It, With Louis Philippe's Disfiguring
Alterations Eliminated.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

historical monument. It lives again. It is not possible to point out a single detail which is different from what it has been for the last hundred years except for stones replaced in the foundation, a new roof here and there or steam-cleaned marbles, but even these have been so discreetly handled that no ordinary visitor could say, except in the case of the marbles, where the old left off and the new began.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. has given the Versailles of the seventeenth and eighteenth century back to France. Of the $2,000,000 he donated for the restoration of Versailles, half a million has been spent on Versailles and more than ten million francs from the French Treasury besides, and the work of restoration is at least half done. The most expensive part, which shows the least, is finished. From now on the money will begin to show more.

Bonnet, the architect, and his assistant, Francastel, took me with them during an afternoon's inspection of the work in progress, and their loving care for details showed they were not missing a chance to put everything right for 200 years.

As Marie Antoinette Saw It.

"We are not trying to remake the Versailles of Louis XIV," said Monsieur Bonnet. "There were many changes under Louis XV and XVI—and historically they belong there. But Versailles was never lived in after the Revolution, so we feel privileged to get rid of as much of what Louis Philippe did as we can, and when we are through we are going to have as nearly as possible the Chateau as Marie Antoinette last saw it." Anyone who has ever visited Versailles will remember the statues of heroic size placed about almost at random near the main portal. They are out of proportion and, though a hurried visitor might not realize what jarred him, they "kill" Versailles.

They are coming down. The original balustrades, discreet and harmonious, broken here and there now by the gigantic square bases of the statues, will be restored so the visitor to Versailles of the future who is seeking the atmosphere of the past will be greeted by converging lines of balustrades which will carry his eye right up the middle of the court, to a short flight of steps, not there now, leading to the Marble Court, the center of the intimate life of the palace.

Building Saved From Ruin.
So far the most important work done is the saving of the chateau from going to pieces. Its damp walls have been dried by the boring of many thousands of holes now filled with an absorbent clay. The rotten stone—thousands of blocks—have been replaced. The roofs have been almost entirely covered with plate, where visible with lead where not. They were in such bad repair that the joints were rotten and the dampness was filtering into the palace from every side. The window casings were also entirely remade.

The casual visitor might not notice any difference. It was the architects' idea that he should not. When the marble court is raised—Louis Philippe lowered it—and the coquettish windows of Mme. Dubarry look down again from the mansard roof on the design of marble which old architectural records have made it possible to reconstruct and the French windows opening upon the court, the most intimate corner of the palace and yet visible for a mile to visitors approaching it, it will simply appear to be what it should always have remained, the durable testimony of a splendid past.

Undoing Louis Philippe's Work.
The marbles of the Trianon have also been treated by a cleansing process and it already has its original splendor back. The gardens of the Petit Trianon are also being restored and the hamlet of Marie Antoinette will be soon done over too. Her private theater is already being fixed up.

Louis Philippe did not do much damage to the gardens. He removed, however, a flight of stairs to the Mirror Basin, the symmetry of which will be restored by putting them back, the original designs having been found in the Chateau Library. On both sides of the wide steps were two inclined ways, made no doubt for the wheelchair of Louis XIV, in his old age. They will also be replaced. The steps having been of rough chiseled stone, they will be again.

While looking for the design of these steps and of thousands of other details, the sum total of which will serve to recreate the elegance of another age, the architects happened upon the design of the original great gates of the Trianon, and they will be restored.

Repairs Good for 200 Years.
By the time the work is finished—in a year or so—and the 21,000,000 francs of Rockefeller's donation as well as the 20,000,000 francs voted by the French Parliament are spent, it will be apparent to the whole world that Rockefeller knew what he was doing. The visitor then will feel from the moment he enters the outer court that he has stepped back into a part of the past that had an exquisite feeling for artistic effects. Everything will look intact; there will be no evidence of restoration. It will all be as fresh as if the visitor were walking there in silk and lace with his sword at his side. Instead of a dark overcoat and a hard hat, or plus-fours and cap. It will seem to have been kept miraculously unaffected by the weather, and it will not be difficult then—as it has been—to imagine the life of the great courts of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

FIVE D.A.D. IN REPORTED OUTBREAK OF MENINGITIS

Two State Health Officials Sent to Po. Jail, Mo. to Investigate Conditions

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 11.—Dr. Ross Hopkins, vital statistics chief of the State Board of Health and epidemiologist, and Dr. L. Laybourn, laboratory chief, have been ordered to Potosi, Mo. County, to investigate a suspected epidemic outbreak which already has caused the death of three children.

The first two deaths occurred last Friday and Saturday, when Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kessler were found dead at their home, near Potosi. Following was a third death, but later developments have led to the belief that the epidemic was the cause of their death.

Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. William Kessler, who live near Potosi, died Saturday, and two other children in the community are reported seriously ill. One of the local physicians who has attended the stricken children also is said to be suffering from the disease.

Dr. James Stewart, State Health Commissioner, said he suspected the disease was epidemic meningitis, which kills quickly. The two health officers, he said, would take immediate steps to stop spread of the disease.

YOUNG VANDERBILT SAYS ONLY INCOME IS FROM WRITING

Tells Court He Had Less Than $10 in Pocket and Can't Pay $11,000 Judgment

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 11.—Coronius Vanderbilt Jr., former newspaper publisher, said he owned no automobile and had less than $10 in his pockets when he appeared in court here yesterday to explain why he had not paid a $11,000 court judgment. The judgment was obtained two years ago by Edward J. Ralph, former executive of the Vanderbilt newspapers. Vanderbilt said his only income was from his writings.

Ralph had obtained the judgment against Vanderbilt on a charge that the latter had libeled him in an article published in a magazine of national circulation. The examination before the court yesterday was to determine Vanderbilt's assets, if any, and no further action was taken by the court. Vanderbilt denied that he was receiving any money from his family.

ST. LOUIS GIRL AND PARTNER WIN ENDURANCE DANCE

Miss Carmen Larkin and George Pleva Jr. Credited With 2064 Hours and 10 Minutes

George Pleva Jr., 224 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, and Miss Carmen Larkin, 4229 Lindell boulevard, were adjudged winners of the endurance dance at East St. Louis Monday night after dancing 2064 hours and 10 minutes, said to constitute a world's record. The contest began Sept. 15 with 48 pairs entered. Pleva and Miss Larkin were awarded $1500 as first prize.

Second prize went to Miss Bobby Steel and Leroy Ward, who danced 2064 hours, the latter being disqualified for strutting his partner. Ward explained that Miss Steel poured ice water on him and he became angry. The other pair then danced 10 more minutes to win the contest.

On Dec. 2 the contest was narrowed down to three pairs. At 2:10 p. m. yesterday Miss Agnes Powers of Detroit and Elwood O. Ormand of East St. Louis quit.

CITY LETS DREDGING CONTRACT
Chain of Rocks Job to Second Lowest Bidder for $44,800.
A contract for dredging 1000 cubic yards of earth from the Mississippi River bed at the Chain of Rocks was awarded to the Frazier-Davis Construction Co. second lowest bidder, by the Board of Public Service today.

The award to the Frazier-Davis company, which bid $44,800 for the work, was made by the recommendation of Director of Public Utilities Pritchard, who told the board that E. S. Willis, 6029 Clemens avenue, low bidder, told him he was not equipped to do the work and had bid too low. Willis' estimate for the work was $39,400, while the highest of the six bids was $157,500. President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service said Willis also had been a mistake in his bid and did not want the contract.

POLICE BOARD HEAD CAN STAY

The term of Allen C. Orrick, president of the Police Board, does not expire until Jan. 1, 1935. This has caused some speculation as to whether he would resign when a board, or would remain in the terms of the other members expire, next Jan. 1. Orrick has not made any definite expression on the subject.

If the new Governor, Henry S. Caulfield, should appoint new members to the other positions on the Board, they could, if they wished, elect one of themselves president of the body. In that case, Orrick would remain as a member for another year if he chose to do so.

For Dominion's Tariff Action
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 11.—C. M. S. Amery, secretary for the Dominions, told the House of Commons yesterday that every government in the empire is entitled to pass its own legislation with regard to a preferential tariff. He said the most to which the British Government was entitled was that a dominion call to its attention any aspect of the proposed legislation likely to affect British interests.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN 193D AUTO DEATH

Mrs. Cecile Beecher, 24, Hit by Fire Department Car Friday, Succumbs.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned today following an inquest in the death of Mrs. Cecile Beecher, 24 years old, who was the 193D auto victim to die in St. Louis this year. The highest previous number of motor vehicle fatalities in St. Louis in a year was 192 in 1925.

Mrs. Beecher, who lived at 2904 Enright avenue, died at St. Louis Rapid Hospital yesterday of a fractured skull suffered Friday afternoon when she was struck by a Fire Department automobile in Delmar boulevard. Near Vandeventer avenue, Acting District Fire Chief Thomas, Cody and Chauffeur William Dohrendorf, who were speeding to a fire in the machine, testified at the inquest that Mrs. Beecher stepped from behind a truck into the path of their car.

Four Hurt in Crash With Bus.
Four men were hurt at 4 a. m. today when a small machine collided with a People's bus at Twelfth and Broadway and Market street. Eugene Smith, 19 South Tenth street, driver of the bus, and James Campbell, 1427 Thomas avenue, were thrown through the windshield. Both suffered fractured skulls and internal injuries and are in a serious condition at City Hospital. Charles Wilson and Leo Cooney of 1010A Market street, occupying the rumble seat, were cut and bruised.

William Costello, 2803 Evans avenue, suffered fractures of the ribs, right leg and shoulder at 6:45 p. m. yesterday when he was struck by a machine at Grand boulevard and Easton avenue. The driver turned out his lights after the crash and sped away. Carter Broadwater, a Negro, 2125 Cookson place, was hurt internally when struck at Finney and Vandeventer avenues by a machine which failed to stop.

Miss Helen Hanlon, 2246 Big Bend road, Maplewood, was run down by a car driven by Alfred Prings, 721 Interdrive, University City, in front of 1224 Washington avenue. She suffered fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Nicholas Thoenes, 2176 Morganford road, struck by an automobile driven by Edward Van Rens, 2330A Connecticut street, at Fifteenth street and Washington avenue, suffered skull fracture.

Projecting Pipe Hits Boy.
Stanley Lonsky, 14, 2869 Page boulevard, suffered concussion of the brain when struck by a pipe projecting from a passing motor truck while he was standing in a safety zone at Page boulevard and Academy avenue. The truck did not stop.

Frank Cody, a lamp lighter, 2014 1/2 Wash. street, suffered a fractured right leg and internal injuries when he was struck by an automobile in front of 2119 Walnut street. Cody said the driver placed him in the machine and then put him out a block from the scene of the accident after taking a slip of paper on which Cody had written the license number of the car. Cody does not remember the number.

A woman who said she was Mrs. Elizabeth Linderman, 61, of 2883 Hamilton terrace, was cut and bruised when struck by a car driven by Bailey Wilkerson Jr. of the American Hotel as she ran across Hamilton avenue. Motorcycle Patrolman Cody Arnes reported that Mrs. Linderman ran in front of the machine as he approached to question her concerning the contents of a bundle, which she had placed in the center of the street. The bundle contained rugs, newspapers and tin cans.

Three passengers in a motorbus of the St. Sun Lines were injured this morning when the bus upset after colliding with a Kirkwood-Perguson street car at Easton avenue and the Hadamont tracks in Weston.

The injured, who were treated at City Hospital, are: Walter Green, 219 South Broadway; Mrs. Mae McShane, 249 North Eighth street, Kansas City, Kan.; and Mrs. Mary Myers, 1908 Norton avenue, Kansas City, Mo. All were cut and bruised. The bus, in charge of Chauffeur Merritt Lowdermann, was leaving St. Louis for Kansas City at the time of the accident.

THE PARIS MODE TODAY

As Seen at the Hunt and in the Mid-Season Collections.

Special cable by Pierre Le Baux, director of the Paris Fashion Board and E. Winifred Boulter, associate director.

PARIS, Dec. 10. ALL the riding world in Paris is thinking of hunting, and some lucky people are putting in five days a week with the various packs that hunt the extensive forests to be found within 50 miles of Paris. Last Saturday was the Mass of Saint Hubert when the hounds of the united packs of the Comte de Valon and Baron James de Rothschild were blessed in the little old church of Fleurance near Senlis.

The scene was a charming one with the members of the Valon Hunt in their royal blue coats, white breeches, gold braid strapings and red velvet waistcoats. The ladies wore the same uniform, but all riding side saddle, had bright blue skirts. The Rothschild hunt wear a lighter blue with bright yellow facings and waistcoats and gold braid.

There were many lady visitors hunting. These were black or navy blue side saddle habits with tall silk hats or black bowlers. Few wore the regulation "tenue d'hiver" which is dark iron gray. One practically never sees ladies hunting riding astride in France.

Comtesse de Castellane, who followed in a car, looked perfectly lovely in a very light pheasant's eye tweed suit with a tiny beige felt hat, bright yellow cashmere scarf, brown calf shoes and stockings of very fine wool in a small mauve and beige diamond pattern a little larger than that of the tweed.

Tweeds were very much to the fore in the country costumes worn by those who came to look on. Mlle. de Rothschild, daughter of the Baron Robert de Rothschild, wore a long coat of thick camel hair cloth in beige made with wide raglan sleeves over a beige and brown tweed frock. Her hat was a plain cloche of beige felt.

Many women brighten their country costumes with very spirited scarves. There were two pretty girls in grey and beige sports suits who wore navy blue boret basques and very gay scarves, in large block stripes of royal blue, white and red.

Cheruit, in her mid-season collection, devotes a great deal of attention to gowns for evening and coats for the daytime. She still concentrates most of the fullness of her dresses in front, leaving the back plain and flat which is a system to be recommended for its practical qualities. Many frocks are trimmed with tulle, notably those that are draped and hang in a point on one side. Madame Wormser made three pretty frocks rather on these lines for Mademoiselle Alice, Comtesse de la Roche-Montcaul, to wear in the Prince Bismarck's play "Quator."

Chez Cheruit, the waistline is decidedly higher, especially in some of the debutante dresses. This house uses a great deal of soft crepe satin in soft pastel shades. Cile satin is shown in black and there is also a good deal of black taffeta. Chiffon in pale shades also plays an important part in the collection. Cerise is the predominating color for evening, following a lead given by the beautiful Baronne de Stryke, who has a note of cherry color in all her gowns that are not actually of the color itself.

After all the talk we have heard about trimmed hats being necessary if the mode is not to die of inanition, it was interesting to note this week, amongst all the small curved felts which appear simple, though some of the shapes, that two very chic Parisiennes appeared on the same day in draped velvet berets each with a large crush of croch standing out at one side.

One was dressed in black with a cloth coat made with a cape back and heavily trimmed with black astrachan. Her beret was in two shades of reddish purple velvet, cleverly incriminated one shade onto another. The bunch of croch was really important and was in the same two shades of purple, standing out like a huge choux on one side.

The other hat was also a beret, but of one color, a pretty shade of "middle" blue, draped in a complicated manner and with a rather smaller bunch of blue croch at the side, as it was worn by a small woman. Her dress and coat was blue to match the hat and the coat was trimmed with grey astrachan.

This is most emphatically a new note in hats and the fact that both were seen on the same day, worn by women who are undoubtedly smart, proves that croch trimmings are to be watched.

Black lace is a popular fabric for restaurant dinner gowns. At Rue Embaury, in the Avenue des Champs Elysees, last night black lace was decidedly the outstanding fabric both for women who wore hats and those in evening dress.

One pretty French woman had a black dress with the skirt rising in a high point back and front over a white chiffon corsage over which she wore a long sleeved cardigan jacket of the same lace as her skirt.

The former Nancy Miller who married an Indian Rajah and became a Mohammedan, was there also in black lace over white with a draped black velvet beret with a bow at one side.

The lovely Mrs. Crosby was in black lace and chiffon with long dipping ends of transparent lace at the back and a bolero corsage of lace and chiffon.

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoffman.

PARENTS SHOULD VISIT SCHOOL.

A MOTHER asks, "What is the advantage of my visiting the school and should I go during open school week?"

Schools are always open to visitors, but during this week special programs are so arranged that show visitors in an interesting way just what school life means to their children.

There are parents who do not even know what subjects their children are studying and their children pass from grade to grade but neither parent ever meets the teacher. These parents do not realize that this means to their children. The records in every school show that the best pupils are those whose parents keep in touch with their school work and who co-operate with the teachers and give the school the support of the home.

The purpose of American Education week is to keep the public informed of the achievements and needs of the school and this information should be of special interest to parents and mothers in particular and they should feel free to visit the school not only this week but at any time.

Good parents manifest an interest in their children's studies, but they must visit the school to get an insight into present-day teaching. This will enable them to discuss the studies understandingly with the children and give intelligent aid when necessary.

It is a great advantage to know the teacher of your child. It will avoid misunderstandings and those unpleasant incidents that sometimes occur in the school life of misunderstood children.

It is an advantage to see personally the conditions under which your children work. It has been a revelation to many a mother to view her children at work in school.

A talk between parents and teacher will often iron out a problem that has been a handicap to the child. Parents and teachers both work for the best interest of the child and it is only through personal contact that each can get the viewpoint of the other. By comparing experiences Junior will be better understood by both parents and teacher and he will be the one that reaps the benefit.

The good moral effect upon the child who realizes his parents and teacher are pulling together is a great advantage and the mother who visits the school is showing her interest in his school progress. This is a great advantage because it stimulates his zeal. The mother's interest and co-operation with the teacher will be a strong incentive for best efforts.

Through personal observation in the schoolroom parents will better understand their responsibility in the education of their children and our schools need. Parents must encourage their children and the teachers if the education of the child is to be successful, and to do this they must visit the school. It is the child who profits by this and this is an advantage every thinking parent will want to give the child.

Stuffed Prunes

A nice dainty for the luncheon table. Wash and soak prunes in warm water for 15 minutes. Dry and remove stones. Place a marshmallow or a nut in place of the stone. Roll in granulated sugar and arrange daintily on a glass or silver dish.

The Correct Amount

When doubtful as to the amount of salt needed for pickling meats, place the water and meat in a pot and drop in a medium-sized potato. Keep adding salt until the potato rises to the top and you will find the brine just right for pickling purposes.

THE NEW ENGLAND TABLE.

THE New England table has always been the pattern of excellence that meant the best to early housekeepers. While the Pilgrims, and later comers, brought their prize home recipes with them, the new country opened unbelievable possibilities to them. Friendly Indians taught them not only the wealth of land products, but the vast supply of sea food in the waters about them. Right here was the turning point in New England cookery, where it started to be truly American.

With all the changes, however, the New England table has held its own and is still a model that every married New England woman takes to her new home with her. What is the charm of this table, some may ask? It is not difficult to define. First, its shining daintiness is its constant, not intermittent, fact. Table linen of excellent quality correctly hemmed and sized, also perfectly laundered. Silver and glassware gleaming, china well chosen and shining from contact with hot sudsy water and exquisitely clean tea towels. Foods perfectly cooked and attractively served. No matter how simple the home, the same care is evident about the table.

There is a pleasant feeling of plenty surrounding the New England table even in the thriftiest households. Most of the housekeepers look after their household well, do their own marketing, sometimes carrying their own kettles, and many do their own cooking, or oversee it closely when they have help for the tasks. This insures little waste of materials, which means economy in the feeling of plenty.

No man can bring in at the door enough money to pay for a provision housekeeper. However, there has been a profound change in the New England table in the last few years. The men have let their wives, it is true, well satisfied with the results in table and problems to the housekeeper, the younger generation are not so assimilated. The good public eating places in some of the failures. It is not hard to see, especially in the new homes and with as many of work and step savers as we manage, when we develop a taste for the old-fashioned homelike that made Monday our week-end and so on. It must have been for it still holds in an amount number of families.

THE SPINSTER

By Elsie McCormick

"I THINK you have a warped idea of the freedom and ability to wave steamship tickets inherent in our modern spinster," writes Mr. J. F. "I mean the fact that prosperous working ones, those who are employed by such establishments as publishing firms and who hold positions of satisfying responsibility in office and stores."

"Alas, they, too, are dead down to an hour and can wait whenever they have an urge to roam. These women have no time for the greatest joy of the average woman—shopping; they can't take a few days to visit mother or some girl friend; and the chance to take advantage of a particularly beautiful morning is entirely denied them."

Honestly, my private opinion of the modern intelligence has slipped since women have shown the foolish desire to be independent, which really amounts to changing the independence of the old domestic state for one of machine slavery as it is called.

"Adv. — If any vigorous young woman who prefers to earn the bread and butter would like to have a household as the first husband to submit freely to feminism and play the time of life on the pot and pans and kettles."

J. F. I think, has failed to see the alternative in the confirmed spinster's dilemma. For her there is not usually the choice between spending her life in spacious leisure and merriment, or in the tiresome task of an office clerk. If she does not become independent, she is all too likely to be occupied in washing small nephews behind the ears, and removing the sweaters of the confirmed potato number of unstimulating potatoes.

A career cluttered with office wrappings is considerably better than this dreary business of being an extra girl in another person's domestic drama. Alas, contrary to J. F.'s opinion, I believe that the fairly prosperous unmarried woman is far more likely to achieve a foreign tour than the wife helping to save her for installations on the furniture. Everybody who has been abroad knows that American teachers and business women are as numerous in Europe as six-inch butterfies in Guernsey.

Although employed bachelor girls have less time for shopping than some of their married sisters, they often have more to shop with. Statistics collected recently by one of these inquisitive colleagues brought out the fact that women earning $10 a week spend a larger sum on clothes than do the wives of men making $10,000 a year.

One thing which contributes to the pique of the American spinster is the fact that in this country the woman over 25 who has never received a proposal of marriage constitutes a rare specimen. In England the old maid usually reaches her estate because the village or county is as bare of extra men as a desert is of bougainvillea. One general Englishwoman, who was brought up in a little country town, told me that never once in her life had a man called upon her or sent her flowers or escorted her even to a church bazaar.

In America, however, such a woman would be somebody to crack with tender care and express to the Smithsonian Institution. Her almost any girl can marry if she is willing to shut her eyes and humbly take what Providence sends fit to send. Those who remain single are generally held back either by an impractically high ideal or by a field of choice that circumstances have made more limited than usual.

But it is surprising how even the admiration of a highly intelligent man brings about a rise in the recipient's confidence and self-esteem. A proposal from almost any source can save a woman from ever feeling again that she has been left to sit alone on the great cold doorstep of the world.

Usually as the years go by a lady's memory can be trusted to do a little plastic surgery on the image of her admirer. Carefully she smooths down his shoulders, and dresses him in beautifully tailored suits. Eventually he turns into quite a striking Adonis. In many cases this leaves her quite a bit better off than the woman who marries a highly unbeautiful lever and who is prevented by his daily presence from reconstructing him on lines more pleasing to her self-esteem.

A glimpse into that great repository of surprise and romance known as the United States census reveals the fact that this country contains 2,998,000 single women. In what series of caves, cyclone cellars, or abandoned wells these 2,998,000 keep themselves is a question for dinner hostesses to ponder in their leisure hours.

The census also shows that the chances of marriage or spinsterhood are influenced largely by geographic location. Females opportunities are poorest in Rhode Island and South Carolina (these being the two States in the Union where women outnumber men). Speaking statistically, the most favorable location is Nevada, where the masculine element of the population is nearly twice as large as the feminine. Two more charming preponderance of males is to be found in Wyoming, Arizona and several other States of the distant West.

But nowhere under the American flag is the spinster more popular than in the Philippine Islands. There every unmarried woman finds herself the center of a whirlwind rush of suitors and in

There's health in FLORIDA ORANGES

and there is Extra juice

The health is in the juice—and Florida Oranges are the best "juice oranges" in the world. They have more juice than you'd ever expect—extra juice! Rich, sweet, health-carrying juice.

And it's the juice that counts. For orange juice brings vitamins and mineral salts that the body must have for complete health. Drink orange juice every day—that's the urgent health message which doctors everywhere emphasize again and again, for children and adults equally. Orange juice combats acidity—builds up the alkaline reserve of the body which helps prevent colds, grippe, "flu" and other ills.

Be sure always to say "Florida" when you say "oranges" to your grocer or fruit dealer. You really ought to get that extra juice every time you buy. You pay for it anyway. And it's the juice that counts.

This advertisement is sponsored by the Florida Citrus Growers' Clearing House Association, an organization of Florida growers and shippers of Florida Oranges, Florida Grapefruit and Florida Tangerines. The Florida Citrus Growers' Clearing House Association, Winter Haven, Florida.

REMEMBER that the small Florida Oranges are just as juicy, just as sweet as the large ones—they're plentiful just now and very reasonably priced!

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
BUSTER BECOMES UNEASY.

Uneasy feet are bound to roam
And tread the path away from home.
—Old Mother Nature.

BUSTER BEAR was doing con...
...siderable wandering about. He...
...had to in order to get food. The...
...new home on the ledge was very...
...nice as a sleeping place, but there...
...was no food around there. Now...
...in his wandering about, Buster...
...gradually worked over toward the...
...farm where lived the pigs in which...
...he was so much interested. He...
...couldn't keep his thoughts from...
...those pigs. He wanted another...
...but he had the feeling that to get...
...another he would have to run great...
...risks. It was a question whether...
...the pig dinner would be worth the...
...risks.

Twice during his wanderings...
...Buster saw hunters with "errill...
...guns. He didn't know that they...
...were looking for him, but he sus...
...pected it. Each time he very soft...
...ly stole away and made straight...
...for his new home in the ledges. He...
...hadn't followed, for in neither...
...case was he seen. But from then...
...on Buster was more uneasy than...
...he had ever been in all his life...
...Never before had he been hunted...
...so. Being hunted gives one a very...
...uneasy feeling. Even when he...
...was in his new home up in the...
...ledges he was uneasy. He began...
...to think seriously of going back...
...to the Green Forest on the other...
...side of the Great Mountain. There...
...he would not be hunted, for Farm...
...er Brown allows no hunting in the...
...Green Forest. But to go back...
...would be to give up all thought of...
...a pig dinner, and Buster wasn't...
...quite ready to do just yet.

"If I can get just one more...
...pig will satisfy me. I don't like...
...back to the Green Forest, I'm...
...sir, that's what I'll do. One more...
...pig will satisfy me. I don't like...
...this being hunted. I don't see...
...why those two-legged creatures...
...want to make such a fuss for over...
...a pig. Perhaps they want to eat...
...those pigs themselves." Buster...
...never knew how close to the truth...
...he was when he thought this.

After that he became more cau...
...tious than ever. He no longer...
...moved about in the happy-go-lucky...
...way in which he used to. He was...
...too dangerous. He had the feel...
...ing that at any minute a bullet...
...might strike him. And, having...
...felt one once, he had no desire to...
...feel another. Yet, with all, he...
...couldn't make up his mind to leave...
...and go back to the Green Forest;...
...and it was all on account of those...
...pigs. That's what an appetite does...
...sometimes. Buster was letting his...
...stomach instead of his common...
...sense rule him.

One dark night he even ventured...
...over to the pigpen. To his surprise...
...there were no pigs in it. It quite...
...upset Buster. Yes, sir, it quite...
...upset Buster. He couldn't imagine...
...what could have become of those...
...pigs. The very fact that there were...
...no pigs there made him more un...
...easy than ever. As a matter of...
...fact, those pigs had been taken in...
...to the barn for the night. The

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By Helen Rowland

WHY WOMEN SUFFER
My daughter, wherefore was woman born to suffer, while man cometh into the world to rejoice?

Lo, the answer is simpler than a reducing diet and plainer than a tailored hat.

For, alas, woman taketh the world and all the people in it seriously, but a man taketh nobody seriously—save HIMSELF!

A woman doubteth and dreads what others may THINK of her; she cheriseth their good opinions and hudgeth them to her heart. But a man is concerned only with his OWN opinions. And, if he is pleased with himself, that is sufficient!

Behold, when a woman first meeteth a man, she saith in her heart, "I wonder if he findeth me pleasing?"

But when a man meeteth a damsel, he saith in his heart, "I wonder if I shall find her pleasing?"

Whatsoever a woman doeth, she saith, "I wonder what THEY will say?"

But, whatsoever a man delighteth to do, he DOETH it, and seeketh no man's approval and no woman's permission.

When a woman arrayeth herself in a new garment, she is filled with doubt as to whether she shall be beautiful in a man's eyes.

But when a man goeth forth wearing a new $4 hat, he is as one that cryeth, "Oh, look who's here!" And his heart doubteth not that he fulfilleth ALL a woman's artistic ideals and satisfieth her sense of beauty.

When a woman faileth to win a man's heart, she weepeth, saying, "Alas, how lacking must I be in charm!"

But when a man faileth to win a damsel's heart, he saith only, "How lacking must she be in sense! For, verily, she knoweth not her own mind. Yes, she is blind to her own good luck!"

Thus my Daughter, doth a woman elect herself The World's Champion Worrier.

Verily, verily, conceit is as a raincoat, off which the opinions of others roll as water; but a woman's vanity is as chiffon, through which EVERYTHING penetrates! Hence is woman the Suffering Sex! SELAH.

The Exciting Story of a Young Salesman Who Opened a Mysterious Door and Found a Fortune Awaiting Him.

INSTALLMENT II.

PROLOGUE (Continued).
(Martin Barnes, commercial traveler, stopping to admire a curious door in an unfrequented street of a cathedral town, is astounded to see it swing open and hear a voice calling him inside, where he becomes the principal actor in a family drama.)

MARTIN BARNES hesitated. Perhaps at that moment there was kindled in his imagination some spark of that love of adventure which he certainly gave evidence in later life. He stepped into the hall and waited while the heavy door was closed behind him. "Will you come this way, sir?"

With the sober dignified air of his class, the butler led the way down the hall, then open the door of a room on the left, and stood on one side to allow Martin to enter. In a simple phrase he placed the visitor.

"The young man, my Lord," he announced.
The door closed behind him, and Martin gazed. It was a room such as he had never seen before—a dining room paneled from waistcoat to ceiling in ancient black oak, for the most part unadorned but with here and there an oil painting let in, surrounded by a shaded electric light. At a round table four men had apparently been dining. There were decanters of wine and wonderful glass standing upon the polished table, dishes of fruit and nuts, and a profusion of flowers. The four men all wore dinner clothes and possessed the air of having just concluded some heated discussion. They studied the newcomer with a curiosity which seemed to him entirely inexplicable, and which succeeded in rendering him to the last degree self-conscious. He stood twirling his tweed cap in his fingers, looking about him in perplexity—a tall, broad-shouldered young man, with pleasant face, mildly freckled complexion, a good nose and jaw, eyes from which a gleam of humor was seldom absent, and a mass of light-colored hair which grew too thickly to lend itself readily to control. His other features were without any special distinction but not displeasing. His carriage, under ordinary circumstances, repaid him for a good many hours spent in the gymnasium.

"I say, what am I here for?" he asked, finding words at last. "I was just passing down the street when the door opened and I was told to come in. I don't know any of you. I haven't any business here."

The man whom Martin had rightly divined to be host, rose to his feet. He was taller than he had seemed when seated and his voice, notwithstanding its slight drawl, was unexpectedly pleasant.

"You are here at my special request," he announced. "I am exceedingly obliged to you for coming. Permit me to introduce myself. My name is Ardington. Will you take a seat and drink a glass of wine with us?"

Martin hesitated for a moment, then moved slowly forward. The man on his host's left-hand side rose and drew up a chair, in which the newly arrived guest uneasily seated himself.

"My apologies are due to you for this interference with your evening and also an explanation which I shall presently offer," the host of the party continued. "Pray, let me fill your glass. Mr.—by-the-by, what is your name?"

"Barnes—Martin Barnes," he answered.
"Mr. Martin Barnes—excellent! And now to commence our acquaintance, which I trust may be a lasting one, let me ask you a great favor. Would you mind extinguishing that cigarette, which appears to be of a brand with which I am not familiar, until after you have drunk your wine?"

Fortune Wayfarer—Dr. Heisby on my right here, my physician—Mr. Borden, by your side, my lawyer—and facing me, a young man known very well in certain circles of modern life as Gerry Gannham, but more formally designated the Honorable Gerald Gannham—my nephew and the heir to my estate.
"Is all this part of the joke?" the young man in question sneered. "You are very hard to convince, my dear Gerald," his uncle complained, "but I can assure you that the joke does not exist. The only person in a position to extract any element of humor from tonight's proceedings will be myself. Now, my dear Mr.—Mr. Barnes, let me further confide to you the somewhat distressing information that in all probability within a week from this date I shall be dead. You will find no one here likely to dispute my statement—my doctor less than anyone. You are probably too sensible a young man to have made an intimate study of the perlage, and you are therefore not aware that for a twelfth holder of the title, I am singularly devoid of relatives. My nephew, the young man opposite, is my heir. Lord Ardington here, possibly will be by no means a bad means can I rob him of the title, but in these, probably the last days of my life, I find myself forced to remember that in every possible manner my gracious nephew has displaced and angered me."

The Honorable Gerald kept silent with an evident effort at self-restraint. His uncle sighed as though a little disappointed that he had failed to elicit a retort.
"Look here, we don't seem to be getting on," Martin Barnes ventured. "I still don't see why I'm here or how all this concerns me." "Everything shall be made clear directly," Lord Ardington promised. "I am not a rich man, Mr. Martin Barnes; I am, in fact, for my rank in life, a singularly poor one, but such money as I have to benefit that young man who is now looking at me so murderously from the other end of the table. I have no near relatives unless you, to that category an adopted daughter, who is already provided for, and I have decided, therefore, to dispose of certain moneys which would otherwise come into the estate by deed of gift. Mr. Borden, if you please."

The lawyer drew reluctantly from his pocket and placed upon the table a thick sealed packet.
"Inside that," Lord Ardington continued, pointing toward it, "are bank notes to the value of eighty thousand pounds. Not a large sum, Mr. Barnes, but I trust you will agree with me a very pleasant sum to own. To pick up the trend of our conversation, you will remember that I told you of my intention to dispose of some portion of my estate by deed of gift. But to whom? I imagine, perhaps, that I may be an old man grown out of touch with the times, but the regrettable fact remains that there is scarcely one of my few relatives with whom I am on speaking terms with the exception of a niece who flatly refuses to accept anything from me. I come to consider the question of charity. Mr. Barnes, I have been an unflinching opponent of all charitable institutions throughout my life. Hospitals, I have always argued, should be State-endowed. I will not, however, open up that question as it does not strike my present fancy for long upon my patience for I have found myself faced with this fact: I know of no living person, nor have I interest in any institution, which I would care to have profit by this sum of money."

Martin Barnes was listening in earnest now. In a state of strain, his face gave evidence of qualities more or less latent. Its pallor became white. The tension of his expression gave emphasis to his not unattractive features. His eyes, though light in color, were singularly bright and clear.
"All my life," the speaker proceeded, "I have been called a far-seer. In my last few hours I have determined to live up to my reputation. I have instructed my lawyer to bring here in bank notes that portion of property of which I desire to dispose—or, shall I say, what I desire to keep from the covetous hands of my nephew. I announced some half an hour ago my intention to these gentlemen of presenting that sum by deed of gift to the first person whose footstep I should hear passing down the street."

Lord Ardington paused and sipped his wine deliberately, raised the right-hand glass toward the light, studied it for a moment and drank the remainder of its contents. Meanwhile not a word had been spoken. Martin Barnes was scarcely conscious of his own physical whereabouts. The power of speech was denied him. His whole attention was riveted upon the man by his side.

The Michellin broadcast over KWK will begin at 7:30.

A twenty-minute "thriller," W. W. Jacob's one-act playlet, "The Monkey's Paw," will be the central feature of the Eveready Hour.

With flashes of stark melodrama, and culminating in a wild climax, "The Monkey's Paw" provides in concentrated form the thrills and emotional crises that theatergoers have come to associate with such full length plays as "The Bat" and "The Thirteenth Chair."

The Three-in-One Theater hour is scheduled to begin over KWK at 8 o'clock.

The United Light Opera Company will sing "The Pretty Persian," an operetta in three acts, over KMOX at 8 o'clock.

The Dutch Masters Minstrels will give a program of by-gone minstrel airs over KWK at 8 o'clock, as follows:

Rocked in the Cradle of the Dawn..... Herbert
When the Moon Shines Down..... Herbert
The World Go By..... Herbert

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

Q. E. S.—Get the value of German money of recent date from a bank which has a department of foreign exchange, such as the First National Bank, St. Louis.

HANNAH.—Write the Naturalization Office, Customs House, Eighth and Olive streets, St. Louis, for directions as to how to become a citizen.

A. P.—The dates you ask about do not mark any particular action in connection with prohibition. Jan. 16, 1933, is the date the Secretary of State proclaimed adoption of the eighteenth amendment, by the necessary 28 states. He proclaimed it in effect as the law of the land Jan. 16, 1933. In the meantime the Volstead enactment was passed, final action on this being Oct. 19, 1933.

ELI.—The Blanks Coffee Co. of St. Louis served coffee and bread.

LEGAL INFORMATION
(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

MRS. L. S.—There is no liability on the part of the seller in your case, unless the machine was defective.

WABASH.—As to suing for a gambling debt, a suit could be filed, but the defendant would have a good defense against this. One could be sued for a season bill before prohibition, as you ask.

BELLEVIEW MAN.—(1) The contract, without a money deposit back on his contract if his wife did not approve the deal unless the contract so provided.

Y. H.—The license could not be issued on New Year's day, but the marriage performed on that day would be legal.

H. L.—You have no right to collect from the part of the young man is working for, unless the tenant is willing for you to do so.

A. READER.—In marrying an alien 27 years ago you lost your citizenship and cannot vote. Write the Naturalization Office, Customs House, Eighth and Olive streets, in regard to regaining the same.

RESCRIBER.—In connection with the article published Nov. 12, about which you ask, the city will pay for the widening and

HEALTH AND SANITATION QUESTIONS
Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of diseases, the description of specimens mentioned would be absolutely necessary for a physician to diagnose the case of your husband. It is customary to furnish the names of private physicians if you are stamped, addressed envelope for them. Specimens will be examined free of charge by the city bacteriologist, room 25 Municipal Court Building, Fourth and Market streets. If sent by a registered physician or doctor of the Health Department.

LAURA.—If the condition is due to catarrh, as you think it is, it may be said here that curing catarrh is by no means always possible with any form of home treatment. For the best results, have the treatment of a specialist. If you wish someone recommended, send a stamped, addressed envelope, repeating the reason. Do not overlook the fact that a bad breath may be due to other conditions, as pyorrhea, sinus trouble, to the jobless and homeless in December, 1931. See news item of Dec. 11, Post-Dispatch files, at the public library if necessary. You could find when and where New York papers were conducted in New York City Directory there and write one of the social service organizations asking about it.

DAILY READER.—Write the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Raising Domestic Rabbits, bulletin No. 4, also ask for leaflet RI-885-5-26, Chinchilla Rabbits for Meat and Fur. Ask for any other bulletins on fur-bearing animals, and on raising herbs, such as chives. See the advertising in magazines of outdoor life, such as the "Country Club," for occasional advertising about books on herbs.

TWO HELD IN ALLEGED PLOT TO BLOW UP HOOVER TRAIN

Buenos Aires Police Raid House and Seize Bombs, Hand Grenades, Dynamite, Pistols and Map.

ANTI-AMERICAN AGITATORS HUNTED

Fifteen Hundred Guards to Be Employed to Protect President-Elect in Argentine Capital.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—A plot to bomb President-elect Hoover's special train has been frustrated. With two men under arrest, police today were continuing their search for any anti-American agitators who might be involved. Fifteen hundred guards will be employed on special duty to insure the safety of Hoover when he arrives here tomorrow and during his visit.

President Irigoyen in a statement on the plot said police in searching a house found four hand grenades, two cylindrical bombs, one square bomb, dynamite, revolvers, automatic pistols, quantities of ammunition and 150 10-peso notes. (An Argentine peso is worth 45 cents in United States money.)

Police announced that a room in the raided house contained a detailed map of the railway system over which Hoover's train is routed. Police think the plotters intended to place the bomb on the tracks on the outskirts of the city just before the arrival of the Hoover special train.

Youth Arrested in Raid.
Police in raiding the house arrested a youth who said he was Carlos Gutierrez, 18 years old. Authorities said, however, that the real name of the youth was Alejandro Romano and that he was 21 but posed as younger in hope of obtaining leniency under the minors law. They described him as a student of chemistry and thought he manufactured the bombs.

A second man later was arrested near the house. He gave the name of Jaime Oliver, but police said he was Jaime Castro, a chauffeur. Two girls, both suspected anarchists, were taken into custody for a time by the Argentine authorities today in connection with their investigation. They were reported to have been sent home to their parents in view of the fact that both were minors. They denied that they had any knowledge of the nature of the activities of two men already arrested. Anarchist handbills are said to have been found in their handbags.

President Irigoyen said: "The President of the Republic, being desirous of making agreeable the visit of the President-elect of the United States of America and of offering the greatest possible guarantee of safety to the person of the illustrious visitor, commanded the police to intensify their observations of dangerous elements."
The President added that this order had been carried out by the Division of Investigations which discovered the house which was raided.

Many Suspects Picked Up.
Although only two men were officially announced to have been arrested, it was generally known today that police had been active for a week in picking up suspects. These suspects will be confined until after the departure of Hoover. Authorities not only are determined to prevent any plots against Hoover but also are determined to prevent any public demonstrations against the United States.

Although the Buenos Aires newspapers published pictures of the houses raided by police and the paraphernalia seized today, Col. Graneros of the Buenos Aires police, after a long conference with government officials, declined to give details of the plot and raid. It is thought that these details may never be made public and at least certainly will not until after the departure of Hoover.

Since the bombing of the National City Bank on Christmas eve last year, when two persons were killed and 20 injured, police vigilance in guarding the United States Embassy and Consulate, the American Club and buildings housing American firms has not been relaxed.

A bomb was discovered last month on the steps of the Buenos Aires Cathedral, which is across the street from the National City Bank. As it was being taken to the police station it exploded and a pedestrian was killed.
